URGE FOREIGN TRADE BOOM TO AID RECOVERY

Experts Rap Policy of Isolation.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Foreign trade revival was held indispensable to business recovery by some leading authorities yesterday before the commission of inquiry on national policy in international economic affairs, which held three sessions at the Palmer house. The symposium, which lasted some nine hours, evoked a wide array of opinion—much of it conflicting—on tarif adjustments, foreign debts and investments, American branch factories abroad, the 59 cent dollar, and international monetary stabilization.

Most of the utterances were against a policy of economic isolation and national self-sufficiency and for reestablishment of a freer international flow of goods and services, now held back by retaliatory tarifs. Unanimity, however, was lacking. Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., held that the road of national self-sufficiency was the best to travel. His views provoked a lively round table discussion, in the course of which Gen. Wood, elaborating his ideas of interior development as a main need, remarked:

For Higher Living Standard.

"There are thirty million people in the rural south from Virginia to Texas who, if brought up to the standard of living existing in Minnesota or the Dakotas, would keep the factories running a long time. They are below the standard existing in Switzerland or Germany."

Wastage, such as the massacre of young pigs and plowing under of cotton under the New Deal, was deplored by some analysts. They argued that it is encouraging Egypt and other foreign cotton producing lands to plant larger cotton acreage, the crops from which will then push American cotton out of some of its old world markets.

Financed by Rockefeller Fund.

The commission of inquiry is financed by the Rockefeller Foundation. It was recently established by the Social Science Research Council of New York, which represents seven national scientific societies in the fields of anthropology, economics, history, political science, psychology, sociology, and statistics. It is the outgrowth of suggestions made in the report on "Recent Social Trends" a year and a half ago by the Hoover committee on social trends.

Chairman of the commission is Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, who presided over yesterday's sessions. The commission's research plan is approved in a letter from President Roosevelt. The group is to report to the public next October on the subject matter covered in its name. The next hearing will be in Des Moines, Ia., on April 20.

Criticizes High Tarifs.

C. M. Wynne, managing director of Overseas Industries, Inc., on the other hand, held that high tarifs are the great world problem, and that development of foreign trade is the quickest and safest road to prosperity.

"It is better," he said, "for six or seven million now out of work to be employed at lower wages than not employed at all. We may have to come closer the world wage scale if trade is to be restored, but not down to it because of the superior efficiency of American labor and industry."

The diversity of opinions continued in the night session, where economists talked of the gold standard and currencies. Return to the gold standard was urged by Dr. Melchoir Palyi of the University of Chicago, formerly at the Welthandelshochschule, Berlin. Dr. Palyi also landed a wallop at the 59 cent dollar.

"Restoration of the gold standard," he said, "is requisite for restoration of confidence. The United States has given to its debtors by the dollar depreciation an unjustifiable relief from debts, but, on the other hand, the unfavorable results of the dollar depreciation are overwhelming for the world in view of the pressure on world market prices."

View of Prof. Gideonse.

A somewhat different view was expressed by Prof. Harry D. Gideonse, of the economics department of the University of Chicago.

"Resumption of the gold standard is utterly unsafe if present conditions continue," he said, "but it should be strongly urged that any other monetary system is equally precarious if the policies relating to international economic relations are not centrally formulated and administered.

ROOSEVELT HEADING FARTHER SOUTH; WILL EXTEND HIS VACATION

Miami, Fla., April 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt decided tonight to continue into next week his vacation cruise in southern waters after consulting with congressional leaders who assured there was no immediate need for his return so far as the legislative program is concerned.

After making his decision for a longer stay on the fishing grounds, President Roosevelt headed into far southern waters late today with Elbow Cay light as the goal for noon tomorrow.

"All well and happy and hoping for fine catch tomorrow," was the word from the Nourmahal.

Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, arrived here tonight by airplane and will join James Roosevelt, elder son, in a seaplane trip to the Nourmahal tomorrow.

Savage Beasts to Put on Free Thriller at Fair

BY EARL MULLIN.

The gentle sport of ancient Rome, sitting in a safe and comfortable seat watching the spectacle of savage animals pitting their strength and stealth against the cunning and skill of man, will be one of the hair raising free shows at A Century of Progress Exposition this summer. The spectacle, to be staged several times daily in a steel cage surrounded by an arena seating 2,500 persons, was announced yesterday after a newspaper preview at circus headquarters in Peru, Ind.

Allen King, one of the few circus performers who works lions and tigers in the same cage, will play the part of the modern gladiator armed only with a whip, a chair and a blank cartridge revolver. The complete show will present thirty-three animals, with twelve female tigers, nine male tigers and three lions already selected. One puma will also be added for further variety.

Demonstrates His Art.

Before an interested but cautious audience of reporters and photographers King yesterday worked a part of his act, which will be sponsored by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Kaiser, a 20 year old male lion and the daddy of the troop, was the first actor in the arena. King brought the old trouper out so that exacting photographers could get the poses they wanted, with the trainer at the same time maintaining some chance of not getting an ear chewed. Kaiser, who had been sick and in ill humor for the last week, was a reluctant workman, snarling and snapping all over the arena, but finally going through his paces after his lean flanks had been trounced with the flicking whip. After the photos were all taken Kaiser maintained a sulky indifference on a ten foot platform while the younger members of the troop did their stuff.

Six tigers, all comparative youngsters, were then chased into the ring in rapid fire order, snarling at the trainer, but hurrying to their places at the crack of the whip. One tiger snarled at a cameraman, and newspaper men got in each other's hair scurrying away from the steel bars. King later explained that the tigers are more vicious than the lions, but also much smarter. The tigers snarled hopefully at Kaiser, but the troop leader maintained his sulky attitude of scorn.

Young Lions Temperamental.

With the tigers surrounding the lion as a centerpiece a design called "five power" was formed around the ring. Then came the two stellar performers, Jimmy and Tommy, young male lions that, honestly or just in fun, put on a roaring exhibition of temperament while they jumped from stand to stand.

Pretty, a 10 year old female tiger, and so far the star of the animal production, did not enter the ring until the rest of the cast had been chased, roaring their dissatisfaction with the audience and the applause, up the inclined runway. Pretty's act, in which she works with a right good will, consists of rolling a ball, three feet in diameter, back and forth across a ten foot platform runway while maintaining a precarious position on top of the shaking ball.

ENDS HER LIFE BY LEAP FROM HOTEL WINDOW

Mrs. Margaret Van Pelt Hess, 51 years old, fell or leaped to her death early this morning from an upper floor of the Gordon Terrace apartment hotel, 4156 Clarendon avenue. She was killed instantly.

No one saw Mrs. Hess' fatal plunge. Apparently she left her apartment on the second floor and climbed several floors up a fire escape, hotel attachés said. She fell into a driveway at 745 Gordon terrace. Her body was found by passersby, who notified hotel officials. Police took her to the Lake View hospital, where she was pronounced dead.

Mrs. Hess was employed for the last 18 months as a telephone operator at the Chicago Historical society in Lincoln park. She was the divorced wife of Norman Hess, a business man of Cleveland. A sister and other relatives live in that city. According to L. Hubbard Shattuck, director of the society, Mrs. Hess had been ill recently and had returned to work several days ago after a week's absence.

Policeman Plays Hunch; Result: A Robber Caught

Miss Doris Wolfe, 6501 Yale avenue, stared hard at South Park Policeman Frank Gill yesterday when he passed the window of the Mrs. Snyder candy store at 61 West Jackson boulevard, where Miss Wolfe is employed. She had just handed over $20 from the cash register to a robber who still confronted her with his hand in his coat pocket. The policeman obeyed a hunch and entered with his revolver leveled at the man. Unarmed, the robber surrendered immediately. He identified himself as James Flood, 34 years old, 4235 Jackson boulevard.

FINDS WHISKERS OF SAND FLIES CAUSE HAY FEVER, ASTHMA

FORT ERIE, Ont., April 2.—(AP)—A "hunch" and the persistency of an unidentified Fort Erie woman led Dr. Salvatore J. Pariato of Buffalo to discover that the whiskers of the caddis fly, commonly known as the sand fly, caused certain types of hay fever and asthma, the doctor revealed today.

Announcement of the discovery was made in the American Medical Journal. Experiments during the last two years resulted in a serum being perfected, Dr. Pariato said.

The woman thought sand flies must have something to do with her attacks which became especially virulent when the insects appeared during the spring and summer months. She was so insistent that experiments finally were started to find the germs.

FINGERPRINTS OF ALL EVANSTON CITIZENS SOUGHT

Chief of Police William O. Freeman of Evanston last night announced an offer which he hopes every resident of Evanston will accept.

He wants everybody in Evanston to have his or her fingerprints taken. All that will be necessary is a visit to the detective bureau at 1556 Sherman avenue, Evanston. Inspector Fred Bennett will do the rest. Copies of the fingerprints will be kept in police files and also given to the various subjects.

Chief Freeman is particularly eager, he said, to take the fingerprints of babies and children. They will be valuable, he said, "in case anything happens"—if the youngsters are lost or hurt, for instance. The detective bureau, Chief Freeman said, will not be ready to take the fingerprints of the citizens for a few days, and those who wish to take advantage of his offer should wait, he added, until later in the week or until further announcement is made.

2 MINERS SHOT AS THEY LISTEN TO MRS. PINCHOT

Uniontown, Pa., April 2.—(AP)—Shooting and fighting marred a celebration of the thirty-sixth anniversary of the eight hour day by union miners today, resulting in injuries to five men, two of whom may die.

While Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the governor, was addressing a crowd of 25,000 in Reagan-Lynch athletic field, near Uniontown, a disturbance started.

Five shots were fired as the crowd began milling to the scene.

Mrs. Pinchot, who later said she was not aware of the outbreak, continued with her talk.

Almost simultaneously Joe Kurnat, 27, fell with a bullet wound in the neck, and Steve Saxon, 22, with a bullet in the leg. Kurnat may not live, the hospital reported.

The crowd turned on Joe Bosek, 30, who was being taken away by police. They trampled over his body, kicking and pommeling him into unconsciousness. Physicians say he also may die.

"I'm for the Union."

The disturbance occurred about 250 feet from the speakers' stand at the far right corner of the field. Some thought the shots were backfire of an automobile. Necks were craned, but Mrs. Pinchot did not hesitate, saying:

"I feel that through the union, and through the union only, we can get [illegible] done. When I say I'm for the union, I don't mean company unions.

"I'm for the New Deal, but it must be expanded over the country and not confined to a few. The New Deal as we analyse it is an effort to make better conditions for the working people. Of course, the money interests are opposed, but we, Mr. Pinchot and I, are in it."

Earlier, Mrs. Pinchot had headed a parade of 15,000 miners through Uniontown.

Second Disturbance Starts.

Returning to Uniontown, where police said many indulged in drinking, a second disturbance started among the miners about 7 p. m. Martin Murphy, 35, and John Vargo, 32, were hurt. Vargo's leg was broken.

Police used tear gas bombs attempting to break up this outbreak, then called the fire department. The crowd cut the hose and tossed beer bottles at the firemen, one striking Clark Scott, driver, in the head. He was not seriously hurt.

Sees Plot Against Meeting.

Informed of the trouble later, Mrs. Pinchot said:

"It was an attempt by 'company union' men to break up a perfectly lawful, legal, and peaceful demonstration as the result of the steel trust's anti-social policy of violence against organized labor."

Mrs. Pinchot was speaking in favor of her husband's candidacy for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Extra Police Assigned.

An extra force of state police had been assigned to duty to prevent possible trouble between members of the United Mine Workers of America and a rival organization, the Independent Brotherhood.

In another clash earlier today a dozen shots were fired near the H. C. Frick Coke company's properties at Footedale, and 15 year old Benny Shimshock Jr., a spectator, and John Chambers, 45, a worker, were slightly wounded.

35 HOUR COAL WEEK

Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—Despite a contract with United Mine Workers of America running until April 1, 1935, providing a 40 hour week, officials said today that Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's order of a seven hour day and five day week will apply to Illinois and Indiana, as well as other states in the bituminous industry.

Reports from several sections showed dissatisfaction among the miners themselves over the new order. Some of them declared that a large majority of the diggers are working on a tonnage basis, and thus will receive a cut in their pay checks.

Many on Tonnage Basis.

At Springfield, Ill., where mines were closed in observance of the thirty-sixth anniversary of the establishment of the eight hour day, some workers said 85 per cent of the men are on a tonnage basis.

There are still some contractual dif-

Ask 15% Cut on Paid-up Tax Bills on Homes

Corporation Counsel Sexton was directed by the council yesterday to draft an assembly bill providing for a rebate to owners of residences and small flat buildings who paid their 1931 taxes in full and consequently are not eligible under existing legislation to participate in the 15 per cent reduction recently granted to 318,000 objectors who joined in a suit against the 1931 building assessments.

This order from the council followed passage of a resolution introduced by Ald. John S. Clark [30th]. The bill, when completed by Mr. Sexton will be submitted to the general assembly.

There are about 120,000 properties of the classes concerned in the proposed legislation which were not represented in the suit heard before Judge Jarecki, but the bill proposed by Ald. Clark would affect only those properties on which 1931 tax bills had been paid in full. Similar 15 per cent rebates to property owners who have already paid 1932 taxes in full also will be made a provision in the measure.

To Avoid Discrimination.

"This suggested legislation must be enacted into law because, if not, that most substantial element which has been the main financial support of government will be the victim of unfair discrimination," Ald. Clark said.

Meanwhile, county officials were confused as to the method by which revised bills are to be prepared for the 318,000 objectors to whom Judge Jarecki granted the 1931 cut.

One public official estimated that the work involved in revising the bills will require six months with little hope of collecting any further taxes on the properties involved until it is finished. At the same time he pointed out that if the objecting taxpayers do not pay that portion of their bills not affected by the cut, they will find the reduction granted by Judge Jarecki more than eaten up by penalties which have been running at the rate of 1 per cent a month since last Sep-

Assessor Talks of Income.

Assessor J. J. Jacobs issued a statement yesterday indicating that it is his belief that the major work of making the changes is the duty of the Chicago Real Estate board, whose attorneys handled the case for the tax objectors.

"If in the present proceedings participated by the assessor is necessary for the public interest," stated Mr. Jacobs, "the official records of assessments are available, of course, and if some concrete program, lawful in its nature and capable of performance within the budget limitations of the office is submitted, I shall give it prompt and careful consideration."

Judge Jarecki and Hayden N. Bell, head of the civil law department of the state's attorney's office, said that in their opinion Judge Jarecki's order legally required the assessor to initiate the work of making the changes.

VILLA DAUGHTER HIRES A MANAGER TO CRASH FILMS

Miss Villa was staying at the home of her cousin, Germin Torres of Las Cruces, N. M., who was appointed her legal guardian this morning.

TURKEY ORDERS EXTRADITION OF CHICAGO EXILE

Envoy Told Fugitive Can't Balk Ouster.

BY EUGENE SPECK.

(Picture on Back Page.)

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 2.—Samuel Insull is in jail again. This time he is awaiting extradition to the United States for trial on state and federal charges growing out of the collapse of his utilities empire. American Ambassador Robert P. Skinner was officially informed at Ankara, the Turkish capital, that the extradition order would be enforced, come what may.

The Turkish government put Insull in jail to insure his presence when American agents arrive to take him back to Chicago to stand trial on criminal charges.

One Reverse After Another.

The former Chicago utilities czar went stolidly through a day filled with one reverse after another. He was in relatively good spirits at the start. But when he was taken by taxicab this afternoon to his third detention since he fled from the United States it was evident his spirits were drooping, and tonight observers in the building where he is a prisoner reported that he was near collapse.

Insull is housed in the more comfortable part of the prison in Stamboul, ancient section of Istanbul. The section of the prison in which he is incarcerated is reserved for political offenders. He is not in a cell. Instead he has a comfortable room to himself on the second floor. His windows, however, are covered with iron bars, and he is under guard as if in a prison cell. The only furnishing in his room besides a bed is a chair.

Insull's bed is provided with fresh linen and clean covers by Turkish police, but there is nothing else for him to look at except the bare white walls and a single barred window. The Turkish soldiers who are his guards pass in and out at periodic intervals—armed reminders that he is a prisoner.

Arrested in Hotel.

The 74 year old fugitive, who left the United States about eighteen months ago after the collapse of his utilities group in a desperate effort to escape American justice, was formally placed under arrest at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Hotel London in Pera, a suburb of Istanbul. He had moved into this modest hotel early this morning.

Insull had a light lunch and was returning to his room (without bath) when a taxicab arrived with plainclothes and uniformed police officers. Demir Bey, chief of the second section of the surete general, was in charge.

They served a warrant for his arrest issued on the basis of the decision of the cabinet reached at Ankara last night that Insull must be turned over to American authorities. This decision followed the penal court's finding yesterday that Insull was subject to extradition on the grounds that the charges in Illinois constitute a "common crime."

[Insull is wanted in Illinois on federal charges of using the mails to defraud and violation of bankruptcy laws and on state charges of larceny and embezzlement.]

Takes Arrest Calmly.

Insull took his arrest calmly. He asked if he had to leave immediately. Informed that he would, he walked to the waiting taxicab. His face was expressionless as the car left for the prison. Officers at the prison said Insull appeared to be on the verge of collapse when he arrived. He walked to the third room he had occupied during the day, however, and sat down on the bed.

He was provided with a dinner of "yourt," a kind of curdled milk, two eggs, and mineral water. He ate the "yourt," but did not touch the eggs. He is virtually cut off from the rest of the world, for no communications are delivered and nobody can see him except on the express permission of the general prosecutor.

Throughout the day, during which he was busily occupied until locked up, Insull was carefully guarded by detectives. They dogged his footsteps everywhere.

Confers with Ship's Captain.

This morning Insull had a bath and a big breakfast, followed by a cigar at the Hotel Aydin, where he was the "guest" of the Turkish government. After breakfast he received Capt. John Mouscouris of the Majestic, the tramp steamer aboard which he left Greece two weeks ago yesterday, and two Turkish attorneys. The lawyers as a result of this conference filed an appeal against extradition while Insull was moving to the Hotel London.

Alexander Mango, one of the lawyers, maintained tonight that the appeal would have the effect of paralyzing the extradition. A penal court found Insull was liable to extradition and, according to Mango, its finding as a result of the appeal must be passed on immediately by the Court of Cassation, highest tribunal in Turkey. The court sits at Eskihisarr which is located near Ankara, and usually hears appeals two months after they are filed.

Grounds for Appeal.

The grounds for the appeal were that the court where Insull appeared should have examined the legality of the American indictments. Mango maintained the Turkish government is now unable to enforce the order until the Court of Cassation hands down a ruling.

At the same time, however, the Turkish government assured Ambassador Skinner that the action is irrevocable. Just to make the administrative position stronger the Turkish parliament tonight ratified an extradition treaty with the United States.

This treaty was negotiated in 1923, but ratification here had been delayed until the vessel Insull charted for $10,000 steamed into Istanbul harbor last week and was detained while the authorities investigated the status of the ship's only passenger.

Although no new evidence can be brought on behalf of the American government before the appeals court, Mango admitted that a decision in his favor by a higher court would not preclude fresh action at the behest of the American government if the fugitive were freed.

Mango further admitted he had been in communication the last few hours with the London firm of lawyers of Simmons & Simmons. This firm has ben in charge of Insull's legal affairs since he began his spectacular flight.

Nations Exchange Notes.

While Insull was locked up further complications in the case were developing. Long and what were termed most cordial exchanges took place between the Greek and Turkish governments. The Greek minister, Sakellaropoulos, called on Foreign Minister Tewfik Rushdi Bey at Ankara and made polite inquiries while the Greek consul general conferred in Istanbul with the lord mayor.

Meanwhile, Greek authorities are investigating the reason why the Majestic remained in Istanbul harbor beyond the 24 hour period in which the vessel could have left without hindrance. Tomorrow's press will report a long interview between the Greek consul general and Capt. Mousouris, who, in the meantime, refuses to leave the harbor without Insull's permission.

Capt. Mousouris protested he was unable to leave within the 24 hour period because ten Turkish policemen were aboard the freighter from the time he dropped anchor. At the same time Turkish authorities assert the ship was not boarded until the 24 hour period passed and that they have no interest in the affair beyond discharge of their duty.

JAP CABINET WINS HIGH APPROVAL; STAYS IN OFFICE

[Copyright; 1934; By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, April 2.—Returning today from a conference with Prince Kimmochi Saionji, the elder statesman, Premier Makoto Saito told newspapermen the prince had agreed that any change of government now or in the near future would be inadvisable.

Behind this brief announcement is seen an important decision on policy. The original conception of the national government as a temporary expedient to allow the nation to recover its poise is abandoned, it is held, and it now receives a second lease on life to prepare for the anticipated 1935-'36 crisis.

The cabinet's policy will be purely administrative, designed to relieve the farmers and create general tranquility. In foreign affairs, Koki Hirota will give concrete form to his efforts to reestablish good relations, primarily with the United States and secondarily with Great Britain.

The newspaper Nichi Nichi declares Hirota is considering a ten year bilateral pact of non-aggression whereby Japan and the United States would pledge themselves not to resort to war in any circumstances during that period.

U. S. AND ILLINOIS MAY TRY INSULL ON ALL CHARGES

Fugitive Is Denounced on Floor of Senate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—Samuel Insull, who was imprisoned today by the Turkish government to await extradition to the United States, probably will have to stand trial on all federal and state indictments facing him in Chicago, government officials indicated tonight.

So broad is the section of the Turkish penal code under which Insull was turned over to Robert P. Skinner, American ambassador at Ankara, that officials here predicted that prosecution of the fugitive utilities operator will not have to be confined to the bankruptcy fraud charge which was laid before the Turkish courts.

A federal mail fraud case, considered stronger than the bankruptcy charge, also is pending against Insull. In addition the state of Illinois has fraud and embezzlement indictments against Insull which it may be free to press because of the unusual nature of his extradition.

Ponder Type of Credentials.

While officials were speculating privately over the breadth of action which federal and state authorities are free to engage in against Insull, the state department was seeking to determine what type of credentials it will have to furnish the agent who is designated to conduct Insull back to this country.

In the senate, meanwhile, Senator George W. Norris [Rad., Neb.] at the conclusion of a long speech against utilities generally, denounced Insull for trying to evade the law.

"Insull has made a failure," said Senator Norris. "He is trying to escape the clutches of the law of the very country under whose laws he built up that mighty empire of deception and deceit. He is trying now to avoid punishment for his sins. He is using the money, undoubtedly, to bribe foreign officials and to charter boats and hire lawyers that was contributed by pennies of the student who uses electric light and of the washerwoman who uses electricity to work her machine.

"He is an outcast. He is like Benedict Arnold of old in that he has no country. He is a man without a country trying to escape just retribution."

Confer on Insull's Return.

Joseph B. Keenan, assistant attorney general in charge of criminal cases, and Wallace Murray, chief of the near eastern division of the state department, were in conference throughout the afternoon working over details for completing Insull's return.

A fortunate quirk in the Turkish law appeared today to have insured sweeping prosecution of Insull. If he had been handed over under an extradition treaty his prosecution would have been automatically confined to the charge on which he was extradited.

The Turks, however, have surrendered Insull under article IX of their penal code. This law merely provides that upon a showing that a friendly government desires the return of a fugitive for trial on nonmilitary and nonpolitical charges the fugitive shall be handed over.

Find Procedure Much Broader.

In other words, according to reports here tonight, the procedure is much broader than ordinary extradition. It does not even require that the offense for which the fugitive is wanted shall be one which is named in an extradition treaty or one which is a crime in Turkey.

The indictment presented to the Turkish court to show that Insull was wanted was the bankruptcy fraud indictment used ineffectively against him in Greece, but officials were optimistic that this fact will not restrict his prosecution.

Official confirmation of this optimism could not be obtained here tonight, however, because of scanty information.

This same lack of information was hindering the drawing of a warant for Insull's return. State department officials were not even sure tonight that a warant will be necessary, since the Turkish government already has placed Insull at the ambassador's disposal. Verbal designation by the ambassador of an agent to bring Insull home may be all that is necessary.

She became a member of the new post several months ago.

SUPREME COURT REFUSES TO HEAR CASE OF A LOOK

Washington, D. C., April 2.—(AP)—The Supreme Court refused today to decide whether Mary Foley Noakes of Lexington, Ky., looked in the proper direction before starting to cross a street in London, Ky.

After driving her automobile to London and parking it she started across the street. She was painfully injured when struck by a truck belonging to the Standard Oil company of Kentucky.

The Federal District Court for Eastern Kentucky gave her a judgment for $10,000, but it was set aside by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals.

It took the position she should have looked first to her left after passing the rear of her car instead of to her right, holding that had she done so she would have seen the oil truck approaching in time to escape being run down by it.

WISCONSIN GROUP VISITS OFFICIALS OF CHICAGO PLAN

The Wisconsin committee of the Lake Shore Drive association held a conference yesterday with officials of the Chicago plan commission on improvement projects of mutual interest to Chicago and Milwaukee. A general discussion of lake shore highway improvements took place.

Members of the committee who visited the plan commission offices were Supervisor Frederic C. Heath of Milwaukee county, Cornelius T. Young, State Senator Charles Phillips of Wisconsin, Stanley Jarz of the Milwaukee mayor's advisory council, and former Assemblyman A. L. Buntin. Eugene S. Taylor, director, spoke for the Chicago plan commission.

CAFE GIRL IS MISSING; FEAR GANG SLAYING

The disappearance of Thelma Milliar, 20 years old, a café entertainer said to be the wife of Albert Bregar, who is believed to have been slain by gangland enemies last August, was reported to the police last night. It is feared that she may have been slain. Miss Eva Gentry, 644 Wrightwood avenue, a friend of Miss Milliar, told Lieut. William Brennan of the Sheffield avenue police station of the disappearance. Miss Milliar has been missing since March 30 from her room at the Wrightwood avenue address. She was krown several years ago as an associate of Ted Newberry and Gus Winkler, both since killed.

GREEN WILL ASK QUICK TRIAL FOR SAMUEL INSULL

Makes Ready to Speed Up Court Arguments.

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green yesterday prepared to advance the trial of Samuel Insull Sr., whose extradition was ordered by the Turkish government, to the earliest possible date. The former utilities promoter, on his return to Chicago, will be tried with other former officers and directors of Corporation Securities company either on charges of using the mails to defraud or on charges of violating the federal bankruptcy act.

Mr. Green was notified officially by Washington authorities that the Turkish government had ordered Insull's extradition and placed him at the disposal of the American ambassador to Turkey, Robert P. Skinner. The district attorney said that immediately upon learning officially the date for Insull's departure from Turkey and the probable date of the prisoner's arrival here, he would go before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson with a motion intended to speed up the trial.

One Defense Motion Pending.

In the mail fraud case there is a defense motion for a bill of particulars pending, and arguments have been continued to May 15 because of the illness of Amos C. Miller, a defense attorney, but Mr. Green said he would ask that the arguments be advanced, probably to April 15. A demurrer filed by defense counsel has already been overruled by Judge Wilkerson, so that after the bill of particulars motion is disposed of, Insull and 18 other defendants will be ready for arraignment and plea, and the case can be set for trial.

There is also an indictment against Insull and twelve others charging violation of the bankruptcy act in connection with the collapse of Corporation Securities company, a $153,000,000 investment trust. Mr. Green was not certain whether Insull's extradition would permit his trial on the mail fraud indictment. He declared that if it would not, the bankruptcy charges would be pressed first.

Crime Not Covered by Treaty.

The United States extradition treaty with Turkey, approved by the Turkish national assembly yesterday, does not cover the crime of mail fraud, which is not extraditable in any other country. Mr. Green believed, however, that there is a good chance of trying Insull in the mail fraud case on the ground that Turkey was voluntarily handing him over under its penal code, which provides for expulsion of fugitives whose alleged crimes are "common" and neither political nor military.

Insull, together with his brother, Martin, who was extradited from Canada last week, is also accused of larceny and embezzlement in the state courts. State's Attorney Courtney said that he was communicating with the United States attorney general and would take proper action upon learning the exact status of the Insull cases. It was believed, however, that the federal charges would have precedence.

There was much speculation in Chicago yesterday concerning the source of Insull's funds, of which he seems to have a plentiful supply. This was occasioned by reports from London quoting Insull's friends as saying that $2,000,000 from American sources was ready to be put in a Turkish bank if it would afford him sanctuary.

For months there have been rumors in Chicago that large sums of money were being sent to Insull. There was a rumor that New York and Chicago banks were putting up the money because of the $40,000,000 suit pending against them to recover collateral pledged by the Insull companies in violation of debenture covenants. Such rumors, however, brought laughs from both the bankers and federal authorities.

EFTAX BEFORE GRAND JURY AGAIN IN QUIZ ON INSULL FINANCES

Constantine S. Eftax, former Chicago druggist, who has been called a mystery man in the Insull case, was taken before the federal grand jury for the second time yesterday in an effort to ascertain whether he ever acted as a fiscal agent for the fugitive Samuel Insull Sr.

Several months ago Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson, temporarily tied up Eftax' account in the Harris Trust and Savings bank on the contention that the money was Insull's. The suit was later dismissed. Upon his return to Chicago from Athens, Greece, Eftax was taken before the grand jury.

Eftax denied even knowing Insull, but federal authorities have made an investigation of his life and the purpose of his return visit to the grand jury room yesterday was to determine whether his statements were true.

TWO CLEVELAND BANKERS NAMED BY GRAND JURY

K. V. Painter and W. B. Baldwin Indicted.

Cleveland, O., April 2.—(AP)—Two officials of two large Cleveland banks which failed for $100,000,000 a year ago were under indictment by county and federal grand juries tonight.

The latest indictments, returned by a county grand jury today, accuse Kenyon V. Painter, capitalist, director and largest individual stockholder of the Union Trust company, and Wilbur M. Baldwin, the bank's former president, of misapplication of $540,000 and abstraction of $814,000 of the bank's assets. Baldwin and Painter entered pleas of not guilty and were released on $7,500 bond each.

Less than a week ago, a federal grand jury indicted J. Arthur House, president of the Guardian Trust company, and Harry C. Robinson and William R. Green, vice presidents, on charges of misapplication of $58,000 and falsification of bank records.

The Union Trust's deposits had dwindled to $130,818,354 and the Guardian Trust's to $76,545,790 when they were closed in the banking holiday a year ago, only to be taken over by the state for liquidation. Their deposits were more than twice as large two years previous to that time.

Transactions involving stock of the two banks figure in both groups of indictments, as the Guardian case, it is alleged that the acts complained of took place in connection with the use of funds from an employes' pension fund for purchase of Guardian stock.

Today's indictments grow out of unpaid loans totaling more than $3,000,000 made to Painter by the bank to enable him to acquire his huge holdings in Union Trust stock. Painter, who' known as a big game hunter and for years regarded as Cleveland's wealthiest capitalist, has said that he bought the stock—on borrowed funds—in a futile attempt to maintain its market price and thus bolster public confidence in the bank.

VOTERS RETAIN LAW THAT FORBIDS BEER AROUND MICHIGAN U.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 2.—[Special.]—An attempt to repeal a 51 year old charter provision prohibiting the sale of beer near the University of Michigan campus, failed today. Repeal required a 60 per cent majority but it received only 1,834 votes while the opposition polled 3,129.

Opposition to the change came chiefly from the district in which most university faculty members live. Repealists sought considered raising a fund to take the question into court. Gov. William A. Comstock who makes his home here suggested that the charter provision contravenes the statute covering the sale of liquor passed last year by the legislature.

Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, noted University of Chicago economist and nationally known labor arbitrator, spent the entire day on the witness stand yesterday in Judge Philip J. Finnegan's Criminal court relating in the hearing of the jury the difficulties he faced and endeavored to surmount in the cleaning and dyeing industry when, in the fall of 1929, he assumed the duties of arbiter between the plant owners and labor.

The witness, who is one of 18 defendants charged with conspiracy to racketeer, had touched briefly on the gangster element which, he said, he had to fight in the industry, as court adjourned for the day. Today when he will resume the witness stand he is expected to enlarge on this phase of the industry's affairs. Chaotic conditions in the cleaning industry which led to a disastrous price cutting war previously have been blamed on gangster attempts to gain control.

Holds Jury's Attention.

The college professor, a short, stocky man of 45 years of age, with a small mustache, commanded the undivided attention of the jury as he spoke in a slow but distinct tone. Every word he spoke could be heard throughout the courtroom.

Even the group of assistant prosecutors, headed by Special Assistant Edwin J. Raber, famed for his prosecutions of labor conspiracies, seemed to be sufficiently interested in the professor's story to keep at a minimum the constant flow of objections which heretofore has marked the trial.

Dr. Squires related that he was informed, at the time he took the position of arbitrator against his own personal wishes, that George [Bugs] Moran, one time gangland chief, was in control of the Central Cleaning and Dyeing company plant, and that Hirsche Miller, another police character, was interested in another plant. The witness did not reach the point as yet of the entrance of Al Capone into the industry.

Told of Industry's Evils.

"In July or August of 1930 I had lunch with Walter Crowley [president of the City Dye Works and one of the defendants] and he told me of the evils in the industry," testified Dr. Squires. "He told me he had spent his lifetime and had his life savings invested in the industry."

"Mr. Crowley said he had resigned from the presidency of the Master Cleaners and Dyers' association [the predecessor of the Squires institute] because of the pressure of the gangsters to get in," Dr. Squires said. "He said he was sick and tired of fighting. He told me that Moran was in the Central Cleaners and Dyers and that he had told Moran to get out; that the industry did not want him. In another plant, he said, Hirsche Miller was in control and the cleaners had to buy out the plant to get rid of him."

Relates Institute's Formation.

Dr. Squires said Crowley asked him to work out some stabilization plan for the industry under which it would be possible to keep out gangsters and stabilize prices. It was as the result of this talk, Dr. Squires said, that he formed the institute, which practically made him czar of the industry.

At Crowley's suggestion, he related, he talked to Attorney Morris I. Kaplan, who in turn referred him to Attorney Edward R. Johnston, law partner of Attorney Floyd Thompson, former chief justice of the state Supreme court. He said that Attorney Johnston informed him that an institute such as was formed would not violate the state or federal anti-trust laws on price fixing. The agreement drawn up was subsequently signed by 60 per cent of the cleaners and the institute formed.

First Defendant on Stand.

Dr. Squires' appearance and testimony on the stand marked the opening of the third month of the trial and his testimony came as the first personal revelations from a defendant concerning his own version of the alleged conspiracy.

Attorney Floyd Thompson, as the day's court session opened, asked permission to read to the jury a list of twenty-five prominent citizens who would, he said, testify to the good reputation and character of Dr. Squires. The state agreed that the twenty-five citizens named would, if called as witnesses, testify in Dr. Squires' favor, and thus a saving of perhaps a day of testimony taking was saved by the agreement on this point.

Among the character witnesses mentioned were Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university, W. [illegible] Hotchkiss of Armour Institute of Technology, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Robert Isham Randolph, Irving D. Lorscheim, George F. Getz, and Sidney Hillman, president of Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Dr. Squires Takes Stand.

Dr. Squires then took the stand. He told of his birth on a farm in 1889 near Neptune, Wis., and how he was left motherless when two years old.

Quickly an outline of his childhood days was drawn by Attorney Thompson's rapid questions and the resulting answers. He told of how he worked at night while attending school during the day until he entered the University of Wisconsin, where he took pre-medical and legal courses and then majored in economics, receiving B. A. and M. A. degrees. Later he studied abroad, and afterward received a Ph. D. degree at Columbia university. He was appointed assistant professor of economics at this university in 1920.

Dr. Squires then listed his accomplishments as an arbitrator in various labor disputes and how he took the position of virtual dictator in the cleaning and dyeing trade against his personal desires. He accepted the post, he said, only after he had been urged to do so by Prof. Harry A. Millis, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, and other civic and labor leaders.

Told of Moran Connection.

The witness said that he was informed that the industry was on the verge of ruin.

Dr. Squires said he immediately started to build up confidence of both capital and labor after he assumed the position of abritrator in the fall of 1929.

"It was clearly understood by all cleaning organizations that they would be bound by the arbitration agreement," the witness related as he told of finally accepting the position at a salary of $10,000 per year. However, he said, because of the chaotic conditions in the industry, he accepted only $5,000 of his salary in 1930 and took no salary in 1931, 1932, or in 1933, although under contract.

Q.—What did you do as chairman of the arbitration committee. A.—I conducted hearings during January, February and part of March, 1930, and rendered a temporary decision on March 14, 1930.

Dr. Squires said that the inside workers in the industry wanted to renew the 1928 wage contract and its attendant conditions, but that the plant owners were demanding a wage reduction because of the break in cleaning prices.

"When I took over my duties I found the inside workers locked out by the owners, and the drivers were conducting a sympathy strike," he said. "Of course, the first act was to order all people back to work without discrimination."

Squires' Decision Read.

The university economist then told of his study of conditions in the industry and of his conclusion that certain inside workers in the industry were not producing the amount of work for which they were being paid, making the unit cost resultingly higher. He rectified these conditions, he said, in his decisions, which were read to the jury.

Growing competition was coming, Dr. Squires said, from out of town plants. He said an investigation showed that a Springfield, Ill., plant was paying girls from $4 to $6 per week for 10 hours per day work. This plant was charging $1 per garment by mail service.

Attorney Thompson read into the record all of Dr. Squires' decisions as arbitrator, which always were rendered in writing.

DEADLY SNAKES ARE JUST PETS TO THIS WOMAN

She Gives Baths to Big Rattler in Zoo.

MRS. GRACE WILEY

Her job in the reptile house at the Chicago Zoological park in Brookfield includes everything from vaccinating the deadly water moccasin against pneumonia, to giving the alligator his ultra-violet rays under the sun-lamp, or bathing Big Ben, a 6-foot western diamond - backed rattler.

Her name is Mrs. Grace Olive Wiley, a slender woman, with dark brown bobbed hair, who is the curator of reptiles at the zoological park, and whose experimental work with reptiles is characterized as "unbelievable" by Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, a noted authority on reptiles.

Right now her reptilian pets are in temporary quarters in the bird house, but the reptile house will be completed in three or four weeks, ready for the public opening of the zoological park on July 1.

Fond of Her Pets.

There was nothing of the side-show "snake charmer" about Mrs. Wiley as she fearlessly handled these reptiles, from the harmless to the deadly. First of all, Mrs. Wiley is a scientist. She is genuinely fond of her "pets," and their comfort is her desire.

You could tell that from the adjectives she used in describing this reptile and that.

"Isn't she a charming and beautiful creature?" asked Mrs. Wiley. The charming creature is "Beauty," a seven foot South American boa, which was twining about her arm, and even kissing her chin with a darting tongue.

"Adorable,' was a little spotted leopard frog, which flipped about with amazing speed to snatch a piece of raw meat from her finger.

There were even words of admiration for Big Ben, the huge and ugly rattlesnake. Big Ben, Mrs. Wiley says, is a well behaved snake and will pose for the camera much more obligingly than many human beings.

Noted for Scientific Work.

But these are only sidelights to her real work. Mrs. Wiley was called to the curator's job from the Minnesota Academy of Science in Minneapolis. Her task is concerned chiefly with scientific work.

She studies the reptiles—their diseases and cures, their habits of feeding, living and breeding. In fact, she is the only person in the world who has successfully bred rattlesnakes in captivity. A pair of vicious-looking rattlers, named Kitty and Snookzie, have produced three litters. A number of the offspring have died, but Mrs. Wiley saved eight out of the last litter of nine.

Mrs. Wiley was found yesterday in the little kitchen of her temporary reptile house, preparing some chopped meat for the turtles. She smiled and greeted the reporter: "Just step inside there—I'll be right in."

Why the Reporter Jumped.

The reporter backed through the indicated door, then turned to look the situation over. He immediately jumped a good three feet. Six feet away, regarding the reporter with a sinister eye, was a seven-foot alligator. A glance disclosed half a dozen more of the saurians, either snoozing, or moving sluggishly about, while a 22-foot Regal Python was looking interestedly through the plate glass window of his cage.

The reporter would have returned immediately to the kitchen, but Mrs. Wiley appeared at this moment. She chuckled and approached the alligator, patting him affectionately on the nose.

"We were afraid for a while he might have rickets," Mrs. Wiley went on, "but he gets his cod liver oil every day, and a good bath under the sun lamp. In fact, we've been doing that for all the reptiles. The garter-snakes particularly need their vitamin D."

Noticing that her visitor was still nervous, Mrs. Wiley remarked:

"I haven't been doing this all my life—just the last thirteen years. I first specialized in the study of insects.

"I had been doing some field work in the line of entomology for the University of Kansas, when the curator of reptiles remarked that they didn't have a specimen of a diamond-back rattler. He suggested I do a little reptile catching on my jaunts about the southwest."

Mrs. Wiley confessed that she was considerably frightened when she snared her first rattler—but the fear wore off. When asked if she had ever been bitten by a poisonous snake, she hesitated a moment.

"If you had tamed 300 bucking broncos, you'd expect to have a few hard knocks, wouldn't you?" she said finally, "well I've tamed about 300 poisonous snakes."

And that is all she would say on that subject.

The reptile house contains about 250 snakes of various kinds, ranging in size from the tiny coral snake—a brilliantly colored little fellow less than a foot long, but the most deadly of them all—to the huge pythons, one 22 feet long, and the other about 16 feet long.

DR. WIRT CRITICIZES EDUCATORS IN SPREAD OF RED DOCTRINES

Dr. William Wirt, Gary educator, who has charged a plot by Washington brain trusters to turn the country toward communism, yesterday declared that members of his own profession must share the blame for allowing the radicals to get as far as they have with their alleged plot. A properly functioning educational system throughout the country would have caused the brain trust's motives to be unveiled before now, he asserted.

"Education is involved in the brain trust exposé," said Dr. Wirt. "Because the education of the public has been neglected to the extent that the revolutionary plot has progressed as far as it has. Education, therefore, is to blame for the inroads of communism. Education should accept the responsibility."

Dr. Wirt also denied that his charges that members of the brain trust had told him that President Roosevelt is only the Kerensky of the bloodless revolution, to be replaced later by a Stalin, were the outburst of a disappointed office seeker. He has never sought or considered accepting a federal appointment, he said.

Dr. Wirt refused to make any comment upon Washington developments resulting from his charges, except to say that he would not testify before a congressional committee "unless the investigation is free, public, and open and goes into the entire recovery program. I do not propose to appear at a gag hearing."

THREATENS TO BRING ALIENATION CHARGE SUIT FOR $250,000

Concord, N. C., April 2.—(AP)—The Concord Tribune says F. Brandon Smith Jr. of Charlotte, has indicated his intention to sue Joseph F. Cannon, his father-in-law, for $250,000, charging alienation of the affections of his wife, the former Anne Cannon Reynolds.

Cannon controls the Cannon Towel works at Kannapolis, near here. His daughter was the first wife of the late Smith Reynolds, tobacco heir, who was mysteriously and fatally wounded at his Winston-Salem home two years ago shortly after he and Cannon's daughter were divorced and he had wed Libby Holman, Broadway torch singer. She was acquited of killing Reynolds, but the case was dismissed.

Mrs. Smith recently went to Hot Springs, Ark., to establish residence preparatory to seeking a divorce and her father is there with her now.

The Tribune says Cannon has been notified of the impending suit which is to be filed unless he agrees to an out-of-court settlement.

The paper says Cannon will refuse this, and quotes him as denying Smith's allegations.

CHICAGO LAWYER AND BOBBE ARNST WED IN NEW YORK

Robert Cavanaughs to Return Here.

Larchmont, N. Y., April 2.—[Special.]—Bobbe Arnst, former wife of Johnny Weissmuller, screen star, became today the bride of Robert Cavanaugh, Chicago lawyer. The license was obtained in New York City this morning and the ceremony was performed shortly before 2 o'clock at the home of Janet Velie, an actress friend of the bride.

BOBBE ARNST

The ceremony was performed by Police Court Judge William Meisenheimer. Miss Arnst gave her name as Robert Leone Arnst, her age as 24, and her husband's as 30. The dancer wore a brown straw hat, mink coat, white crepe dress, and no stockings. She arrived 25 minutes late for the ceremony. A shopping trip, she said, detained her.

Mr. and Mrs. Cavanaugh said they probably would go to Chicago after a honeymoon for about a week in New York. Later they may visit the west coast.

Miss Arnst was divorced Oct. 3, 1933, from Weissmuller, who won fame as a swimmer.

PLAN TO UNRAVEL TANGLE OF LOCAL BOARDS OUTLINED

Park Merger Act Called First Step.

E. O. Griffenhagen, efficiency engineer, yesterday outlined before the public affairs committee of the Union League club a comprehensive plan for the unification and simplification of Cook county's present bramble patch of local governments.

Characterizing past efforts toward unification of governments as spasmodic, Mr. Griffenhagen, who two years ago conducted a survey on the subject for a state legislative committee, urged the passage on April 10 of the park board unification referendum as a logical first step in such a program. The referendum is on the proposal to replace the city's present three large and nineteen small park boards with a single board appointed by the mayor.

Steps for the Future.

As a logical sequence to such action, the speaker urged that the police and street and boulevard maintenance departments of the consolidated board be transferred to the city, as the first step toward eventual change of the park board into a city department. At the same time he urged that later the city turn over maintenance of all arterial highways and boulevards within its limits either to the state or to the county as a delegated representative of the state.

His recommendations in other fields of government were summarized as follows:

CITY GOVERNMENT: Employ a city manager, and replace the present city council with a body of not more than 21, and perhaps of 11 or 15 members, elected at large in the city by proportional representation. The council would pass on matters of policy only.

EDUCATION: Give a commissioner of education appointed by the mayor power over both business and educational departments, and make the board of education a purely advisory body. Turn school playgrounds over to the city department of parks, and the parental school over to the state department of public welfare.

Urges Police Consolidation.

POLICE: Consolidate city, park, suburban, county, and state police into a metropolitan force.

WELFARE: Transfer the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium and all city hospital functions to the state department of public welfare. Give the county all outdoor relief activities.

TAX ADMINISTRATION: Make an elective county clerk the head of the whole process of taxation with the power to appoint an assessor and collector to supersede the present elective assessor and county treasurer.

SANITARY DISTRICT: Provide a board of three members appointed respectively by the mayor of Chicago, county board, and governor, to remove the "constant temptations" of politics offered an elected board.

COUNTY: Reorganize county departments and make the forest preserves a county department instead of a semi-independent government.

W. PARK BOARD'S REFUNDING BOND PROGRAM O. K.'D

The west park board's refunding bond program to clean up the staggering obligations left behind by the former administration was approved yesterday by the Chicago Recovery administration named by Mayor Kelly to aid in solution of the financial problem of local governments.

Members of the administration made their approval contingent upon the enactment of legislation to prevent a repetition of misuse of funds and financial irregularities uncovered in an audit of the former administration. Harry Joseph, president of the west park board, who was present, promised that the board will pass any regulatory regulations deemed necessary and will support any reform program in the legislature.

The refunding program developed by Edward N. Heinz, controler of the park system, was the subject of a report by a special committee of the administration, headed by John O. Rees, director of the committee on public expenditures.

Under the program the park board is to issue $19,500,000 worth of 20 year refunding bonds. Interest of $1,536,000 a year is to be paid from a $1,800,000 annual levy. The balance of the levy is to be set up as a reserve for the retirement of the bonds.

SMOOT'S SON PUT IN MENTAL WARD; AIR QUIZ FIGURE

Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—Ernest Smoot, son of former Senator Reed Smoot of Utah and who was a prominent figure in the recent air mail investigation, is being held in the psychopathic ward of Gallinger hospital for observation, it was learned today.

He was sent there Friday from Emergency hospital on certification by two private physicians. Officials at Gallinger said he was suffering from a mild delirium, probably induced by some minor infection and possibly aggravated by mental strain. The opinion was expressed that the condition was temporary and should clear up in a week or 10 days at the most.

Young Smoot figured in the senate air mail investigation during the latter part of February, in connection with charges that he had represented Transcontinental and Western Air and had used the influence of himself and Senator Smoot to expedite action in behalf of the company in its dealings with the government.

It was revealed before the committee in charge of the investigation that the younger Smoot, while serving as clerk to the senate finance committee in 1929, had engaged in outside business which netted him $19,750.

He represented Transcontinental and Western Air here in 1930 and admitted that he had billed the company for $15,000 for representing it in negotiations with Controler General McCarl and for appearing before congressional appropriation committees. He was paid but $2,500 for him services, he said.

COUNCIL FAVORS PARK DISTRICT CONSOLIDATION

The proposal to consolidate the 22 park districts in Chicago, to be submitted to the voters April 10, was indorsed yesterday by the city council. The resolution was introduced by Ald. Roger Kiley [37th] and supported by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th].

"This is the first real chance we have had to put into practical operation the theories of governmental simplification which have been discussed for years," said Ald. Arvey. "We should be consistent and urge adoption of the proposal. It means more economical and efficient park operation. It can't harm anybody except a few small park board members who want to continue in office."

The motion was carried by the scanty vote of 29 to 3. Ald. O. E. Northrup [19th] led the opposition. He called it unfair to place the council on record when some of its members live in small park districts which are operated economically. Ald. James J. Hurley [39th] and Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th] joined Ald. Northrup.

Walgreen DRUG STORES

OPEN TRIAL OF 2 IN ADVERTISING HANDBILL FRAUD

Charge Distributors Sold Circulars as Paper.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Joseph Novak, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; Edward Nelander, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Horace J. Claremont, head of the Claremont Handbill Distributing company, 1500 Belmont avenue, and William Johnson, manager of the concern, were placed on trial on charges of conspiracy yesterday before a jury in Judge Thomas J. Lynch's Criminal court. Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin said that evidence in his possession will show that the defendants instead of distributing handbills for three department stores for which services they were paid sold most of the handbills for old paper.

The indictment specifically charges that the defendants conspired to cheat the Wieboldt department stores, L. Klein department store, and Sears, Roebuck & Co. of amounts totaling $30,000 by failure to distribute handbills as specified by the contract between the two defendants and the stores.

Store Manager Testifies.

The jury, which was selected during the morning session of court, heard the testimony of Clarence Haake, manager of the Wieboldt store at Belmont and Lincoln avenues, before court adjourned for the day.

Haake testified that Claremont appeared at his store in December, 1931, to solicit the job of distributing handbills for the Wieboldt company. Haake said he finally contracted with Claremont for the distribution of the handbills in January, 1932, and that Claremont held the job until December, 1933, when it was discovered that only a small part of the literature announcing sales of the store was actually being distributed to the residents in the territory.

The alleged fraud was discovered, Haake testified on Dec. 14, 1933, when he passed the home of William Ewerling, 2953 North Ashland avenue, a driver for the Claremont company. He discovered, he testified, 36,000 circulars on a wagon which should have been distributed the previous day.

Driver to Tell Story.

Ewerling, who is expected to tell how the handbills which were not distributed were sold for old paper, was called to the witness stand as the next prosecution witness just before court adjourned.

Attorney Samuel A. Hoffman, who represents Claremont, did not give any indication during his examination of the jurors as to what defense will be offered by the head of the distributing company and his manager.

COUNCIL ADOPTS TAX LEVY OF 124 MILLIONS FOR CITY AND SCHOOLS

A tax levy of $124,168,032 for operations of the city and board of education in 1934 was adopted yesterday by unanimous vote of the city council. The only argument was precipitated by the omission of a levy for the city's working cash fund, which amounted to $2,400,000 last year. The advisability of passing this levy will be considered later. Its inclusion would boost the 1934 tax bill to approximately $3,500,000 above the 1933 levy.

The board of education will require $57,726,910, as compared with $56,271,731 last year despite a cut of $1,000,000 in the educational levy. The principal reason for this is an increase in the building needs from $2,441,569 to $4,000,000 to finance completion of several schools included in the federal public works program. A charge of $689,984 is made for textbooks, an item trimmed out of the 1933 budget.

The city's levy of $66,441,122, without including the cash fund, compares with the $68,830,730 levy presented last year. Reductions of $932,000 in corporate and bond redemption levies were offset by increases of $946,000 for fire and police pension funds.

Mary Miles Minter Sued Over Row in Dress Shop

Hollywood, Cal., April 2.—[Special.]—Hilda Deesy, Hungarian actress who also is a gown shop proprietress, today sought a complaint against Mary Miles Minter, retired film star, charging disturbance of the peace. Miss Deesy charged that Miss Minter "tore up patterns, knocked over models and nearly wrecked my shop." Miss Minter charged that a dress had been made out of her material, "but had been sold to some one else." She said she had filed suit against Miss Deesy.

14,528 DRIVERS RECEIVE TICKETS, ONLY 140 FINED

Police Records Indicate Trafic Ticket Fixing.

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicago's fifty-two motorcycle policemen, during the first three months of the year, gave tickets requiring their appearance in the Trafic court to 14,528 motorists. Of those motorists who appeared when their cases were called only 140 received fines, according to police records.

"Are tickets being 'fixed'?" Capt. David Flynn of the police trafic division was asked.

"Let the records speak for themselves," he replied. "The books show the policemen filed the charges with the court."

The same question was asked of Judge Joseph H. McGarry, who has been sitting in the Trafic court since Feb. 26.

"I've noted the conditions you've mentioned during the thirty days I've been on this bench," said the judge, "and I've launched an investigation that should prove interesting. From my brief observation I'd estimate that 90 per cent of the motorists who receive tickets for trafic violations try to fix their cases.

Orders Warants.

"They are so busy trying to get a 'fix' or are so lacking in respect for motorcycle policemen and for the Trafic court, that only about 30 per cent of the defendants are here when the speeding cases are called. I have ordered bench warrants to issue for the arrest of those who fail to respond to summonses, but this flooded the clerks with work and they are now six weeks behind."

Of the 140 fines mentioned heretofore, Judge McGarry imposed 103 and Judge N. J. Bonelli penalized an even dozen. The others were handed down in the Boys' court or in the south Chicago branch.

The 14,528 arrests by city motorcycle police during the first three months of this year included 4,921 for speeding, 3,668 for improper lights, 2,137 for running through stop signs or signals, and 706 for violating regulations in passing street cars.

List of Fines Imposed.

The 140 fines imposed against those who responded to their summonses included 91 speeding cases, 23 charges of operating a truck without the name of the owner on the vehicle, 14 for truck drivers operating without chauffeurs' licenses, and 8 for operating a truck without a rear view mirror. These were the charges that drew the most penalties, although the truck operators entered pleas of guilty while the vast majority of private car operators got dismissals.

"Two honest and hard working motorcycle police, operating with backing from the court and without interference from fixers could probably do more to curb reckless driving than the entire constabulary and judiciary is doing now," said Joseph J. Cavanagh, manager of the Chicago Motor club. "Judge McGarry will be performing a public service if he is able to correct conditions."

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday, including those for 1933, were $1,665,381, making a total of $197,500,000 collected since enforcement of the Ferguson-Stamps act began April 20, 1932. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1930.	1929.
April 2	$ 10,706	$ 32,772
Uncollected	14,787,139	20,765,000
	1932.	1931.
April 2	$ 61,042	$ 180,647
Uncollected	65,000,105	68,000,000

The day's collection of 1929 real estate taxes totaled $265,9011; of 1931 personal property taxes, $94,831, and of 1929 personal property taxes, $315,937.

FIX EXEMPTIONS IN SUNDAY HOURS OF LIQUOR SALES

The city's liquor ordinance was amended yesterday by the city council to exempt drug stores, restaurants, hotels, clubs, delicatessens, cigar stores, and hardware stores from the Sunday closing hours imposed on those who are engaged in the sale of liquor. Under the amendment, these businesses will be permitted to engage in activities other than selling liquor. The Saturday night saloon closing hour is 2 a. m. Sunday, while Sunday hours are 1 p. m. to midnight. The inclusion of hardware stores was a whimsical afterthought of Ald. John J. Grealis [44th] and Ald. John A. Maasen [48th].

J. M. Braude, assistant director of the state department of finance, yesterday issued a warning to all wholesale and retail liquor dealers purchasing goods which do not carry the state tax stamp on the bottle. The Illinois liquor control act provides confiscation for failure of dealers to observe this requirement, said Mr. Braude.

MRS. ROOSEVELT SEES NO CHANCE FOR REVOLUTION

Changes, Yes, but Bloodshed Believed Remote.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—Inside the White House Mrs. Roosevelt was telling the newspaperwomen this morning that there is very little chance for revolution. "I mean real revolution by force" in a country where "the people can register their desires in a peaceful way."

Outside the White House, upwards of 50,000 persons were, for this one day in the year, taking peaceful possession of the place they loan their President. It was the Easter Monday egg-rolling ceremony, dedicated to children of all creeds and colors, but cluttered up with adults who insist upon tagging along.

Inside, Mrs. Roosevelt was observing: "You may bring about great changes. But you get a Marie Antoinette type of revolution of bloodshed only when there is great oppression, when a large level of people are in desperate want, and when there is real inability on the part of many to register their wishes."

Thousands of Happy Children.

Outside the scarlet-coated marine band was playing, the fountain was spouting in the sunlight, and hundreds, or was it thousands, of youngsters were running up tiny slopes, rolling deep purple, bright orange eggs down and tumbling after them.

Into the press conference then walked the ghost of Dr. William A. Wirt, Gary educator, who has charged that brain trusters had declared "Roosevelt is only the Kerensky of this revolution." A newspaper woman, with a giggled explanation that "I don't suppose you'll answer this question," then asked it:

"If the President is Kerensky, then who are you?"

"Why—er," with a laugh, "Mrs. Kerensky, I guess."

"Kerensky was a bachelor," piped up a lady who had "read it in the papers."

"No, he wasn't. I met his granddaughter, or was it his grand-niece," mused Mrs. Roosevelt.

"Families of Famous Vanish."

There was a lot of conversation, a lot of contradiction. Out of it came this reflection from Mrs. Roosevelt:

"It's curious and interesting how in history there is always just one figure who counts. The families of the famous disappear like so many leaves in a wind."

Then she dug deep in her bag, pulled out a newspaper clipping of a recently published parody on the Wirth charges. As she read it the newspaper gals shrieked with laughter, especially when she came to the part about the President being whisked away, and in his place was put a big black bear wearing Russian boots.

About that time, out on the lawn, a magician was whisking tiny white rabbits out of children's clothes.

Adjourn to Lawn.

These tricks brought Mrs. Roosevelt and her press conference out on to the lawn.

Whereupon the magician turned to a tall young man next to him, asking him to be the super in the show. The young man said "No, thanks," and joined a tiny little boy in a blue suit and sweater; a slightly taller little girl with yellow hair and her front teeth missing.

"Who's that boy?" the magician asked.

"That's John," the bystander replied.

"John Roosevelt?"

A momentarily mortified magician regained his calm; tried to persuade John to let white rabbits be taken from his coat. John declined. So the magician pulled a purple egg out of Buzzie's mouth [he was the lad in blue]. Then Magician Thurston produced a bunny from Buzzie's sweater. It was handed over to Sistie, the girl with the front teeth gone; and a second rabbit obligingly leaped out of Buzzie's sweater.

Two Bandits Get $1,000, Using Wrench as Pistol

Reginald Martin, 8229 Calumet avenue, assistant manager of the Household Finance corporation branch at 6856 South Halsted street, was robbed of $1,000 by two bandits who met him as he returned from a bank with the company's money yesterday. Halting him near the office, one of the men prodded Martin in the back with what he supposed to be a revolver. Martin raised his hands and the cash was taken from his pocket. As the men fled on foot the victim saw that the "revolver" was a monkey wrench.

NEW 'PERPETUAL G. A. R. MEMORIAL' TRIED IN AURORA

The establishment of a "perpetual memorial" system for civil war veterans was announced yesterday by Commander F. W. Lord of the Aurora post of the Grand Army of the Republic. Commander Lord said he and five other men who fought in the union army hope to see the idea spread through the country. Blanks have been distributed to Aurora school children to gather data on civil war veterans in various families and their direct descendants. Records of the information will be kept in the Aurora G. A. R. building and the names of succeeding generations of children will be added to each veteran's family record.

NEW YORK SEES FIRST RUSSIAN SHIP SINCE '17

Soviet Boat Has Club for Crew Members.

New York, April 2. — [Special.]— The modern soviet freighter Kim arrived in port today with a clubroom for the crew, the same food for officers and sailors, and a disciplinary system which makes the captain answerable to his men.

It was the first Russian ship to arrive in New York in seventeen years and the first ever to fly the blood-red, star-hammer-and-sickle flag of the soviet in this port.

The crew, whose quarters are on the upper deck instead of in the forcastle, has the same menu as the officers and is served in an adjacent dining room and clubroom, which is fitted with a radio, piano, library and other devices for education and entertainment.

"Ahead to Revolution."

On a red banner extending from one side of the room to the other is inscribed in English, German and Russian: "Ahead to world revolution!"

The same room contains a large bulletin board on which members of the crew may post any suggestions they have concerning the conduct of the ship as well as any protests against the captain's orders. Although Capt. August Upmal can enforce discipline at sea, he is summoned before the local workers' council if a complaint is filed against him when he returns to port.

Two Stewardesses Aboard.

Included in the 37 crew members and officers of the ship are a doctor and two stewardesses — two sturdy, grinning Russian girls in short dresses and aprons—an unusual addition to a freighter's crew. The wireless operator was the only one on board able to speak English.

The 10,000 ton, Diesel-engined motorship left Odessa on March 10, carried 6,500 tons of mixed cargo, including chalk, mica, cement, nickel, fuller's earth and 300 barrels of red and white Caucasian wine.

GARY BOY, HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETE, SHOT TO DEATH

Albert Anderson, a basketball player and track athlete of the Emerson High school in Gary, was shot in the heart and killed yesterday in a schoolboy quarrel in some woods east of Gary.

Anderson, with two fellow students, Julius Thompson, 17 years old, and Wilbur Marcotte, 16 years old, had taken advantage of a school holiday to go hiking. Anderson returned Sunday from Indianapolis, where on the previous day he had won his event, a dash, in the state high school track meet at Butler university fieldhouse.

On the New York Central right of way a mile east of Gary the three boys met two smaller boys, who complained to them that another group of older boys had taken a .22 caliber rifle from them. They set out to find the older boys, and were joined by Alxes Odinsky and Albert Popadich, both 13 years old and students at Froebel High school in Gary.

The five located four other boys, firing their rifles in the grove. The boys with the rifles fled at their approach. A chase of half a mile followed, at the end of which the fugitives turned and fired their rifles at their pursuers. Anderson dropped, mortally wounded. The boys with the rifles then escaped.

GIRL, 8, BURNED BY BLAST; SAVES SELF IN PUDDLE

Susanne Peck, 8 years old, 145 Oxford road, Kenilworth, daughter of David D. Peck, president of several paper companies, was severely burned about the face and hands yesterday when a playmate tossed a lighted match into a gasoline pipe line. She saved herself from more serious injury by throwing herself face downward in a water puddle.

The girl and several playmates, among them Robert Wetterer, 10 years old, 220 Raleigh road, Kenilworth, son of Dr. Frederic J. Wetterer, were playing around a pipe leading to an underground gasoline reservoir near the Peck home.

One of the children removed the cap of the pipe and Robert, it was said, threw the match down the pipe. Then, while the children were standing over the pipe, a sudden flame shot out and ignited Susanne's hair and clothing. Accompanied by Robert, she ran to the puddle. She was taken to the Evanston hospital.

COUNTY BOARD SEATS SOUGHT BY SIX WOMEN

Four Are on Tickets of Regular Parties.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Four women candidates for the county board are on the slates of the regular party organizations for the April 10 primary and two more are running with the backing of an independent group.

Indorsed by the Democratic county central committee are Mrs. Elisabeth A. Conkey, Miss Mary McEnerney and Mrs. Lucy Mary Palermo. The regular Republican candidate, only woman on the G. O. P. county committee's slate, is Mrs. Rena Elrod, former member of the legislature. Mrs. Rena Campbell of Winnetka and Miss Annetta Dieckman are backed by the Newton Jenkins "progressive Republican" group.

Two Veterans in Politics.

Miss McEnerney and Mrs. Conkey were members of the first Woman's Democratic club when it met in a storeroom of the North American building in the days when women were given full suffrage for the first time. Miss McEnerney is completing four years on the county board. Mrs. Conkey is serving her second term as Democratic national committeewoman for Illinois.

"A woman in politics has to remember that it's still a man's world," said Miss McEnerney. "When I went on the county board one of the men told me he'd heard I was a scrapper, and he was surprised to find me quiet. But whenever I wanted to vote 'No,' I voted 'No.' I didn't make a fuss over it, but I quietly stuck to my guns."

A Woman Labor Leader.

Miss McEnerney entered politics after making a name for herself in labor circles. Thirty-two years ago, she said, she worked as a bindery girl. For the last 29 years she has been business agent for the Bindery Women's Union No. 30, having served without pay for the last three years.

"I lived in the stockyards district when I was a child," she said. "My father worked in the stockyards. When I was 10 years old, the eldest of five children, I went to work folding and mailing newspapers for the Livestock World. When I was 14 I quit school and became a regular bindery girl."

Mrs. Conkey Ex-City Official.

Mrs. Conkey's position as city commissioner of public welfare, to which she was appointed by the late Mayor Cermak, ended April 1. If she is elected to the county board, she said, it will not be just another job to her, but one for which she feels herself peculiarly fitted by her work for the city.

"I'm in it only for the service I can render," said Mrs. Conkey. "As commissioner of public welfare I found myself with a small budget, only $21,000. I went to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission and persuaded them to finance a home for homeless unattached women. This is at 5120 South Parkway, and 265 women between 40 and 60 years old are now inmates. I also established several men's shelters."

Mrs. Conkey said she entered club work, which led to politics, when as a young married woman she was left alone much of the time due to her husband's work. He, Charles M. Conkey, is a captain on a lake steamer carrying iron ore.

Third Democratic Candidate.

Mrs. Palermo has been active in Catholic women's clubs and in organizing Italian women's societies. She has done considerable work in providing comfort to aged Italian inmates of county institutions.

Mrs. Elrod, who lives at 4852 Pensacola avenue, represented the 25th district on the northwest side in the legislature for six years, beginning in 1925. She is the wife of Allen M. Elrod, a musician.

Known in the legislature for her speech in favor of the boxing bill and her two hour speech in defense of women on juries, Mrs. Elrod is a picturesque figure in politics. She said that she was drafted for the Republican county board ticket, but added: "but I honestly believe that my work in the legislature and 20 years in the city as a volunteer welfare worker fit me for the task of county commissioner."

SEEKING ALIMONY

Betty Randolph Sweinhart.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

New York, April 2.—[Special.]—Betty Randolph, former Follies girl, explained in court today her need for "adequate alimony" from Paul Sweinhart, theatrical advertising man.

"I pay $250 a month rent for my penthouse at 150 East 50th street, but I've had to sell almost all I possess to maintain my home," she said.

"For my Rolls Royce town car I got only a fraction of the cost. I sold a $25,000 bracelet for $100 recently. A gold Tiffany table set that cost $3,000 went for $50.

"Until recently I had four fur coats that cost between $4,000 and $5,000 each. Now I have only one. I had two other bracelets that cost $40,000 and $20,000, but I have neither now."

Sweinhart pleaded inability to pay alimony and asserted that his last weekly wage amounted to $35. He denied that he had deserted his wife, insisting that she locked the doors on him. The court reserved decision.

1,500 AT RALLY OF DEMOCRATIC WOMEN'S CLUB

More than 1,500 members of the Illinois Woman's Democratic club attended the primary luncheon of the club in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel yesterday and heard party candidates for county offices urge them to roll up a big Democratic vote in the April primary. Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey presided.

Mayor Kelly was applauded when he spoke briefly before departing for a meeting of the city council. He pointed out that the November election will be the first since President Roosevelt has been in office, and that a big Democratic vote in the primary will show support of the President and a weak showing will indicate that the county is not behind him.

Michael L. Igoe, candidate for congressman at large, suggested that women owe a great deal to the Democratic party. It was during a Democratic administration in Illinois that they were given limited suffrage and during Woodrow Wilson's administration that they were given full suffrage, he said.

"Not until President Roosevelt was in power did any one at Washington have any idea of the general welfare of America, the ordinary man and woman who wants an opportunity to earn an honest dollar to live," he said.

Council Starts Move for Lower Car Fares

The city council yesterday instructed the corporation counsel to institute proceedings before the Illinois commerce commission to obtain reduction in fares of the Chicago Surface Lines, Chicago Rapid Transit company, and Chicago Motor Coach company. Underlying the council order is the effort to obtain a revaluation of the transit properties, this being a prerequisite to any fixing of rates. The order was introduced by Ald. James B. Bowler (25th), chairman of the council's local transportation committee.

SIMPSON CALLS PRIMARY RIVAL A 'POOR SPORT'

Congressman Replies to Ralph E. Church.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Congressman James Simpson Jr. of the Tenth Illinois district made public yesterday a letter he wrote to Ralph E. Church, his opponent in the Republican primary one week from today.

The congressman is in Washington and in his letter he took exception to a telegram from Church challenging him to debate in which Church declared Simpson has been in Chicago a "large part of the time since congress convened."

After branding that assertion as "false and misleading" and saying that during this session he has made only three "flying trips" to Chicago because of critical illness in his family, Simpson expressed his opinion of Church, among other things calling him a "poor sport, wholly lacking in the American spirit of fair play." Then he took up Church's record.

Recalls Vote on Repeal.

"Instead of suggesting that I neglect my congressional duties," read the letter to Church, "you should explain to the people why you betrayed them when you were a member of the legislature by voting against the repeal of the state search and seizure law after the voters of the state by referendum had instructed their representatives to vote for repeal."

The congressman directed attention to the fact that the Illinois Supreme court rejected Church's claim on the nomination two years ago.

"Under the circumstances," he continued, "I refuse to lend myself to your scheme that I furnish an audience to listen to your misrepresentations.

Charges Betrayal of Party.

"Your action suggests the propriety of your telling the Republicans of this district whether you intend to abide by the result of the primary on April 10.

"If you claim to be a real Republican I call upon you to retract the falsehoods that you circulated in the last election when you betrayed the Republicans and did all in your power to help the Democrats in the Tenth district. I also demand that you tell the people your real reason for betraying them when a member of the state legislature and whether you now plan to betray the 'drys' or the 'wets' if you should ever again be elected to legislative office."

GOVERNOR CUTS PATRONAGE FROM BALKY SENATORS

Punishes Foes of Gas Tax Diversion.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

According to reports from Springfield yesterday, Gov. Horner is "cracking down" on Democratic members of the state senate who revolted against his bill for gasoline tax diversion for schools at the third special session of the legislature last week. The punishment, it was said, consisted of shearing the recalcitrant Democrats of their patronage.

The bill passed with the scant constitutional majority of 26 votes, but the roll call was eight votes shy of the number needed for passage with the emergency clause attached. The roll call showed four Democrats against the bill, one voting present and five absent or not voting.

A Matter of Politics.

When Gov. Horner was asked about the reports he declared that it was merely a "matter of politics" and that some of the senators had "acted abominably" in connection with the school legislation. Further than this he would not comment.

At his home in Tuka Senator W. L. Finn said five of his constituents had been removed from public jobs because he had voted against the gas tax diversion proposal. Senator Carl Behrman of Peoria said several of his friends had been removed from jobs since he had voted "no."

In the 30th senatorial district of Senator Martin B. Lohmann of Pekin fourteen state employes were reported to have been discharged. Lohmann declined to comment. The fourth member who openly flouted the governor was Senator H. S. Burgess of Fairfield.

No Jobs to Start With.

"I didn't have any jobs to start with," said Burgess, "so I couldn't lose any. I haven't heard yet what my penalty is to be."

In addition to these Democratic senators who voted against the administration program the following failed to support it by either not voting or being absent: W. E. C. Clifford, Champaign; L. C. Sieberns, Gridley; Mark Penick, Quincy; H. C. Stuttle, Litchfield; James Monroe, Collinsville, and J. S. Mundy, Marshall.

The bill will be considered by the lower house when the legislature reconvenes April 17. The legislation would divert a third of the motor fuel tax, or approximately $10,000,000, to the state common school fund. The state and each county and city would contribute a third of its 1 cent share of the 3 cent gas tax for the schools.

Another Bill Before Horner.

Another bill, providing for a diversion of the state liquor taxes to the schools, has passed both houses and is pending before the governor for his signature or veto. The Chicago division of the Illinois State Teachers' association, with 9,000 members, has asked that the schools obtain the liquor revenue.

"The governor should be told that the people of the state want him to sign this bill," read an association bulletin tacked up in the Chicago schools yesterday. "Every school should send him a letter or telegram urging him to sign house bill 107 [liquor tax diversion]. Every teacher should get his friends outside the school system to write the governor urging him not to nullify any action of the general assembly which might help the schools."

Gov. Horner has been opposed to diversion of liquor revenues on the ground that this would throw the state budget out of balance. The bill has been pushed by Republican members of the legislature.

$1,000,000 OF 1932 SCHOOL WARANTS TO BE CALLED APRIL 10

School Auditor Harry Brackett announced yesterday that a call would be issued April 10 for the redemption of $1,000,000 worth of 1932 educational fund tax anticipation warrants. This will be the first retirement of warrants from the collection of 1932 taxes which have been turned over to the school board by County Treasurer McDonough.

The school board has issued $35,073,000 worth of 1932 educational fund warants. Of this amount the city treasury holds $5,619,000 of the securities, which were purchased in order to give the school employes pay days in cash. The 1932 educational fund tax levy amounted to $38,607,000.

The warants bear 6 per cent interest.

U. S. WILL SPEND 12 MILLION TO AID RURAL SCHOOLS

Washington, D. C., April 2.—(AP)—The federal government is prepared to advance a maximum of $12,372,650 to keep rural schools open in seventeen states until the end of the term.

Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, said tonight the money would be spent to employ teachers in school districts that had used all their available local resources to remain open.

The exact amounts to be granted the states will be determined jointly by special field auditors of the Federal Emergency Relief administration, the state superintendents of schools, and the state emergency relief administrators.

FIVE SUBURBS VOTE TODAY ON LIQUOR ISSUE

Voting on the wet and dry question will take place today in Oak Park, Evanston, River Forest, Winnetka, and Glencoe. The indications are that all will poll a big vote against the possible advent of saloons. Village elections are scheduled but are not receiving as much attention as the liquor issue. Under the state law the sale of liquor will automatically become legal on May 10 in those communities which do not ban it by ballot before that time. Three unincorporated sections of the county, No Man's Land, just south of Kenilworth; the Indian Hill section west of Kenilworth, and an area west of Glencoe will vote on the question April 10.

LEWIS ASSERTS FOREIGN DEBTS STAND AS BEFORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] arose in the senate today to voice a warning to his colleagues against what he termed a growing impression that congress will vest in President Roosevelt the power to negotiate a compromise of settlement of foreign debts.

"The recent offer of Germany to the secretary of state to make a token payment upon its debt doubtlessly was inspired by a feeling which has been given some encouragement abroad that the secretary of state or the President may be empowered to make some settlement of such a debt," said Senator Lewis.

"The theory is that such power may be given the President in order that he may request reciprocity in the form of some tarif concession or a surrender by the foreign nations of their tarif policies which heretofore have reared barriers against American products.

"Any nation entertaining that assumption may be assured that it is an illusion. There is no justification for the charge that it is the intention of the President or this administration to ignore the fact that congress has voted against the cancelation or limitation of foreign indebtedness."

COUNTY BOARD PICKS A GRAND JURY IN STYLE

Selects 23 Names First Time in 60 Years.

In hushed solemnity thirteen county commissioners gathered yesterday around a foot square oaken box in the county board rooms. The box contained the names of 1,000 prospective grand jurors as compiled by the jury commissioners. With a deft motion the box was spun on its frame.

County Commissioner William A. Busse reached in and drew out a white card bearing the name of Ernest H. Johnson, a railroad foreman, 11341 Parnell avenue. In alphabetical order the hands of Busse's colleagues dipped into the box until 23 cards had been drawn.

Thus the county board selected a Cook county grand jury for the first time in 60 years. Since 1874, when a jury commission was created by the legislature, the grand jurors had been selected by the members of this commission instead of by the county board members.

Yesterday's special meeting of the board for the grand jury selection was called under an order of Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court who acted in compliance with a new amendment to the state grand jury law.

Ancient Records Consulted.

The board voted to select the names from the jury commissioners' box after two hours of wrangling over procedure under Chief Justice Finnegan's order. Three lawyers and several yellowed volumes of ancient board records were consulted before a plan was adopted.

The conference was opened by Commissioner Charles H. Weber with the jesting suggestion: "Let me pick the grand jury. I'm having a ward meeting tonight and can get 23 precinct captains who would serve gladly." He was ignored.

The yellowed volumes of more than 60 years ago disclosed the method of former boards. In those days each commissioner wrote two names on a slip of paper. The slips were then placed in a hat and drawn out until the necessary number of grand jurors was reached.

"Fine," said Commissioner Maurice F. Kavanagh. "I'll lend my derby for the drawing."

Busse Gives a Warning.

"Just a minute," broke in Commissioner Busse, a veteran of more than thirty years' service. "I remember hearing about those days. It was common talk then that there was only one body in the county higher than the county board—the grand jury—and the board selected that. The jury commission was created in 1874 because the old law was abused and in the '80s several members of a board were indicted."

These remarks ended the hat drawing proposal. Assistant State's Attorneys William Tuohy and Arthur Woll and Attorney Cornelius J. Harrington suggested selection of the names from the box of the jury commission.

Get Attorneys' Approval.

Before the board members huddled about the box they asked the attorneys to assure them the procedure was legal. It was pointed out that perhaps the board should not make the selection from the list prepared by the jury commissioners.

"I have assurance that this procedure is legal from these attorneys and from judges of the Criminal court," said Emmett Whealan, president of the county board.

"Before we begin it might be well to explain why we are making the selection. The Illinois Supreme court, in a recent decision, on which a rehearing is pending, held the former method illegal because the jury commissioners sent names of 100 prospective jurors to the Criminal court clerk, from which twenty-three men were selected. The high court held that only twenty-three names should be sent.

Amendment Under Attack.

"Further, it was discovered that the legislature amended the grand jury law to give the county board the duty of selection. A bill has been drawn to invalidate the amendment on the ground that such selection might be abused by some board in the future and because it is cumbersome."

Commissioner Frank Kasper pointed out that the twenty-three men chosen might not be available for duty for various reasons. Attorneys replied that the law provides that sixteen men may constitute a grand jury, so a jury could be impaneled with seven men failing to appear.

The drawing was begun and was completed in five minutes. Clerks took the names, which were turned over to the sheriff's office so that the jurors might be notified.

The jurors will not sit until April 23 because the amended law provides that an order for a new grand jury must be entered twenty days before the appearance of the grand jury. An allowance of three days was made for the board's selection.

JAILED FOR SHIRT THEFT.

William Behrens, 20 years old, 46 East Elm street, formerly an inmate of the St. Charles school for boys, was sentenced to 60 days in the Bridewell by Judge Hayes in Boys' court yesterday on a charge of stealing 15 shirts from a downtown store.

JUDGES APPROVE 2 NEW PLANS TO CLEAR DOCKETS

Each Will Get Four Cases a Day.

Judges assigned to the Criminal courts yesterday adopted two new plans to speed the disposition of cases pending on their crowded dockets. At the same time Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan directed the attention of his colleagues to the opportunity of cleaning up the dockets which presents itself because Cook county will have no grand jury until April 23.

The first plan adopted by the judges at their "pep" meeting, provides that each judge shall have a complete docket each day, including at least four cases ready for trial. The judge will decide which cases will go on trial and the remainder will go to Chief Justice Finnegan to be held on reserve.

One Judge in Reserve.

Immediate assignment of the reserve cases will be given to any judge who, during the day, notifies the chief justice that he is without a trial. This often happens when for various reasons a trial is interrupted or a continuance is necessary. Instead of remaining idle throughout the rest of the day, judges who find themselves in this situation will immediately be given another case.

To prevent these reserve trials from piling up in the office of the chief justice, one judge will be held in readiness to hear them as fast as possible. He will be given no other duties, according to the plan. He will also be available when a change of venue is requested.

The other plan provides for the establishment of a card index system of the various types of crimes pending on the criminal call. This system would be put into effect and kept up to date in the clerk's office.

Watch Prevalent Crimes.

Thus, it was explained, judges will be able to tell at a glance just what type of crime is most prevalent. Under this plan if burglaries or automobile thefts, for instance, seem to be increasing the judges will be able to make an example of the cases before them as a warning to others.

There were only 897 cases pending yesterday, Chief Justice Finnegan reported, as compared to 770 cases two weeks ago. The decrease was attributed by the chief justice to a greater spirit of coöperation among the judges and a willingness to work toward clearing the dockets.

In reference to the delay in the grand jury work, the chief justice pointed out that although a great number of cases will have accumulated when the new jury is sworn in, they will be new and therefore should be disposed of easily.

Seized as Suspected Mail Box Thief in Evanston

George Bradford, 38 years old, 1405 14th street, Freeport, Ill., was arrested in an automobile in front of 900 Michigan avenue, Evanston, by Sergt. Anton Schultz last night. Another man got away. In Bradford's pockets police found a letter addressed to Mrs. Irene Marqua, 820 Judson avenue, Evanston, and a magazine addressed to 914 Michigan avenue. He could not explain their possession. Police said they suspect him to be a mail box thief.

CHARGES DANCER KIDNAPED HER TO FORCE MARRIAGE

Los Angeles, Cal., April 2.—(AP)—Marjorie Crawford, aviatrix and film player, appeared at the district attorney's office today and accused R. C. "Danny" Dowling, former dancing partner of Joan Crawford, of kidnaping her from her home last Friday and taking her to Arizona in an attempt to force her to marry him.

Her charges were strenuously denied at Yuma, Ariz., by Dowling, who was held in jail there pending investigation of the case.

He said they had known each other several months, and planned to be married, and that she had accompanied him of her own free will. Dowling asserted he was unaware his attentions had been anything but welcome.

Tells Authorities Her Story.

The 28 year old aviatrix, the former wife of William Wellman, film director, and former wife of Cecil C. Crawford, came to the district attorney's office smartly attired in a form hugging brown dress with matching brown straw hat.

"Dowling came to my home, took my pistol, and forced me to accompany him in an automobile," she said.

"He told me repeatedly he would kill me if I tried to get away or warn anybody. At Indio he told a man we were going to Yuma to get married.

"He took me to a Yuma hotel. I became ill and prevailed upon him to call a doctor. When the doctor arrived I tried to tip him off, but didn't get a chance.

"I kept drinking hot water to make myself sick so I could stall it off for a time until the courthouse would be closed [noon Saturday] and the marriage couldn't take place.

Refuses to Sign License.

"Some time during the morning Dowling called what I thought was the marriage license bureau. A woman I believed to be the clerk from the bureau came up with a license, but I told her I was too ill to sign it.

"After the woman left I agreed to go through with the marriage and asked Dowling to go to a drug store for some cosmetics so I could fix up a bit. He locked the door and went away.

"I immediately telephoned the hotel clerk and he released me from the room and gave me another room. When Dowling came back the police arrested him."

KILLS 4TH WIFE; GETS DEATH.

Albuquerque, N. M., April 2.—(AP)—Carl Wickman, Denver druggist, was sentenced tonight to the electric chair June 8 for murdering his fourth wife, Donalda Chicoine Wickman.

Pick Wrong Victim

David Eversole, 38 years old, 2727 Bonfield street, a Pinkerton watchman, shot and killed a young Negro who attempted to rob him in front of 1641 Lake street early today.

The watchman was patroling his beat when the Negro and another man, also colored, seized him. Eversole shouted that he was armed and would shoot if they didn't desist. They refused to heed his warning and he drew his gun.

He shot the nearest man in the face, killing him. The second man fled. The slain Negro was identified as John Hill, 28 years old, 2124 Maypole avenue.

TWO GIRL WORLD TRAVELERS TO BE CLUB'S GUESTS

Mrs. Leila Roosevelt Denis and Miss Edna Olmsted, globe trotters, who arrived in Chicago yesterday near the finish of their trip around the world in a one and a half ton truck, will relate tales of far-away lands this evening at a dinner to be given in their honor by members of the Adventurers' club.

The young women were pulled out of the mud in Turkey twenty times in eight days, broke three bridges, and were stranded in an Australian desert without water. Upon landing in San Francisco Mrs. Denis, who is a relative of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, fell and broke her arm, and her fellow traveler received a black eye from a fall.

The young women were greeted by Mayor Kelly yesterday upon their arrival, and are the guests of Col. T. E. Siqueland. They will leave for New York on Wednesday.

LEND 7½ MILLION TO REBUILD COAST QUAKE DAMAGES

Long Beach, Cal., April 2.—(AP)—Sums aggregating $7,493,211 have been lent to individuals, school districts, and municipalities whose buildings were damaged in the March 10, 1933, earthquake, it was revealed in figures from the United Rehabilitation corporation made public today. As a result of the loans many of the scars of that disaster have been effaced from the towns of Long Beach, Huntington Park, Inglewood, Compton, and Southgate as well as Los Angeles.

Much of the work has been financed by the federal government through the U. F. C., a nonprofit organization formed to perform unusual functions.

The first function held in the recently opened "Million Dollar Room" in the Union League club, which is papered with worthless securities, was a party yesterday in honor of the 76th birthday of George Bartlett, hailed by his friends as the dean of cement salesmen in the United States. Mr. Bartlett left his sales position with the Universal Atlas Cement company several years ago, and now holds an advisory position with the Portland Cement association. He told his host, B. F. Affleck, that his ambition is to reach the age of 100.

ALICE BRADY IS GUARDED AFTER PHONE THREATS

Slips Out of House in Tears.

Hollywood, Cal., April 2.—[Special.]—Following a telephoned threat to manager of a local theater asking "how much will it be worth to you to make sure that your star will appear?" the district attorney's office and city police today threw a cordon of guards around the home of Alice Brady. They assigned her a motorcycle guard on the way from her Hollywood home to her theater in downtown Los Angeles.

Miss Brady was in tears as she slipped from her home into a sedan which was manned by an armed chauffeur and two guards. She was whisked to the Biltmore theater to open her coast stage appearance in "Biography," however, without incident.

Miss Brady is the second actress to be placed under permanent guard by the local district attorney's office, Mae West having passed the last 48 hours under constant surveillance of two armed officers. In Miss West's case she received several anonymous messages threatening to throw acid on her face.

Miss Brady said that she knew of no reason why any person should wish to molest her, and said, "If this was intended as a joke it is a joke of the cruelest kind."

In opinion of police the threat was that of a crank, or a racketeer who wished to cash in on the confusion he created.

NAZIS ENCOURAGE PAGANISM, POPE WARNS GERMANS

Backs Catholics' Fight on Hitlerite Demands.

COLOGNE, Germany, April 2.—(AP)—Pope Pius' support for the resistance which German Catholic Youth organizations have made to Nazi demands was indicated in an Easter message he sent Youth leaders in which Nazi propaganda was criticized as "pointing away from Christ back into paganism."

His message, conveyed in a letter to leaders and printed today in the Cologne Volkszeitung, a Catholic organ, expressed appreciation for "the unswerving loyalty to the holy church and great sacrifices for religious ideals, despite all hardships through which providence is leading you, and in the face of propaganda working with allurements to a new way of looking at a life which points away from Christ back to paganism."

Pledges Vatican's Support.

Assuring the organizations that they "kept the pledge of love and loyalty to the Savior and His church," his holiness added:

"Let your organizations know that their cause is our cause."

The message was regarded as especially significant here because Vice Chancellor Von Papen now is in Rome, ostensibly to effect peace in the controversy between Catholic Youth leaders and Baldur Von Schirach, leader of the Reich Youth movement, over the disbanding of young people's organizations and their incorporation in the nonsectarian Hitler Youth associations.

Praises Victory Over Socialists.

BREGENZ, Austria, April 2.—(AP)—The "Red shame" of Socialism has been obliterated from Austria's history, Vice Chancellor Emil Fey declared tonight at a mass meeting.

This Easter season, he added, "has become a real season of resurrection from shame, scandal, and moral and economic collapse."

Maj. Fey, the head of the police force and Chancellor Dollfuss' right-hand man, contended that the Dollfuss régime has been victorious in its "two-front fight against Hitlerism and Socialism."

This struggle, he maintained, "has won us the friendship and applause of the whole world; Austria has become a sacred concept not only for Austrians but for the whole German people—the German future will perhaps be decided not in Berlin but in Austria."

Miami Doctor Files Claim Against Cermak's Estate

Dr. E. Sterling Nichols of Miami, Fla., yesterday filed a claim for $5,000 against the estate of the late Mayor Cermak with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. Dr. Nichols was one of the physicians who attended Mayor Cermak after he had been shot by an assassin in Miami, during the illness which resulted in his death on March 6, 1933. The claim is for medical services during that period.

ALL-BRAN MADE HIM REGULAR AS CLOCK

Delicious Cereal Corrected His Constipation

We quote from his voluntary and enthusiastic letter: "After reading your advertisement, I decided to use ALL-BRAN. I had been taking pills right along. But now I don't have to take pills.

"I take ALL-BRAN every morning, and am as regular as the clock. It has done me a lot of good."—Stephen Higgins, 51 S. Nein St., South Norwalk, Conn.

Common constipation frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet this condition can be overcome, usually, by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Tests show this delicious cereal provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also rich in iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body it forms a soft mass. Gently this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this safer than taking harmful patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream. Use it also in making fluffy muffins and breads, etc. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Charge Secret Chicago Group Is Active in Cause of Hitler

Charges that 500 Germans, who reside in Chicago and are members of a Chicago unit of the Friends of New Germany, are cooperating in a movement to Hitlerize America, were made yesterday by two men—one a present member of the unit, and the other a former member.

Leaders of the organization, which has headquarters in the Reichshalle at 3559 North Ashland avenue, denied the charges. They said the purpose of the association is merely to promote closer relations between Germans in the United States and in Germany.

The leaders of the Chicago unit, or cell, are Fritz Zeglin, 1257 Winnemac avenue; William Neubert, 3337 North Hoyne avenue, and George Wachtendorf, 2523 Seminary avenue, who is chief of a group of so-called "uniformed storm troopers." Fritz Glasibl, leader of the former Teutonic club in Chicago, is said to be head of the national organization and organizer of the Chicago unit.

The member and former member who revealed what they said were the secrets of the Friends of New Germany demanded the protection of anonymity on the ground that they feared their relatives in Germany would be harassed if their identities became known.

Charge Alliance with Hitler.

The two men charged that the primary purpose of the Friends of New Germany is to "turn over to Hitler's support millions of persons of Aryan descent in America with Hitler as their spiritual leader." The former member charged further that a Nazi dictatorship in the United States is hoped for.

He also asserted that he was expelled from the Chicago unit last September because he violated an alleged rule by applying for American citizenship. Another result of this incident, he averred, was that he was severely beaten by four "storm troopers." He declared that the Chicago organization includes forty storm troopers who drill every Thursday night, and expects to mobilize sixty more.

These "storm troopers," he asserted, will stop at nothing to carry out the orders of their leaders.

The weekly program was outlined by the former member as follows: Mondays, a meeting of the leaders; Tuesday, a secret meeting of all members; Thursdays, secret drills by the storm troopers.

The charges of the former member and the present member were conveyed to leaders of the Friends of New Germany at the Ashland avenue headquarters. Zeglin denied them all, and also another allegation that he was appointed by Glasibl with these instructions: "You are the czar of the Nazis of Chicago. You are the undisputed authority."

Admits Secret Meetings.

Zeglin admitted that regular meetings are conducted secretly, and that as a further precaution for secrecy only the German language is spoken. Asked about the charges made by the ex-member of being beaten by "storm troopers," Zeglin said there had been several fistic disputes at headquarters. He attributed the report of the beating to some such incident.

The Ashland avenue headquarters are generously decorated with Hitler swastika emblems and other Nazi insignia. In one section of the headquarters is a large room, reputedly used by the "storm troopers."

The organization has been at the Ashland avenue address for several months. In January it successfully resisted a demand by residents of the neighborhood that the unit move.

CO-EDS' CLOTHES ARE STOLEN NEAR POLICE STATION

Allene Graham and Rose Mary Johnson, Northwestern university co-eds living in a sorority house at 1870 Orrington avenue, Evanston, last night tearfully reported the theft of four suitcases filled with clothing, valued in all at about $900. The suitcases were in an automobile belonging to Emil Masek, 1640 South 58th court, Cicero, which was stolen from in front of 1005 Diversey parkway, where the three were dining. This is a block from the Sheffield avenue police station.

50,000 Attend Ceremony at St. Peter's.

VATICAN CITY, April 2.—(AP)—Holy year ended today for the Catholics of the world when Pope Pius XI walled up the holy door to St. Peter's. The door will be closed until 1950, the next holy year.

A score of cardinals, hundreds of prelates, and an estimated crowd of 50,000 persons witnessed the ceremony. The pope, wearing an apron and using a trowel of gold, applied mortar on the door sill and then started the wall with three gilded bricks.

Prelates then took turns placing the rest of the bricks until the door, which was opened April 2, 1933, to mark the start of a holy year celebration of the 1,900th anniversary of the passion, death, and resurrection of Christ was closed.

Extends Indulgence Period.

As a mark of reward to the faithful, the pope extended until April 15 the period for the gaining of holy year indulgence. Many pilgrimages are yet to be made to Rome, though some 1,300,000 pilgrims came to the Eternal city during the year.

Among the bishops present at the ceremony today were two Americans, Francis C. Kelley of Oklahoma City and Edward Joseph Kelly of Boise, Idaho.

The portal of St. Peter's, the dome and façade blazed with the golden light of thousands of oil lamps, and rockets soared over Rome tonight as thousands celebrated the canonization of Don Giovanni Bosco, humble priest of Turin, who was created a saint on Easter Sunday. Rain had caused the postponement of the illumination and pyrotechnics last night.

Crowd Cheers Pontif.

In the morning, the ceremonies marking the close of holy year began with a papal procession into the huge basilica. Pope Pius was borne aloft on a portable throne. The vast throng cheered him, crying, "Viva il papa!"

Ceremonies attending Don Bosco's canonization brought a royal convert in the person of Prince Leopold of Prussia, a member of the house of Hohenzollern, prelates announced tonight. Prince Leopold, before entering the royal tribune in St. Peter's abjured the Protestant faith, confessed, and received the sacrament. Prelates said they connected the conversion directly to Don Bosco's influence.

African Prince Loses Japanese "Picture Bride"; Italy Blamed

TOKIO, April 2.—(AP)—Italy's alleged opposition to Japanese connections in Africa caused the cancelation today of the proposed "picture bride" marriage of Lij Araya, an Ethiopian prince, and Miss Masako Kuroda, daughter of the Japanese Viscount Hiroyuki Kuroda.

The prospective bridegroom, who who had made a long distance selection of Miss Kuroda as his bride-to-be, was quoted in dispatches from Addis Ababa as stating that a "certain power" had interfered and the Ethiopian foreign minister said he had notified that country's minister in Rome of the cancelation of the ceremony.

Mussolini Is Displeased.

Vernacular newspapers expressed the opinion that Italy was displeased at the idea of a Japanese wife for a member of a ruling family in Africa because of Premier Mussolini's recent statments of his country's mission on that continent.

Although the newspaper Nichi Nichi published a story from its Ethiopian correspondent giving apparently full reasons for the cancelation of the marriage, the family of Viscount Kuroda announced that it was ignorant of any such move.

At the same time the foreign office and the imperial household here announced that they were never concerned with the projected ceremony and indicated no apparent interest in the cancelation.

However, it had been no secret that high official circles did not approve the plans of the prince and the Japanese girl when they were first revealed.

Officials Object to Union.

Certain officials were said to have objected to the union for reasons of international policy. With Japan engaged in commercial disputes with many countries and mixed up in political matters growing out of the creation of the new Manchurian empire, some quarters viewed the proposed marriage as unwise, at least at this time.

Japanese connections in Africa, these officials admitted, would only arouse suspicions among the great powers that Japan expected to exploit parts of that continent.

FARLEY PROPOSES NEW TRANS-U. S. AIR MAIL ROUTE

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Postmaster General Farley announced in Washington yesterday that the postoffice department will probably ask for air mail bids shortly on a new route which would give the country a fourth transcontinental airway.

The new route, as explained by Mr. Farley, would extend from Boston and New York City to Buffalo, thence to Detroit. There it would divide into two branches. One would include Chicago, Rochester, Minn., and St. Paul, joining there the other branch which would include Detroit, Muskegon, and Milwaukee. From St. Paul the airway would bear north and west to Fargo, N. D.; Miles City, Billings, and Missoula, Mont., and Spokane, Wash., to Seattle.

The three other transcontinental lines—American Airways' Tranconti-nental Air, and United Air Lines—all are south of the proposed new route.

Specifications Mailed Out.

The postoffice department in Washington yesterday mailed to all air transport companies copies of the specifications for bids on temporary three month air mail contracts.

Comment of airway operators in Chicago indicated that many of them feel, despite the denials of postoffice officials, that the specifications have been designed to favor the companies headed by E. L. Cord, friend of the administration. These companies are grouped in the American Airways system.

One puzzling provision in the specifications is that which provides a minimum cruising speed of 110 miles an hour. An independent operator pointed out that this would favor lines using older, slower planes.

Modern Planes Are Faster.

Most of the fast transport planes now in use, such as the Curtiss Condor, the new Douglas and the new Boeing, cruise at 155 to 180 miles an hour. This operator said that most of Cord's lines use tri-motored Stinson planes which cruise at little more than 110 miles an hour. The other large companies fly faster ships.

Because the Stinson is a comparatively light craft, department of commerce regulations permit the use of only one pilot for it, while lines with heavier planes are required to have a pilot and co-pilot for each ship. With this advantage Cord might be able to underbid his competitors, it was pointed out.

Lack of Radio Provisions.

Air operators also feel that the absence in the specifications of definite provisions for the carrying of radio equipment is a blow to the safety of air travel.

On radio equipment the specifications say that air mail bidders must be guided by bulletin 7E of the department of commerce. This bulletin fixes no absolute requirement for radio equipment on passenger carrying planes. It does set limits on the operation of ships which do not carry radio. They may not take off with a ceiling of less than 1,500 feet, nor may they fly through or above clouds.

Thus new air mail bidders, if they operate within these slight limits, may comply with the specifications and not carry radio equipment on their planes at all, even though they plan to carry passengers. They could also present lower bids than the larger companies which are burdened with the cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of radio equipment.

FIGHT NEW DUEL IN FRANCE; HONOR SAVED; NONE HURT

Battle on Stavisky at Old Jousting Ground.

CARCASSONNE, France, April 2.—(AP)—A bloodless pistol duel on an old jousting ground where knighthood once flowered enlivened French politics on this post-Easter holiday.

Outcome of Café Debate.

They took aim twice, fired and missed, then stalked off the field of honor. Their parding, like their meeting, was as chilly as the early morning air. Politics brought the two together. Mistler was a member of the Daladier cabinet which royalists blame for the fatalities in street riots early in February.

An argument in a café Saturday night, during which De Tour called Mistler an "ignoble person," was climaxed when the business man smacked the deputy on the cheek. Cards were then exchanged.

The dueling code was strictly observed. The adversaries, bareheaded, with their coat collars turned up to prevent white shirt fronts from affording a target, fired simultaneously at the command, "Fire, gentlemen!" from the director of combat.

May Meet Again.

Neither scored. Both calmly accepted reloaded weapons and pressed the triggers. Their aim was again poor.

Accompanied by their seconds, the two left the field unreconciled.

"We are both standing by our positions," said De Tour afterward, indicating the possibility of another meeting.

It was the second political duel traced back to the $50,000,000 Stavisky bond scandal, one of the chief causes of the riots. Andre Hesse, a deputy, and John Reinaix, Paris lawyer, emerged unscathed from a meeting Feb. 22. They also took two shots and likewise missed.

Secret Divorce

Mrs. Chester Speakman, who in 1931 got a secret divorce from Herbert Steger, captain of the 1924 University of Michigan football team, filed a petition yesterday before Circuit Judge Walter J. La Buy asking that Steger be required to contribute to the support of their daughter, Phoebe Ann, now 6 years old. Attorney Corwin D. Querns, who filed the petition, told Judge La Buy that at the time of the divorce Steger, now an Oak Park automobile salesman, made an oral agreement outside of court to contribute $25 a week, but that he has since failed to keep up such payments.

St. Louis, April 2.—(AP)—An estranged husband yesterday came from his home in Carbondale, Ill., and gave his blood in a transfusion to save his wife's life. The wife, Mrs. Ruby Wilson, 29, is in a serious condition at a Granite City, Ill., hospital from injuries suffered yesterday.

BRIEFS FILED IN CONTEMPT CASE OF NEWSPAPER

South Dakota Appeal in High Court.

Pierre, S. D., April 2.—(AP)—Arguments in support of contempt charges against the Aberdeen American News were presented to the South Dakota Supreme court today in a brief filed by the attorney general's office and three Aberdeen attorneys.

The brief charges the newspaper's criticism of Circuit Judge Howard Babcock of Sisseton in connection with a forgery case two years ago constituted contempt "of the most violent and vicious character." It asks that the Supreme court uphold the judgment of Circuit Judge J. H. Bottum, who fined the newspaper and James A. Mathews and Homer Anderson, its editor and publisher $200 each and gave the newspaper men suspended sentences of 30 days each.

Right of Appeal Upheld.

The newspaper appealed from the judgment and filed its brief nearly a year ago. Subsequently the Brown County Bar association sought dismissal of the appeal but this motion was recently denied. Attorneys for the newspaper now have 20 days to file a reply brief before the case is scheduled for oral argument.

The brief presented today contends the newspaper printed "inflammatory editorials" concerning the sentence by Judge Babcock of Royal Hause, former Brown county auditor who pleaded guilty to third degree forgery, and compared it to other rulings in which public officials were not involved.

Defense by Newspaper.

The newspaper claimed the allegedly contemptuous articles did not relate to pending actions, since the blame sentence was announced and the fine paid before publication. The respondents, however, contend in their brief that the matter was not closed because final judgment had not been rendered.

THE STORE FOR MEN

20 YEARS AGO

—a rather small advertisement in one of the daily papers carried this simple announcement, "Tonight—The Store for Men will move into its new quarters".

Those few words packed much potent history into a small space for, in reality, they told the men of Chicago, "You have made it necessary for us, through your increasing desire for fine merchandise, to create one of the most outstanding Stores for Men in the country. We thank you for demanding of us, this separate store in a separate building."

Twenty years! Twenty years of progress. Twenty years of change. Twenty years of service. The vision of the men who created this institution was uncanny. Today, the physical properties of this fine store are as smart, as beautiful and as masculinely modern as on the day they were installed.

Styles? Yes, styles have changed materially and to the man who doubts that styles in men's wear have changed much in twenty years we call attention to this reproduction from our opening advertisement in the Spring of 1914. We also call attention to a quaint, unusual and interesting exhibit on our First Floor, of what was smart when this store was opened and what is smart today. The contrast is most interesting.

Quality? Quality has not changed, other than to improve. Over the span of twenty years we have developed fine lines of merchandise that are internationally famous. Today Stanford Williams clothes are regarded as one of the finest products of the tailor's art; Burlington hose and Aristo shoes are daily worn with satisfaction on thousands of feet; Arch Preserver Shoes, Field-Quality shirts, special fold cravats—and scores of other lines of our own merchandise are accepted by well-dressed leaders everywhere.

Such developments take knowledge, skill, unceasing research and effort. And so today, at twenty, The Store for Men stands on the threshold of manhood in its own right.

A young store. A young man's store. But, though only twenty, it has the background and the tradition of eighty—the eighty that have made Marshall Field & Company, as an institution, the success it is today.

POWER TO TAX REACHES AROUND LIMIT OF LAWS

U. S. High Court Upholds Levy on Oleo.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—The Supreme court of the United States today affirmed the right of government to exercise taxing power in attaining by indirection an end which cannot be approached directly because of constitutional limitations. The decision was unanimous.

In a decision written by Justice George Sutherland, the court upheld the constitutionality of a state of Washington statute imposing a tax of 15 cents a pound on oleomargarine sold within that state.

"From the beginning of our government," said Justice Sutherland in the opinion of the court, "the courts have sustained taxes, although imposed with the collateral intent of effecting ulterior ends, which considered apart, were beyond the constitutional power of the law makers to realize by legislation directly addressed to their accomplishment."

How Law Was Attacked.

The constitutional objections raised against the statute by oleomargarine interests in the state of Washington were as follows:

1. That the imposition of the tax has the effect of depriving the complainant of its property without due process of law and of denying it the equal protection of laws, in violation of the 14th amendment.

2. That the tax is not levied for a public purpose, but for the sole purpose of burdening or prohibiting the manufacture, importation, and sale of oleomargarine, in aid of the dairy industry.

3. That the act imposes an unjust and discriminatory burden upon interstate commerce.

4. That it interferes with the power of congress to levy and collect taxes, imposes, and excises.

The court "put aside at once" all of these contentions, except the one relating to due process of law.

Decision Upholds Tax.

"In respect of the equal protection clause, it is obvious that the differences between butter and oleomargarine are sufficient to justify their separate classification for purposes of taxation," the decision stated.

"That the tax is for a public purpose is equally clear, since that requirement has regard to the use which is to be made of the revenue derived from the tax, and not to any ulterior motive or purpose which may have influenced the legislature in passing the act. The act, as considered as a whole, clearly negatives the idea that a burden is imposed upon interstate commerce as the court below held. The tax is confined to sales within the state.

Rules on Business Plea.

"If the tax imposed had been 5 cents instead of 15 cents per pound," the decision added, "no one, probably, would have thought of challenging its constitutionality or of suggesting that under the guise of imposing a tax another and different power had in fact been exercised. If a contrary conclusion were reached in the present case, it could rest upon nothing more than the single premise that the amount of the tax is so excessive that it will bring about the destruction of the appellant's business, a premise which, standing alone, this court has heretofore uniformly rejected as furnishing no juridical ground for striking down a taxing act."

Increase in Gasoline Tax Revenue Is Shown

The state's revenue from gasoline tax collections amounted to $1,947,068 in March, as compared with $1,806,758.82 during March, 1933. In announcing the receipts yesterday J. M. Braude, assistant director of the state department of finance, attributed the increased collections to greater consumption of gasoline and to the activities of the state in eliminating tax evasions by "bootlegging" companies.

Shake off that laxative habit

Physicians Warn Against Irritating Drugs

Medicine-laxatives—no matter how pleasant tasting—can often do untold harm. For most of them work by irritating the delicate membranes of the digestive tract. Soon they lose their force—compel you to take more and more.

That's why more than 50,000 physicians recommend Pluto Water. For Pluto is not a drug or medicine-laxative but a saline mineral water. The same amount each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives positive results in less than one hour. It cannot give you the laxative habit!

Pluto Water is gentle—but speedy. It promptly opens the pylorus valve — permitting the flush to enter the intestines without anxious hours of waiting.

The proper dilution—one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water — is practically tasteless. Take it whenever sluggish—get results within an hour—and end that laxative habit! In two sizes: Splits (8 ounces), 25c—large bottles (3 times the quantity), 50c. At all druggists.

Sneed took the credit for the change on behalf of the organization led by John L. A reflection of the advantages alluded to will appear in every mine worker's home in America."

Hearing Set for April 9.

A public hearing on the industry's code will be held April 9. A report on previous hearings will be given to the operators, some of whom are expected to seize this opportunity for registering their objections to the seven hour day.

In Illinois the base pay of $5 a day was left untouched with the reduction in hours, but the hourly rate was increased to 71.4 cents for skilled inside labor. A rate of $4 a day, and 57.1 cents an hour will be paid to common outside labor.

COAL BOOST PREDICTED.

An increase of 25 cents a ton in the price of coal will be caused by the order for a 35 hour mining week in Illinois, it was said yesterday by A. T. Murphy, editor of Black Diamond, trade publication. Estimates on the added cost range between 22 and 27 cents a ton, he declared.

The price boost will be passed highs to yard owners and others who buy from the coal operators because of a clause in contracts which stipulates that increases in labor costs because of codes may be added to the contract price, Mr. Murphy explained. The consumer is expected to pay the difference to the yard operator.

Trapped by Fire, Carried Down Ladder to Safety

Miss Geraldine Mason, 25 years old, was carried down a fireman's ladder from her third floor room at the Wrightwood Arms hotel at 638 Wrightwood avenue last night when a fire blocked her escape through the door. Grease became ignited while she was cooking and the flames leaped to furnishings. Unable to reach the door, Miss Mason leaned out of the window and shouted for help. A few minutes later truck No. 10 arrived and Fireman Gus Reinke ascended a ladder and made the rescue. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

SNOW 10 FEET DEEP SMOTHERS TOWNS AND ROADS IN NORTHWEST

Denver, Colo., April 2.—(AP)—Howling snowstorms swept across Montana and Wyoming tonight, leaving snowdrifts as high as 10 feet in some cities, grounding airplanes and making highway travel perilous. Snow and freezing temperatures were forecast for Colorado.

J. Kent Kinniburgh, secretary of the Casper, Wyo., chamber of commerce, was killed when his auto overturned on the slippery pavement. James H. Van Zandt, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was injured slightly.

Army air mail ships were grounded at Cheyenne. A United Air Lines passenger plane was flagged down at Laramie and its passengers transferred to an automobile and brought to Cheyenne.

Motor traffic at Great Falls, Mont., was at a virtual standstill, with the highways near Choteau and Power deeply drifted. A northbound bus turned back at Power and reported pulling out 14 stalled motorists between that point and Great Falls, 30 miles east.

EXCURSION TRAIN HITS ENGINE ON BRIDGE; 50 HURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 2.—Women fell to their knees and prayed after a collision today between an excursion train containing 600 passengers and a locomotive on a bridge at Kilburn, a suburb of London. More than 50 persons were injured, 30 of them seriously.

Wreckage from the train crashed over the parapet of the bridge into a highway below. A 224 pound buffer fell in front of a loaded motor coach. The driver swerved the bus to avoid an accident. Another piece of wreckage fell in front of a woman pushing a baby buggy and scalding water from the locomotive poured down around her, but neither she nor the child was injured.

Members of a party on the way to a conference of the Four Square gospel in Albert hall, London, flung themselves to the earth and prayed. They gave thanks that the accident was not more serious.

After being treated for injuries the passengers were taken to London on a special train.

URGE FOREIGN TRADE REVIVAL TO AID RECOVERY

Experts Attack Policy of Isolation.

significant controls would seem to be the next step."

The gold standard and the 59 cent dollar were discussed at length, and at times some speakers wandered far afield into the questions of Philippine independence and of how far tariff making at Washington might act in stirring up the spirit of warfare between nations abroad.

One speaker, George E. Putnam, economist, of Swift & Co. and of the American Institute of Meat Packers, expressing his personal views, said:

"Monetary policy is related to tariff policy—partly because we have tried to make it so. During the 1920 to 1930 decade we went out of our way to confuse the two policies. Not recognizing that our tariff policy was at fault, we tried to adopt a monetary policy that would solve our trade problems. It should be distinctly understood that monetary policy will not solve a trade problem. I am sure that we have not yet learned that lesson.

No Provision for Imports.

"Our recent monetary policy leaves much to be desired. While it is true that devaluation of the dollar raised the prices of our export products to some extent, it should be noted that the policy stimulated our export trade without making any provision for imports. It was in effect the equivalent of higher import duties.

"We have already acquired millions of dollars of imported gold as a result of devaluation—in the same way that France acquired her gold stock after 1927—and we have created a new gold problem. How is our gold accumulation to be redistributed? What benefit can we possibly derive from drawing down the gold reserves of our foreign customers? Here we are face to face with the same problem that confronted us 10 years ago, but we now have it in aggravated form.

"If the gold standard has proved a failure, it is only because of our failure in managing it. I know of no stronger argument against a managed currency system than the experience we have just gone through in trying to manage gold. We did not give the gold standard an opportunity to function. We stripped it of all power, making it impossible for gold to do its work intelligently and automatically as in pre-war days.

"As manager of a managed monetary system we were a dismal failure.

"I know of no sound reason why we should not return to the gold standard immediately and establish as standard a gold dollar of fixed content. If we can induce other countries to return with us, so much the better; if we cannot, we need not wait."

As to national self-sufficiency, Mr. Putnam said he was strongly opposed to it.

Express Opposing Views.

A similar position to American self-sufficiency was taken by Silas H. Strawn, former chairman of the American committee of the International Chamber of Commerce.

"I am convinced," said Mr. Strawn, "that the economic wellbeing of the United States is dependent upon the continuance and expansion of its foreign trade and that the policy of our government should be to encourage and stimulate friendly economic relations with other countries.

"Advocates of a policy of isolation for the United States insist that our export trade in comparison with our domestic commerce is relatively unimportant; that comparable with our whole production the whole share devoted to exports is small, and that readjustment to a practical self-contained basis would cause less economic and social disorder than would result from continued efforts to maintain or increase our foreign trade.

Foreign Trade Vital.

"With this conclusion I thoroughly disagree. On the contrary, I assert:

"That foreign trade is of direct and vital concern, not only to the 10 per cent of our people engaged in the production of exports, but indirectly to the country as a whole. Its abandonment or reduction would prolong the present depression, lower the living standard of our people and precipitate inestimable social changes.

"Other economic activities vitally concerned with foreign trade include:

"Shipping and allied interests with a capital investment of more than a half billion dollars and gross earnings in 1929 from freight carried alone of nearly 300 million dollars.

"Our harbors and 26 port cities upon which our government has spent about 425 millions for improvements and 150 millions in maintenance.

"Our rail and truck transportation facilities of which reliable estimates show dependence upon export trade for about 13.5 per cent of its traffic.

"Banking, communications and other services whose income is materially affected by our foreign trade interests.

"The American economic structure is highly interdependent and the abandonment of from 5 to 10 per cent of our total productivity would, I believe, depress more than half of all our producers, and in turn, the whole industrial and agricultural fabric of the country.

"Distress to our domestic market would unquestionably result from the abandonment and loss of substantially 10 per cent of our production, together with a similar loss in our imports."

View of Gen. Wood.

Gen. Wood took the ground that national self-sufficiency is the best road to follow, that recovery so far has been due to the Roosevelt monetary policy.

"It is a commentary on foreign trade," said Gen. Wood, "that of the 40,000 items in the mail order catalog, there are practically none that could not be produced in this country, and very few that are not now produced in this country.

"Export trade, based on a low standard of living of the exporter, is of little value to the nation. Our largest single item of export has been cotton, but cotton has always been grown at the price of pauper labor, first by slave labor, and since the civil war by labor far below the living standards of the rest of this country, if not below the standards of most countries of Western Europe.

"I believe we are going the road of national self sufficiency and that it will be the best road for us. But it is going to take many years to work out the adjustments.

"This does not mean a total cessation of international trade, nor does it mean a total abolition of our imports and exports. It should mean, however, that as long as there are such wide disparities in the standard of living of the various nations, we will trend more and more to national self sufficiency.

"I have been a firm believer in the monetary policy adopted by the President. I have felt that if we had gone off the gold standard in October, 1931, at the same time England did, we would have escaped much of the distress that occurred between that date and March of 1933. I attribute the recovery that has taken place so far almost entirely to the effects of the monetary policy. The NRA has had nothing to do with economic recovery, it must be considered as a social measure, not an economic one."

BUSINESS GAIN TO CUT USE OF U. S. EASY MONEY

Treasury and RFC Predict Federal Saving.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—Because business already is improving the federal government may not spend immediately the billions of dollars in easy money which the New Dealers had declared were necessary to revive industry and trade, two high administration officials disclosed today.

As a result the total of government expenditures at the close of the fiscal year on June 30 will be far under the 10½ billion dollars estimated by President Roosevelt three months ago. The government's indebtedness will not reach the 29 billion dollar all time peak which was predicted.

Will Spend Less Money.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. tacitly admitted for the first time today that the government will not live up to the huge spending program which President Roosevelt had outlined, for it during the first six months of 1934. He refused to estimate, however, how high expenditures will go.

At the same time Jesse H. Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the government's largest lending agency, announced that because of better business the RFC will spend half a billion dollars less in this fiscal year than was estimated. Necessity for new federal loans is diminishing and old loans are being paid off as business hits its stride, Jones declared.

Additional reports of better business came from the executive committee of the federal reserve system's open market board which had gathered here to discuss forthcoming treasury financing. The heads of the regional reserve banks, including Gov. G. J. Schaller of the Chicago bank gave Secretary Morgenthau a cheerful account of business conditions.

Tells Refinancing Plans.

Secretary Morgenthau laid before the reserve governors his plans for refinancing a billion dollars' worth of fourth Liberty loan bonds which fall due on April 15. After hearing his plans, which are believed to call for a refunding issue of three or five year treasury notes, with the reserve governors, Morgenthau said he would announce them formally on Wednesday morning.

A thawing of private credit is cutting down the need for federal easy money loans to business, according to Mr. Jones, and this trend will result in a reduction of government expenditures.

"Conditions are better, business is improving, there is more money available at the banks and borrowers are seeking loans in the volume that had been anticipated," Mr. Jones explained. "People are just as anxious to get out of debt as banks are to receive repayments on their loans."

Because of the business pickup the RFC will lend and spend 500 million dollars less than was expected, Mr. Jones said. The RFC will disburse only 3½ billions this fiscal year instead of the 4 billions previously estimated.

"At least that will be the case if Mr. Jones' new estimate holds good."

As another indication of improved business, Mr. Jones pointed out that 250 million dollars has been repaid to the RFC on its old loans since Jan. 1. To spend all of the billions included in its budget may take the government until June, 1935, Secretary Morgenthau told newspaper men today. He did not disclose, however, how much the government now plans to spend before June 30.

Spends Less Than Forecast.

During the first nine months of the fiscal year ending March 31 the government actually spent only 4 billion 821 million dollars, the treasury's records show today. To meet President Roosevelt's estimate of 10½ billions by June 30 the treasury would have to pour out five billion 700 million dollars in three months.

The treasury's total revenues on March 31 were 2 billion 300 million dollars. Nine hundred million dollars more must be collected before June 30 if the treasury is to live up to the President's revenue estimates.

PRINCESS INGRID, SWEDEN, TO WED DANISH PRINCE

LONDON, April 2.—(AP)—The impending engagement of Princess Ingrid, daughter of Crown Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden, to Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark was reported tonight in a dispatch to the London Daily Mail from Stockholm. Gossip often has had the prince, who is 35, and Ingrid, who is 24, engaged, but none of these suggestions has materialized.

Princess Ingrid has frequently been in England visiting her grandfather, the duke of Connaught, who is particularly fond of her. She now is staying at the Riviera.

Because of her visits here, her name has frequently been coupled with that of one or another of the princes in the British royal family.

POSTAL ASSERTS IT IS IN FAVOR OF TELEGRAPH CODE

Washhington, D. C., April 2.—(AP)—The Postal Telegraph company took issue with its competitor, Western Union, and insisted today at an NRA hearing that a telegraph code was needed to end practices which it said were unfair and wasteful.

NRA's move to draft regulations for these companies was the first effort to impose a pact where a majority of those concerned is lukewarm or hostile to the code idea.

"After a very careful study," R. B. White, president of Western Union, told Leighton H. Peebles, deputy administrator, "we have reached the conclusion that there are no advantages which our company can properly seek under a code dealing with competitive practices, and there is no provision in the law for a voluntary application by an industry for any other sort of code."

White asserted the telegraph industry was in effect composed of only two companies—Western Union and Postal Telegraph.

Howard L. Kern, counsel for Postal, submitted a list of fair trade practices and suggested "a proper control by the code authority of the leased line facilities for telegraph."

He testified that "A. T. & T. [American Telephone and Telegraph] has been extending its leased wire service with a liberality which has a disastrous and discriminatory effect upon companies rendering a genral public telegraph service."

A. H. Griswold, executive vice president of Postal, charged exclusive contracts and other "unfair" trade practices increased telegraph company expenses and that these "eventually must be borne by the public."

Griswold's charge that wasteful competitive practices were increasing the cost of telegraph service was in line with a report a few months ago by a committee headed by Secretary Roper.

This group urged regulation by one federal agency and also favored mergers in the field, particularly in the case of telegraph companies, to reduce costs.

ALLOT FUNDS FOR WORKERS' FARMS IN LAKE COUNTY

The allotment of $150,000 by Secretary Ickes for the purchase of ten acre "subsistence farms" in Lake county for married men who are jobless or have only part-time work, was announced yesterday by Robert Galloway, secretary of the chamber of commerce at Waukegan.

Fifteen manufacturers met at the chamber of commerce rooms in Waukegan yesterday and conferred with Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles of Fort Sheridan, who has long advocated "subsistence farms." Tomorrow night a representative of Secretary Ickes will be at Fort Sheridan to further explain the project.

Already a large number of options have been taken on land selling at between $80 and $100 an acre, it was learned. Twenty years will be given tenants of the farms to pay the government, it was said.

25,000 ASSIGNED TO WORK RELIEF JOBS IN COUNTRY

Although there are work relief jobs available for 39,000 persons in Cook county, only 25,000 of them were distributed yesterday when the state work relief program got under way in place of the Civil Works administration. Only 5,000 more jobs will be given out during the remainder of this month, it was announced by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, which is in charge of the work relief.

"We have a budget of only $7,500,000 for the month," Mr. Reynolds explained. "About $5,000,000 of this sum must be spent on direct relief, leaving us $2,500,000 for work relief throughout the state."

Mr. Reynolds explained that 39,000 work relief jobs would supply aid to approximately 126,000 persons.

Nearly 3,000 men and women who formerly were on the CWA pay roll gathered at the offices of the relief commission at 1319 and 1222 South Michigan avenue yesterday. They received their last CWA pay checks and information on how to file applications for work relief.

HELD ON CONFIDENCE CHARGE.

HOOSIER TELLS U. S. COURT OF HIS SLEUTHING

Milton Werling, who tried to combine his duties as Circuit court clerk of Adams county, Indiana, with catching a gang of counterfeiters and got into trouble with federal authorities, told his story yesterday in the court of Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan. Werling and his cousin, Clarence Kintz, Fort Wayne café owner, are charged with possession of counterfeit bills.

Werling said his cousin told him counterfeiters were flooding Fort Wayne with spurious banknotes and the two laid plans to capture them, and thus to reap the large reward and insure Werling's reelection as court clerk.

"I told my wife that I was going away to get those counterfeiters," Werling said. "I took $600 along with me, because I have a radio shop and I thought I might buy some radios while I was in Chicago. My wife told me to be careful and not to get shot while I was in Chicago, but I told her I wasn't afraid."

He then told how he met McKinley Van Pelt, paroled convict and counterfeiter, through his cousin and how his plans to trap Van Pelt and his companions were frustrated by a police squad who turned Werling and his cousin over to the federal authorities after finding them in possession of bogus currency. Werling is to finish his story today.

A BYGONE ERA.

To an entire generation of voters John Maynard Harlan, who died recently in New York, may have been little known or unknown. To older citizens he was representative of an era in which he and a number of other men devoted to identical causes endeavored to overcome the corruption of government and restore control to the people who had lost it. In retrospect this period is marked by its extreme simplicity. The reformers, as they were called, did not have any doubts regarding the soundness in philosophy or practice of the democratic system. They sought merely to infuse honesty into it, believing that it would work if it got to control. A complete roster of those men cannot be given offhand. It included the names of George E. Cole, William Kent, John M. Harlan, and a minority group of aldermen aided at times, as Carter Harrison would suggest, by himself as mayor.

We must plead no intent to do injustice to the many unnamed men devoting themselves to the revival of American government, state and local, in honest form. The death of Mr. Harlan recalls the period. Its purposes are worth reconsideration. Harlan was a particularly bright young star in the ranks of the crusaders because of his mastery of platform methods, his bounding vitality, and his physical courage. Courage was one of the high qualities these reformers brought to the movement, and it was needed. Political corruption was tough, and although guns and bombs were not known the wards were full of plug-uglies and it had been a prevailing notion that civic virtue was a thin thing which would speak in a piping voice and cross over to the other side of the street if threatened.

In their various ways, by cool determination, contemptuous indifference to their rowdy opponents, or by fiery defiance, the crusaders made themselves felt. Harlan would face an audience of a thousand or more in a hostile ward and dominate by his apparent muscularity and his contempt for the physical stature of his jeering opponents. Many an audience hostile in its demonstrations was silenced by his invitation to his hecklers to come up on the platform and continue the debate in another fashion.

These men, here and in other states, were precursors of Theodore Roosevelt. Life did not treat all of them consistently. Some of them maintained the courageous front of their youth to the last of their days. Others did not realize the early promise. Some were bright stars later obscured by the political turn of events. They had a sound thesis and it was one which then had the respect of all honest and intelligent men. Its basis was a belief in democratic ability to make the American system of government work as the best of devised systems if it could be given the honesty in politics which it had the right to expect of a people free to make their own decisions. When eccentricities have disappeared out of political thought there may be a return to that simple standard of workable political action.

UNCLE SANTA CLAUS AND UNCLE LEGREE.

It is so difficult to square the government's attitude towards its own employes with the insistence it puts on the obligations of private industry that the job of reconciling the two can't be undertaken. To struggling private enterprise the mandate is more pay and shorter hours. If an industry suggests that it has been eating its head off for two years, observing merely the progression of figures in red and surviving only because of prudent management in former years, the government retort is that national welfare demands another hoist at the bootstraps and that industry must make the grade of higher labor costs whether it can do so or not.

It does not escape observation that government money is flowing in a flood to pay citizens for doing nothing, to pay them not to do anything, or to make odd jobs for which they can be put on the pay roll. When a prodigal right hand of government, dealing with other people's business, is viewed in contrast with the tightly clutched left hand, there is no explanation which will pass a sanity test. The inconsistency afflicts certain government employes who at all times do their work and at no time get highly paid for it. The wasteful areas of political sinecure are not touched by government prudence or parsimony. If a drastic economy were the rule for every check that issued against the federal treasury the workers in federal service could be told that necessity governs and that they must submit; but who can face them when Uncle Sam is Santa Claus on a spree to people who give no return and Simon Legree to people who work for him?

The most nearly logical way out of the fog is to conclude that the harder working federal employes are not residents of the United States, are not citizens, are not consumers, are not affected by economic conditions, and are not people. They are the American untouchables and untouchables. They fell outside the recovery plans until congress put them in.

One good may come of the administration's paradox, although it was not intended. It may illustrate to persons now credulous in belief of governmental remedies for everything how government deals with the people who actually serves it and what happens to activities over which it has absolute control.

REDUCING MOTOR THEFTS.

Judge Graber, who presides over the recently established automobile court, has some good news for motorists and indeed for the whole community. He reports that while for the first quarter of 1933 5,852 cars were reported stolen, in the last three months reported thefts have fallen to 3,925. The number is still too high, but the reduction is splendid and justifies the expectation that this flagrant and costly form of crime will presently be got in hand.

Among the important results should be a reduction of the cost of insurance, a much needed relief for this heavily taxed adjunct of modern living.

But there is also substantial improvement in another affliction of the car owner. In the first quarter of 1933 1,333 of the stolen cars were stripped of accessories, and recovery of the cars does not help this. In the first quarter of 1934 only 447 stolen cars were stripped.

Judge Graber ascribed these improvements to a stricter enforcement of the motor theft laws, to the able coöperation of State's Attorney Courtney's office and increased activities of the police. He modestly does not add the establishment of his court, but we think the concentration of motor cases which it brings about and his own conduct of its proceedings contribute to improved conditions. For example, it has resulted in the enforcement of the new statute requiring all dealers in second hand accessories to obtain a license and to keep a record of all parts bought and sold. Although passed last August, Judge Graber has made it effective, and a supervision over this activity of fences is producing prompt results.

It is significant that Judge Graber reports also a reduction in the number of youths in his court. The theft and stripping of automobiles was an enterprise in which boys and young men found a temptingly easy profit under former conditions. It was the first stage of a criminal career for many, and an effective check upon it will do much to protect our youth and restrain crime in Chicago.

The Chicago Crime commission and the Chicago Motor club deserve the thanks of the community for their part in bringing the extent and gravity of this form of crime to public attention and in bringing about an improvement of the means of correction.

SENILITY IN SHIPS.

Were it not for the threat contained in the recommendation of the federal coördinator of transportation the ship operators would be inclined to derive considerable amusement from Mr. Eastman's theory that great lakes shipping is nearing the point of obsolescence, or is already obsolete, because the average age of ships is 21.8 years.

Aside from the fact that the Mauretania held her place as queen of the seas for a matter of twenty-four years in the more destructive salt water, it is generally known that steamship companies follow the practice of depreciating ship hulls at the rate of 3 per cent per annum, placing the period of maximum efficiency at thirty-three years.

Probably the least efficient vessels on the great lakes are the so-called "shipping board types," all of which were built in the year 1918 and are now only sixteen years old. Then for a period of possibly three years there were constructed a number of vessels that have since been found to be too large for practical service because they can only be operated to advantage at the traffic peaks. In direct contradiction of Mr. Eastman's theory, a substantial number of these great "modern" vessels have been laid up for the last four years in favor of "obsolete" vessels built in the last century. Finally, it will be found that few, if any, of the older vessels are now carrying their original boilers. In some instances they have been changed from steam to motor ships and vice versa. A few have been lengthened or shortened, and many have been converted from "package" vessels to bulk carriers. Not many of the modern "self-unloaders" are new vessels—they are old hulls equipped with a comparatively new idea to meet present day demands.

Was Mr. Eastman thinking of locomotives, box cars, automobiles, airplanes—or possibly battleships? The steamship hull more nearly resembles a building, the usefulness and convenience of which depend not upon its age but upon the disposition of its owners to keep it up to date.

Whatever may have been the theory of the party who prepared this section of Mr. Eastman's argument, he wasted considerable energy listing the hull ages shown in ship directories to prove absolutely nothing. Senility of the world's most efficient transportation system cannot be demonstrated in any such manner.

Editorial of the Day

CAN'T BE LAUGHED OFF EASILY.

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

One's first impulse is to dismiss the sensational charges Dr. William A. Wirt makes against certain members of the Roosevelt brain trust as not so much pipe smoke. It is hard to conceive that, if members of the professoriat do have in mind any such nefarious plans as Dr. Wirt asserts they have, they would be so lacking in prudence as to confide them to any one outside the revolutionary circle.

On second thought, however, one must recognize that Dr. Wirt's charges are too serious to be laughed off without further investigation—the course suggested by Chairman Rayburn of the house committee before which the charges first became public. If the charges have any foundation in fact, the general public, and congress in particular, ought to know it. If they haven't, something ought to be done to convince Dr. Wirt of the unwisdom of making them.

The brain trust has been accused of many worse things than are involved in Dr. Wirt's accusations but by persons of little or no consequence. In weighing such accusations one always must consider the source. It must be recognized in this instance that the source merits some respect. Though perhaps not too conservative in his ideas, Dr. Wirt is no dyed-in-night spellbinder. He has contributed some ideas of demonstrated soundness to the technique of education and in the past has convinced more than one group of educators that his opinions are worthy of consideration. He now holds a position of real responsibility. Unless it is possible to show that something recently has gone haywire with his intellect, what he says is not to be ignored.

ADMIRAL DICK BYRD is going to be alone on the ice for months during the antarctic winter. At first thought that seems pretty tough—but wait a minute. For seven months the admiral will not see a movie, pictures of beauty queens, be held up by bandits, have to read what society is doing, pay six or seven dollars for a bottle of Scotch, go to the income tax collector's office, be kidnaped, be called on by bond salesmen and book agents, have unleashed police dogs give him a dirty look every time he takes a walk, receive postal cards saying, "Having a fine time, wish you were here"; have his fenders crumpled up by moron drivers, or give a hoot what NRA is going to do next. Lucky dog! We might even say lucky Byrd!

FIVE WOMEN IN HEAVEN.

Five lovely women, long in heaven, sat
Beneath celestial garden trees and mused.
Serene Penelope was first to speak:
"The winds blown heavenward are sweet with spring.
On earth the ewes are being sheared again.
How good it was to spin the silver fleece
And weave a garment for Telemachus;
With April sun suffusing every room!"
The gravely beautiful Andromache,
Remembering an earlier peaceful Troy,
Assented. Then a laugh as luminous
And lovely as a sudden shower of stars
Broke in upon their homely memories
And bright-haired Helen said: "Forgive me, both,
But you were wasting April while you worked!
Her rainbow-tinted days, her nights were made——"
"For love, no doubt?" inquired Penelope
With quiet smile and looked toward Hector's mate.
Perceiving, Helen answered: "Oh, you think
Me utter wanton, thistledown for soul!
Nor can I blame you, gentle wives, to whom
I brought such sorrow and such turbulence.
I should have set myself to wifely tasks,
I own, and stayed within the house those nights
That dreamy April lit a softer moon
And every wind was tremulous to touch
White flowering boughs, but Menelaus dozed
And Paris—Oh, what use to tell you more?
What should you know of dusks articulate
With warm insistent murmurs of the blood?
Of wild mouths mutely calling each to each?"
The eyes of Iseult darkened with old pain
As Helen spoke and somberly she cried:
"The ancient magic stirs, the ancient dream;
Why must we talk of lovers and of spring?"
"No need," low-voiced Andromache replied,
Withdrawing, followed by Penelope.
Elaine, who wordlessly had listened, watched
Their quiet going with a youthful cool
Appraisal in her eyes; then, coming close
To Helen, touched her hand half timidly,
Divining what the wistful child desired,
The two queens smiled and bade her stay with them.
Elaine, between them, felt a lovelier spring
Than she had ever known encompass her.

OLD BOB BECKER says that two cunning little billy goats are going to be given away on THE TRIBUNE farm and darned if I don't get one. He'd be nice to tie to the front door and ought to be able to keep bi-pressure book agents, bond salesmen and mouse trap peddlers at a safe distance. And then I could spring the joke I thought up years ago and have never been able to use. When people would see the billy goat and say, "But what on earth do you keep that beast for?" I could say, "Oh, just for a kid." And none of my friends having any sense of humor I would love to hear them roar with laughter and say, "Ha, ha, that's a good one," and beg me to let them send it to a funny magazine and get five dollars for it. And they'd sell it to a funny magazine for five dollars, too. The funny magazines haven't got any sense of humor, either.

NIGHT BLINDNESS.

IN the condition known as night blindness the subject sees satisfactorily in the daytime if nothing else is wrong with the eyes, but in the dark he is about as helpless as a blind man. The condition is natural with some people. Such persons have what is known as congenital night blindness. All of their lives they are unable to get around in the dark just as albinos are when the light is bright.

With others night blindness is a sign of some organic disease of the eye. One of the signs of glaucoma, which sometimes makes the subject suspect his disease for the first time, is a tendency to walk into objects whenever the lighting becomes poor. This is a symptom of several eye diseases which, it is important, should be recognized early and for which the patient is on the skirmish line. When the sign is to be recognized and reported to the physician for investigation depends on the keenness of observation, the mental alertness, and the intelligence of the patient. On this point he is the pitcher and the doctor is the catcher.

In addition to these two groups of people with night blindness there is a third group to whom Drs. Wilbur and Easterman direct attention. This group is composed of those who have night blindness as a result of dietary deficiency. It is well established that there are several eye diseases which result from dietary disorders. The best known of these is xerophthalmia, or ulcer of the eye. There were many cases of this disorder in some European countries consequent upon the privation due to the world war. This is supposed to be one of the causes of cataract. The almost unbelievable amount of cataract in India and in Egypt is thought to be due in part to nutritional deficiency.

Drs. Wilbur and Easterman report the following case: A civil engineer reported that for a couple of years he had had night blindness intermittently. When the condition was on he stumbled over objects in the dark. When he tried to drive he would miss the driveway into the garage and get on his neighbor's lawn. Since the attacks were intermittent and there were no other symptoms, he would not know anything was wrong until he stepped on his dog, bumped into people, or drove off the pavement at night. This man had had diarrhea for two years due to a condition in his digestive tract. He had this disorder remedied by operation and his diarrhea stopped, whereupon there were no more attacks of night blindness.

While he had the chronic bowel trouble and the consequent diarrhea he ate a proper diet containing the correct vitamins. But the bowel trouble interfered with absorption and, in consequence, the man lost weight and strength and had periodic night blindness. He was suffering from a food deficiency in spite of the fact that he was eating properly.

These doctors think, though they do not claim that they have proved their contention, this was a case of night blindness due to a deficiency of vitamin A. They offer a good deal of evidence to support the theory that food deficiency can cause night blindness and some proof that it may be caused by a deficiency in the amount consumed of foods rich in vitamin A. The evidence in this case is offered for what it is worth.

GALL BLADDER DYSPEPSIA.

M. V. writes:

1. To avoid attacks of gall bladder dyspepsia what diet do you suggest?
2. I have been taking soda for the attacks. Is there something better?
3. What is a diet for one who is anemic?

REPLY.

1. One that is composed largely of milk and foods made from it, breads, cereals, vegetables, and fruits; no condiments, sauces, dressings, rich foods, or alcoholic beverages; a very light evening meal.
2. The habitual taking of soda is harmful. Avoid attacks by careful dieting. Relieve attacks by drinking carbonated, unflavored waters and by eating mint candies.
3. Eat sparingly of milk. Live largely on liver, meats, yellow of egg, wheat, grain cereals, whole grain, and vegetables.

MEDICINE AND SLEEP.

R. B. writes: I am a very poor sleeper. Medicines that have sleep producing powers have been recommended to me by friends.

REPLY.

Do not take sleep producing medicines except under the direction and observation of your physician. If you will relax when you go to bed you will sleep.

DRY GANGRENE.

L. E. W. writes: What is the cause of dry gangrene? Is there any treatment that will prevent its appearing or cure it after it has appeared?

REPLY.

There are many possible causes. Among them are Buerger's disease, Raynaud's disease, diabetes, and arteriosclerosis. Both prevention and cure depend on the cause.

MORTGAGE POLICY.

Wilmette, Ill., March 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I bought a mortgage from a concern. I got the principal note and interest coupons and the deeds, insurance policies and have the letter of opinion, but did not get the mortgage policy. The firm from whom I bought went into bankruptcy. They received their payment for the mortgage policy, but did not pay the trust company for it. 1. If the mortgagor gets the policy, would it hurt me any, or [2] would you advise me to get it? E. F. W.

REPLY.

1. No. His getting the policy would mean in substance that the title is good and this is all that you need for your own protection. If, however, you should wish to sell, then you would be handicapped by not having a policy in your own possession.
2. We advise you to submit the letter of opinion to an attorney in a personal interview and take his advice as to whether you should go further.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SHARING ESTATE.

Chicago, March 31.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My grandfather died some years ago but did not leave a will. He was survived by two sons, a daughter and four children of a deceased son. I am one of these grandchildren and would like to know [1] if I am entitled to a share in his estate? 2. Had his son or daughter any right to take or dispose of any of his property? 3. Are any verbal agreements he made with another person legal if heard by a third party or not heard by any one? R. Z.

1. Yes, if you mean that you are one of the children of the deceased son.
2. No.
3. In general, they might be binding on him, but would not be binding on the estate as far as the facts stated are concerned. We could advise to better advantage if the facts were before us.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

STILL A CITIZEN.

Chicago, March 30.—[Friend of the People.]—Kindly advise me if I am still an American citizen. I was born in the United States and have lived here all my life. About six months ago I was married. My husband was born in Germany and came to this country about five years ago and has lived here since. He has not taken out his citizenship papers.

A. M.

REPLY.

Under the facts stated, the writer is still a citizen of the United States inasmuch as she was married to an alien after Sept. 22, 1922. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—French military critics are viewing with some alarm two items in the 1934 war budget which provide $15,000,000 for the maintenance and replacement of horses and only $10,725,000 for the motorization of the army.

It is estimated that during the coming year the 101,131 horses in the French army will require $8,500,000 worth of fodder. The critics feel that most of this money might be more profitably spent on fuel and mechanical equipment than on hay and oats.

The expenditure of half again as much for horses as for the continuation of the motorization program comes in for all the more criticism since army leaders state that only one division of the French army is completely motorized, while recent reports from reliable sources say Germany will soon have completed the motorization of 14 of its 45 divisions.

Each of these German motorized divisions, according to a well documented series of articles appearing in the Mercure de France, will consist of nine infantry battalions, four groups of motorized artillery, a battalion of 50 tanks, another of pioneers, and will have 3,403 motor driven vehicles of various types. Half of them will be confined to the road. The other half—six wheelers, tractors, automobiles with caterpillar treads, etc.—will be capable of operating on any kind of ground.

Thus equipped, the Mercure de France claims, the Germans could have eight divisions on the western front in less than 24 hours and could reinforce them with 29 more divisions in 52 hours.

The semiofficial Temps, criticising the slowness with which the French army is being modernized, says: "It is indeed strange to find, in an age when industrial technique has made such enormous strides and all forms of mechanical equipment seem to dominate the battlefield, that such a relatively large portion of the army expenses is being devoted to the horse—the most noble conquest of man, but likewise the costliest and most anachronistic for a modern army. The moment has come when the French army needs to strike out resolutely on the road to modernization."

However, back of France's apparent folly in counting on the noble quadruped for use in twentieth century warfare is the fear of lacking an adequate supply of gasoline in case of emergency. The Germans have discovered the secret of manufacturing synthetic gasoline, but the French still have to rely on the oil wells of the United States, Russia, and Burma.

In a prolonged war the chances are 100 to 1 that France would be cut off from its distant gasoline sources, while close at hand is an unlimited grain supply. Hence, the present prospects are that the old fashioned army horse is in no danger of disappearing in France for some time to come.

UNTAXED VOTERS.

Chicago, March 30.—What will be the effect on tax rates, elections and referendums when 75 per cent of the voters pay no taxes? The Cook county vote for President was 1,846,375. The assessor sent out about 800,000 personal tax bills. That means that about 900,000 citizens pay no personal taxes. The assessor's list for one of the districts contains 3,572 names. The poll lists for this same district contain 7,375 names. About 25 per cent of these are on the assessor's list, yet they are no more able to pay a tax than are the 75 per cent not assessed. Any precinct poll list will check about the same.

The law requires all adult citizens to schedule annually, and also requires the assessor to get a schedule from each citizen or make one. Apparently less than 50 per cent of the adult citizens and only about 25 per cent of the voters have been assessed. This means an excessive tax rate for all taxpayers and elections controlled by voters who pay no taxes. It is important that the assessors have on file a sworn schedule from each adult citizen. M. D.

THE TREATMENT OF MRS. INSULL.

Chicago, March 29.—It is about high time that something was said and done about the present unwarranted and indefensible bedeviling and harrying of Mr. Samuel Insull and his ever faithful wife.

Whatever excuse there may be for this great nation's pursuit and persecution of the 74 year old former utility magnate and art patron, there is certainly not the shadow of an excuse for our state department's uncouth, cowardly, and ungallant attacks upon his devoted wife.

This brave, talented, cultured and refined gentlewoman should not be subjected to these boorish, uncalled for petty vexations and annoyances by the powerful, well organized United States consular service.

It is certainly beneath the dignity and not fitting for this great government to bother, chase, and hamper this frail, kindly old lady, who is only trying to help and comfort her spouse, and whose crimes, if any, have not been proven in any court of law.

A. HOWARD WALKER,
Chairman, Friends of Insull in America.

TO AVERT FORECLOSURE.

Cicero, Ill., March 27.—To avoid mortgage foreclosures require those about to foreclose to show proof that they have listed their mortgages in their personal tax. If they have not they should be taxed 50 per cent penalty for each year. I believe by this method that mortgage holders will be more willing to renew the mortgages. J. H.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT.

Bryn Mawr, Pa., March 27.—There are in this country comparatively few who have the time and opportunity to study what is taking place under your administration; college students make up a large part of these. I speak on behalf of those students who are coming to realize more and more just what is happening.

First of all, how long do you hope to publicly advocate a policy for the benefit of the people, when privately you destroy all their rights? Secondly, is all this drastic experimentation of the present worth the destruction that is inevitable for the generation that is to follow you? Whether you realize any more than the average citizen what your brain trusters are doing we do not know. Whatever your position may be, however, we urgently plead for action against these men.

Parallel our situation with Russia or with Germany. Steps such as the government is taking now are rapidly heading us toward the same chaos. Can we not learn by the failures of other nations?

Finally, do you think that the American people, when fully cognizant of how the wool has been pulled over their eyes, are going to tolerate their position? They already know the power of mass action when it comes to standing up for their rights.

We are the ones who will have to carry on the work of the government; it will rest in our hands. Thus we are earnestly and sincerely endeavoring to protect its position. We will fight against those whom you have put in power. If you will not appeal to the people for help to fight against these bills railroaded through congress which are destroying their life savings, their businesses—in short, their futures—we can, and we will. A COLLEGE STUDENT.

THE RETURN OF BARBARISM.

Arlington Heights, Ill., March 28.—As I read THE TRIBUNE daily I am more and more convinced that you are sponsoring a campaign for the return of barbarism. The insults that you hurl at the trained minds in our government are a strong indication in that direction. If we cannot trust those who have devoted their lives to the study of government and economics what would be the result if our government were run by the ignorant or the notorious worshipers of the golden calf?

POLICE HUNTING MURDER GANG FOR SIX KILLINGS

Study More Clews in the Bremerton Case.

Bremerton, Wash., April 2.—(AP)—Search for the wholesalers of murder who left six battered bodies in the ransacked beach home of Frank Flieder centered tonight on an attempt to find assailants who also lost blood in the fray.

Police said the two women and four men might have been killed by one powerful man or by a pirate gang that stole up to the beach in a speedboat and turned the gay Flieder home into a house of death while seeking loot.

Slayers Wounded, He Says.

Luke S. May, Seattle criminologist, announced he had found that not all the blood spilled in the Flieder home came from the six victims and that the perpetrators were injured sufficiently to need immediate medical attention.

Discovery of blood not from the veins of any of the victims again focused attention on an unidentified man, described as being of large build, who left a blood stained suit at a Bremerton tailor shop for cleaning last Friday. The man, who did not give his name, but received a claim check for his suit, has not called for it.

The police learned that a gang using a speedboat had been robbing homes within five miles of the scene of the murders.

Police Imagine Murder Scenes.

Police found the bullet had been fired from an old style .32 caliber revolver. Jordan owned such a weapon, but it has not been found. The police said they knew of Jordan's revolver because they had examined it two years ago. Neighbors then complained that he had become intoxicated and fired it wildly.

Detectives said perhaps the killers ran their speedboats to the beach near the house and entering the rear door surprised those inside. One shot was fired, apparently from the kitchen doorway. The detectives suggested the robbers then might have rounded up the other persons, binding them and taping their faces preparatory to looting the house. One of the victims apparently broke away and was clubbed to death.

JURY FREES SON OF JEAN NASH ON MURDER CHARGE

New York, April 2.—[Special.]—After only thirty minutes' deliberation the jury trying Andrew Donaldson Kirwan for murder at sea brought in a verdict of acquittal this afternoon.

A crowd of more than 100 spectators made a rush for the youth and his mother, Mrs. Jean Nash Dubonnet, with the intention of congratulating them, but marshals interfered.

Mrs. Dubonnet was overjoyed at the verdict and enthusiastically embraced and kissed her son, while the marshals held the courtroom crowd away.

Kirwan, who is 23 years old and a semi-paralytic, was accused of stabbing Gilliam Sessoms to death in a gin and religion brawl aboard the Dollar liner President Garfield.

Only a single witness was presented in Kirwan's behalf, after the government had put 17 on the stand. The lone defense witness was Paul Dubonnet, wealthy French wine merchant and stepfather of the defendant.

M. Dubonnet told why Kirwan possessed the seven inch razor sharp clasp knife with which Sessoms was fatally stabbed on the night of Feb. 10 last.

AUTO THAT JUMPS ONE OF FEATURES AT INVENTORS' SHOW.

Seattle, Wash., April 2.—(AP)—Automobiles that will hop into parking places, skip lightly up hill, and maybe jump over pedestrians, and tires that whistle when they go flat—these are some of the dreams of American inventors who gathered here today for their national congress.

The hop, skip and jump automobile is supposed to become possible through a rotary wing invented by Eric Von Haven of Seattle. It was described as a powerful lifting device which would facilitate hill climbing and even make automobile flying a possibility. It works something like a helicopter.

F. Y. Wyncoop of Denver submitted an automatic tire valve cap which toots a warning when air pressure is gone.

TWO DIE IN GARY AS TRAIN WRECKS CAR AT CROSSING

Park Collision Takes Second Death.

Two men were killed last night when they drove their car past the warning flasher signals at the grade crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad at the 4th avenue crossing in Gary. An east-bound passenger train demolished the automobile, striking it just as it reached the middle of the tracks.

Efforts were made to identify the bodies through the license plate, which was issued to Paul Hudsammsky, 2332 Indianapolis boulevard, Hammond.

Girl Dies of Injuries.

Miss Helen Artibee, 26 years old, 2639 Indiana avenue, who was injured early Sunday morning in an automobile collision in which her escort was killed, died yesterday in the Henrotin hospital. The other victim of the crash was Edward Krings, 25 years old, 1804 Hudson avenue.

Charles Reaver, 28 years old, 1261 West 73d street, driver of the car that struck Krings' machine, and careened onward a hundred feet into Lincoln park at Dearborn street and North avenue, will be arraigned in the Felony court on a charge of manslaughter today. Reaver was speeding north in Dearborn street, and failed to obey a stop sign, according to police.

Year's Toll Reaches 313.

There were two other trafic deaths in Cook county yesterday, increasing the county motor toll since January 1 to 313. The victims:

Robert Brown, 35 years old, 1718 South Wabash avenue, colored. Died in the county hospital of injuries received when he was struck by the car of a motorist who was fleeing from two motorcycle policemen Sunday night. The motorist had been ordered to drive to a police station after driving through a stoplight, but sped on, hitting the Negro.

John Duffin, 30 years old, 3727 Emerald avenue. Killed when he was run down by a south-bound hit-and-run motorist in front of 3815 South Union avenue last night.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 46; recovered, 38; stripped, 6 [from police records for 24 hours ending at midnight Sunday].

Three youths who held up a postal clerk and his wife last week were held to the grand jury yesterday when they were arraigned in the Automobile court on charges of robbery. They are Bernard Struly, 19 years old, 825 South Racine avenue; Nick Capranbone, 17, 2158 De Kalb street, and Raymond Jennings, 18, 2059 Washburne avenue. They were seized by police on suspicion before their victims reported the robbery.

N. Y. JURY INDICTS WELFARE ILAND PRISON WARDEN

Charges Based on "Raid" Disclosures.

New York, April 2.—[Special.]—The first Tammany official to feel the sting of indictment in some years found himself embroiled tonight. He is Joseph A. McCann, warden of the city prison on Welfare Iland, until the Iland was "raided" on Jan. 24 by Austin H. MacCormack, newly appointed commissioner of correction by Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia.

McCann was indicted for neglect of duty. His attorney promised to produce him in court tomorrow. The true bill was voted last month, but was not made public until today.

Directed by Tammany Holdover.

The inquiry was directed by District Attorney William C. Dodge, the lone Tammany candidate to survive the La Guardia-Republican - Fusion landslide. Dodge had been promising an impartial investigation of conditions on Welfare Iland, and the indictment of McCann is taken to confirm his pledge.

The grand jury held a number of sessions and heard 75 witnesses, including keepers and inmates. It is expected others besides McCann will ultimately be indicted.

The indictment alleges violations of the penal law, and in the event of conviction, the extreme penalty is a year in prison or a fine of $500 or both.

Names Acts of Negligence.

The indictment alleges various acts of negligence during the last two years. Among the charges are that McCann permitted persons suffering from contagious and infectious diseases not to be properly segregated and permitted them to be assigned to work in the kitchens and handle food.

It is also charged that inmates were not properly searched and that calls were made to hiding places for drugs, liquor, and other contraband.

During and after the raid conducted by Commissioner McCormick, it was discovered that some of the gangsters in the prison were in virtual control of the institutions, and that keepers and guards were dominated by the convict leaders.

FIND JIRKA SANE; JAIL CONSPIRACY TRIAL DATE SET

After deliberating only 15 minutes a jury yesterday decided that Attorney Harold Jirka, brother of Dr. Frank Jirka, state director of public health and son-in-law of the late Mayor Cermak, is sane. Judge Daniel P. Trude in the Criminal court immediately arraigned the lawyer on a charge of conspiracy, in connection with a foiled jail break plot at the county jail, to which he pleaded not guilty. Judge Trude ordered Jirka tried on the charge on April 9, allowing the $10,000 bond set in the indictment to stand. The case was then sent to Chief Justice Philip L. Sullivan for reassignment.

Attorney Jirka is alleged to have smuggled a loaded revolver to Francis [Mickey] O'Gara, awaiting trial on robbery charges. O'Gara was supposed to have led six other prisoners on a dash for freedom.

Assistant State's Attorney Frank Donoghue asked for an early trial in the conspiracy charges involving Jirka and ten others, asserting that the jail inmates involved should be placed in the penitentiary as quickly as possible.

Mother of 4 starts campaign to cut down STOCKING RUNS

JANE, MRS. GOLDSMITH, NANCY and BARBARA are worried about constant stocking runs. They decide to make a test—perhaps the Lux way of washing might cut those costly runs down.

JANE and NANCY carry on the test. One pair of stockings is washed after each wearing with Lux—the other pair rubbed with cake soap.

THE GOLDSMITH FAMILY isn't bothered by constant runs now! The Lux way of washing cuts down on runs, so that stockings stand even strenuous activities like skating!

"We cut them down 64%," says MRS. GOLDSMITH

Four active girls in the family . . . expensive stocking runs all the time . . . then a Lux test by mother and daughters that cut runs way down!

That's the story Mrs. W. DeL. Goldsmith has to tell. She and her girls made a simple stocking test. Each took two pairs of stockings, washed one pair with Lux, rubbed the other with cake soap. Their records showed 64% fewer runs in the Lux stockings than in the ones rubbed with cake soap!

Why don't you save money this way? Lux saves stocking elasticity, so the silk gives instead of breaking so often. Cake-soap rubbing and soaps with harmful alkali weaken elasticity. Lux has no harmful alkali—safe in water, safe in Lux!

"With Lux, stockings don't go pop all the time!" BARBARA

"Lux is good news for my allowance!" ANNE

"Lux is swell—it's wonderful economy." NANCY

"With Lux, my stockings fit better—wear longer." JANE

MY HUSBAND'S SOCKS—Mrs. Goldsmith adds: "I'm washing my husband's socks just the way we do our stockings and it's amazing how much longer they wear. I like Lux for wool socks, too, because it doesn't shrink or fade them!"

COUNCIL AMENDS LAW TO PERMIT "SUNSHINE MILK"

Mayor Delays Signing to Allow Hearings.

The city council yesterday, under a suspension of its rules, passed an amendment to the milk ordinance permitting Chicago milk dealers to sell so-called "sunshine milk," enriched with vitamin D. The vote of 34 to 15 the amendment found Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance committee, and other administration supporters voting no because there had been no committee hearing on the measure.

Their objections were met, however, by Mayor Kelly, who with Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, urged adoption of the amendment. Mayor Kelly promised that he would withhold his signature from the amending ordinance for a few days until the council health committee holds public hearings on the matter, and that if the decision of the committee is against the amendment he will veto it.

The Methods Possible.

There are three possible methods of enriching milk with vitamin D, two of which, Corporation Counsel Sexton held Saturday, may be done under the existing milk ordinance. One of the methods permitted by the ordinance is to irradiate the milk with ultra-violet rays from quartz lamps, and the large milk companies are installing expensive equipment for this purpose. The other legal method is to feed the cows yeast irradiated by the same process.

It was pointed out by Mayor Kelly, however, that small milk dealers cannot afford the expensive irradiation machinery, and that they therefore asked a speedy amendment to the milk ordinance permitting them to put vitamin D into milk in the form of an oil concentrate of fish livers.

The amendment permits the addition of such substances approved by the board of health to increase vitamin D content. Mayor Kelly told the council that the small dealers have represented to him that they cannot afford the quartz light equipment which the big dealers have installed, and that they fear a heavy loss of business if delay in the passage of the amendment prevents their selling vitamin D milk containing the oil concentrate.

To Sell at Higher Price.

All of the dealers are eager to start their sales campaign for the milk as soon as possible before summer suns rob them of their principal sales argument. The "sunshine milk" will sell at a cent a quart more than ordinary milk.

Among those who opposed the amendment was Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th], the only physician in the city council. He said: "It is dangerous to allow any one to inject anything into milk which is not put there by nature. Vitamin D is not new medically. Its effects have been known and studied for years. Even though they cannot afford the quartz machines, the small dealers can still get the milk by having the farmers from whom they buy feed irradiated yeast."

The council health committee is to hold its first public hearing on the matter today.

Name Winners of Kids

April 2, 1934.

HERE are the winners of the two kids which the experimental farm offered to give away a few days ago. After reading dozens of letters from readers in Wisconsin, Iowa, and Illinois who wrote how well they could take care of a young goat and how much they would appreciate such a pet, it has been decided that Thourl Hinman, R. F. D. No. 3, Flora, Ill., and Edgar Kirchhoff of Mount Prospect, Ill., have written the most convincing letters.

Mr. Hinman has a 35 acre farm on which the kid could find plenty to eat and have a fine home. A goat on this place would not only be an asset as a pet but of practical use, according to Mr. Hinman.

"I believe," he writes, "a goat to be an asset to any farm to eat weeds which would be injurious to our live stock."

Little Edgar Kirchhoff's letter was so full of "salesmanship" and arguments that he easily won one of the kids. He wrote that he had just lost his prize pet, an Indian pony, so he wanted the goat to move in and take that pony's place. Moreover, with a 100 acre farm, a big barn, and all kinds of alfalfa, timothy and grain the goat is assured a good home.

The majority of letters received were from boys and girls. In several cases sisters or brother and sister sat down together to compose letters telling why they should be given a goat. The best of such letters was from Helen and Florence Small of West Branch, Ia. The five little red headed Ewing sisters of Pontiac, Ill., wrote an excellent letter. However, the experimental farm has just two goats to give away and the two most convincing, most appealing letters have won the animals. Both are advised to write to me at once about calling at the farm to pick up the kids.

There is so much happening on the farm these days that it is difficult to know where to start in telling about the various activities. Right now all the boys on the place are excited about Lady, the handsome big Belgian mare, because she is expected to foal today. It will be her first "baby" and also the first foal on the farm this spring.

Yesterday Guenther picked out 15 little pigs that arrived in January and now he will proceed to wean them. This group of 15 are the unfortunate, undernourished ones which simply have not been able to compete with their brothers and sisters for food. They aren't growing as fast as they should, so Guenther is going to build them up with special rations of middlings, a little oil meal and ground oats.

Rock and Dan, two of the husky farm horses, were called upon today to serve in harness in place of Daisy and Pearl, two mares. These mares are going to foal very soon. Sleezer spent considerable time fixing up large, comfortable stalls for them.

Louis Thurow, Sleezer and Clarence Thurow had a big job yesterday remodeling one of the barns in order to make more convenient feeding arrangements for the 50 head of cattle just started on grain. For a while yesterday I tried to sit on the fence near these cattle while talking to Clarence about his plans for marketing the animals, but it was a hard job to carry on an uninterrupted conversation, due to one black Angus steer. This animal is so tame that it insisted on crowding close to us every minute. It stood near me like a pet dog to have its ears scratched!

This is the zero hour in the rat campaign. Rawlings and I are going to distribute scores of small poison baits late this afternoon. All of these will be doped with red squill, the drug which comes from a bulb that grows along the Mediterranean. It's a rat poison, but will not kill domestic animals. We are going to make baits by putting a half teaspoonful of poisoned food in paper sacks. Then we will scatter scores of these little paper sacks in the horse barn, where already our spring traps have bagged more than a dozen rats.

ESCAPED LIFER TELLS FEELINGS AFTER 24 YEARS

EDMONTON, Alta., April 2.—(AP)—James Fahey, held here as Frank Grigware, who escaped from the Leavenworth penitentiary 24 years ago while serving a life term on a mail robbery charge, was freed tonight in $10,000 bail, pending a hearing for extradition on April 13.

His release came after bondsmen—fellow residents of Jasper, Alta., where Fahey established a reputation as a solid and substantial citizen—provided the necessary security.

Earlier in the day the Alberta legislature, in an informal meeting, voted to urge a pardon or clemency for Fahey at the hands of President Roosevelt.

"I have paid a terrific price for something I didn't do," he was quoted as saying today in a copyrighted interview published in the Edmonton Journal.

Arrested for Poaching.

The 46 year old man, who came to Jasper, Alberta, years ago, married, and rose to a position of prominence and respect among his neighbors, sat in the guard room of the royal Canadian mounted police barracks. He talked about himself and the strange quirk of fate—arrested on a charge of poaching—that revived the accusations that he was an escaped "lifer."

"Are you glad this trouble is to be cleared up at last?" he was asked.

"Yes, I am," he answered.

"Has it been on your mind all these years?"

"Yes, it has. Of course, there were times when I would forget about it."

"Were you ever on the verge of telling your wife about this trouble?"

"Yes, several times. But you know how it is. I didn't do it. But I felt that some time or other it would come out."

Tells of "Robbery."

"How old were you at the time of the mail robbery?" he was asked.

"I was 19, maybe 20. One night in Omaha one of the fellows at the rooming house, Fred Derf, asked me to go with him to the outskirts of Omaha to get a parcel. I did not know what the parcel was or what he wanted it for."

"What was in the parcel—some of the stolen mail?"

"No," Fahey replied, "I think it was revolvers that had been hidden in a sand bank. I think the mail was found in the attic room. I was innocent but I was convicted along with the rest."

WHAT A YALE MAN THINKS 10 YEARS OUT OF COLLEGE

Graduates of Yale university of the class of 1924 are preparing for their decennial reunion at New Haven, June 16 to 19, by getting up an opinion test on 24 questions including what they think of the capitalistic system, of Samuel Insull, of Albert H. Wiggin, etc.

The results of the test and questionnaire, when they are in, will provide the first cross section of Yale men's views on such up-to-date controversial subjects as the NRA, the government's entrance into business, the Roosevelt administration, inflation, Russia, Hitler, and public unemployment relief. Graduates also are being asked to cooperate to compile figures on income, stock losses in the 1929 crash, and turnover in jobs during the depression.

Committeemen of the Yale 1924 decennial reunion committee in the state of Illinois were announced yesterday as follows: John J. Gallery Jr., Harry B. Clow, Jr., Phelps Kelley, Stuart C. Law, Owen A. West, Stuyvesant Butler, and Otis L. Hubbard of Chicago, and Alfred Hand Jr. of Argo.

STUDY EVIDENCE ON WHO'S IN NEW DILLINGER GANG

Police Find Clew on Robber Recruit.

St. Paul, Minn., April 2.—(AP)—The empty nest of a criminal band supplied authorities today with fresh clews of killer John Dillinger's presumably new organization of desperadoes.

Tommy Carroll, Minneapolis police said, was believed to have been one of the men who left the place shortly before two federal department of justice agents and a city detective weathered a machine gun fight in an apartment house here whence Dillinger, a woman, and another man believed to be the killer's old lieutenant, John Hamilton, fled Saturday.

Believed in Apartment.

Carroll is wanted in connection with the $32,000 Brainerd, Minn., bank robbery several months ago, and for questioning about the $46,000 robbery March 6 of the Sioux Falls, S. D., Security National bank. Machine guns figured in both these crimes.

Carroll's name was brought into the case after a report earlier in the day that a suspect in the Sioux Falls bank robbery, and not Dillinger, was the man who fled from the apartment. It was pointed out, however, that Dillinger's finger prints had been found in the apartment.

Find Beds for Five.

Reconstruction of the escape from the third floor apartment after doors and walls were sprayed with lead led police to theorize Carroll was one of the men who left the place with two women shortly before R. C. Coulter, another federal operative, and Detective Henry Cummings rapped at the door.

Beds were found for five persons. It was the knowledge that more than two persons occupied the place that prompted the federal department of justice investigation.

Today the department of justice was in complete charge. Twenty-five persons were held and questioned.

Extra guards were ordered for St. Paul banks today and tomorrow on the assumption the desperadoes still were in town and might dare to carry out their plans.

JURY REPORTS TODAY.

The Lake county grand jury at Crown Point, Ind., late yesterday completed its long investigation into the toy gun escape of John Dillinger from the jail there, and will submit a detailed report to Judge William J. Murray at 9:30 today. The jury was ready to file its report yesterday but could not do so because Judge Murray was ill at home. They refused to hand the report to any other judge.

What the report will charge or recommend was kept secret last night, and the written document itself was locked in a safe in the office of Prosecutor Robert G. Estill. Jurors and prosecutors refused to comment on it.

Unconfirmed reports last night indicated that the jury's findings would include the indictment of two persons and a general condemnation of the jail personnel and the sheriff's office for permitting Dillinger's escape. It was also said a number of individuals, including perhaps, one or two officials, might be criticised.

UPHOLDS UNION MEMBERS' SUIT AGAINST MALOY

The Appellate court yesterday reversed Judge William J. Lindsay of the Superior court in his action last August in dismissing a bill for temporary injunction, receivership and an accounting brought by six insurgent members of local 110 of the Moving Picture Machine Operators' union against Thomas E. Maloy, business manager of the union, and other officials.

The opinion, written by Judge John M. O'Connor, directed that a hearing be held in the Superior court on the merits of the petition. Judge Lindsay dismissed it on a motion by the defendants after an answer had been filed. The opinion held that this was improper and also that Judge Lindsay erred in the ruling that the plaintiffs had no grounds for an action in equity.

The petition was brought in the name of Fred Oser and five other members of the union by Attorneys Harry S. Ditchburne and Charles E. Lounsbury. Oser was later killed by Ralph O'Hara, organizer of the union and one of the defendants, in the union headquarters. O'Hara pleaded self-defense and was acquitted in the Criminal court.

HIT THAT COLD A KNOCKOUT BLOW!

Don't Invite Serious Complications with Makeshift Remedies!

A cold is something to be dealt with promptly and decisively. You never can tell where it will end. Many a "slight cold" has been the start of a serious illness. Get after a cold quickly and get after it in the right way. A cold, being an internal infection, requires internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy, and not a "cure-all."

The wise thing to take is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine—for several reasons. Instead of a "cure-all," it is expressly a cold remedy. It is also an internal treatment which a cold, an internal infection, requires. And it is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and helps fortify against further attack. Anything less than that is not complete treatment.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't offer a substitute for the sake of an extra profit.

When a cold attacks, don't waste time with makeshift methods, but go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

A NASTY COLD ?

Don't let a little thing like a cold cut in on cigarette pleasure. You can smoke as much as usual . . . and enjoy it as much . . . if you smoke menthol-cooled Spuds. They're actually 16% cooler. What a difference that makes! Try a pack and see.

Louise Neff Is Engaged to W. M. Collins

Couple Making Plans for June Wedding.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ALL the way from Cambridge, Mass., comes the announcement of the engagement of two popular young Chicagoans, that of Miss Louise Neff to William M. Collins Jr. Miss Neff's brother, Richard S. Neff, who is a student in the medical school at Harvard university, is making the announcement. Miss Neff and her brother and their sister, Mrs. Solomon B. Smith, are the children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nettleton Neff, and Mr. Collins is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Collins of 1530 State parkway.

A surprise to the majority of their friends, the engagement of Miss Neff and Mr. Collins has nevertheless been rumored for some time in intimate circles. The acquaintance of the young couple extends back for two years.

Tall, willowy, with lovely dark hair and eyes and distinguished charm, Miss Neff has enjoyed popularity equaled by few of society's recent post-debs. Because of the tragic deaths of her mother and father and her older brother, Wayne, during the last few years, she was not formally introduced to society, but has taken part in all of the debutante festivities of her set and has served actively as a member of the Junior league. Before this she attended school at Dobbs Ferry.

Recall Wedding of Her Sister.

Two years ago this next month Miss Neff served as maid of honor for her sister, Barbara, who became Mrs. Solomon B. Smith in a lovely wedding in St. Chrysostom's church. Since then she and her brother, Richard, have had an apartment at 26 Scott street. Through her mother, who was Katherine Scudder, Miss Neff is a niece of the William M. Scudders of 30 Scott street and the J. Arnold Scudders of Milwaukee.

Following his graduation from Princeton university in 1927, Mr. Collins, a popular bachelor familiarly known as "Bud," enrolled in the law school of Northwestern university, where he is now in his second year. The wedding of Mr. Collins and Miss Neff will not, however, await the completion of Mr. Collins' law school course, for he and Miss Neff are planning to be married in June just as soon as Mr. Neff has graduated from the Harvard Medical school and returned to Chicago.

Last Jan. 26 Mr. Collins' sister, Kathryn, became the bride of Robert J. Graf Jr. His older sister, Virginia, was married to Paul McNulty a year ago.

Two Luncheons for April Brides.

There will be two luncheons today for two April brides, one in town and one in the country. Miss Grace Dewes is giving the luncheon in town at her home for Miss Carolyn Erminger, who will be married on April 30 to John de Laittre of Minneapolis.

Miss Ellen Truax will be the country hostess in the lovely old home of her grandmother, Mrs. William C. Egan, in Highland Park, for Miss Priscilla Carver, who will become the bride of Henry E. Payne Jr. of Charleston, W. Va., on April 21.

Other parties that have been planned even at this early date for the popular daughter of the Robert K. Carvers of Highland Park are a bridge and tea Saturday that Mrs. Francis J. Ronan is giving, and a luncheon a week from Saturday that Miss Anne Mills is giving in her Highland Park home. Mr. Payne is arriving the Wednesday before the wedding and the next night he is having his bachelor dinner, and Miss Janet Bard, one of the bridesmaids, is giving the spinster dinner.

Friday, the 20th, Miss Barbara Bullard, another bridesmaid, is giving the bridal dinner in the home of her parents, the Sellar Bullards, and the noon of the wedding day Mrs. George Allen Mason is giving a luncheon for the members of the bridal party. The wedding will take place at 8 o'clock in the Trinity church in Highland Park.

League to Boost Enchanted Iland.

The Junior League Children's theater again is to coöperate with A Century of Progress in publicizing the Enchanted Iland and in giving plays in the Children's theater on the Iland. The Century of Progress committee of the league and the girls who will tell the school children of the city and environs about the new features of the Iland will meet for luncheon today in the Italian court.

Miss Margot Atkin is chairman of the committee and Miss Dorothy Schmidt, last year's chairman, is the general adviser. Mrs. Norman L. Pritchard is chairman of the speakers' bureau with Miss Catherine Noyes as her vice chairman. Mrs. Nathaniel Owings will handle the publicity again, assisted by Mrs. Robert White Jr. Miss Frances Weary is radio chairman; Miss Helen Bell, director of the Junior League theater; Mrs. White, business manager, and Miss Jane Rowe, secretary.

Miss Helen Dawes is taking Mrs. Robert Adams Carr's place as secretary of the Chicago Calendar, the league's publication, for Mrs. Carr is moving to South America.

Mrs. Lawrence W. Scudder, who is the chairman of judges for the Garden and Flower show opening Saturday on Navy pier is entertaining at luncheon this noon at the Fortnightly for all of those women who are to act as recording clerks at the show. Among them are Mrs. O. W. Dynes, Mrs. Willard W. Jaques, Mrs. Euclid Snow, Mrs. Daniel Kissam, Mrs. Logan T. McMenemy, and Mrs. Horace Capron.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"Gambling Lady" is pretty sure to appeal to the popular taste.

Clustered about the name of the star—Barbara Stanwyck—elected "First Lady of the Movies" in our contest of not so long ago—are those of such fine players as Joel McCrea, C. Aubrey Smith, Pat O'Brien, Claire Dodd, and Ferdinand Gottschalk. With such a cast it would take a punk story to go far wrong—and "Gambling Lady" is NOT a punk story.

The heroine is the daughter of Mike Lee—an honest gambler.

Mike, encouraged by Lady—Jennifer Lady Lee is her name—sounds like a horse, doesn't it?—has resisted the pressure brought to bear by a gambling syndicate to persuade him to "fix" his games. But there comes a day when he is faced with ruin if he doesn't comply.

Mike commits suicide.

Lady Lee carries on.

Lady goes to work for the syndicate, promise being that she can play fair—depending for success only on her luck and hunches, which are the wonder of gambling circles. . . .

Her straightforward dealings win her the admiration and friendship of one rich and socially prominent Peter Madison—whose son, Garry, Lady later marries.

The girl's career is fraught with romance, excitement, melodrama, which are colortully presented on the Chicago's screen.

Miss Stanwyck's rôle fits her admirably. Those who know her say she's just the sort of square shooter she so sympathetically and vividly portrays in her characterisation of Lady Lee. Lovely to look at, too!

"DARK HAZARD."

THE CAST.

Jim [Buck] Turner	Edward G. Robinson
Margo Mayhew	Genevieve Tobin

Pres Barrow	George Meeker

Mrs. Mayhew	Emma Dunn
Fallen	Willard Robertson
Miss Dolly	Barbara Rogers
Plummer	William V. Mong

There are two dark hazards to this film. One is—hazard a guess as to what the shooting's all about. The other's a dog.

This is one of the most utterly pointless, doddering productions I have ever seen. One lead after another is presented—none of which takes you anywhere.

Edward Robinson and Genevieve Tobin—able players, both of them—are almost ludicrously miscast. Glenda Farrell has a rôle that fits her better. Other actors sort of meander about looking baffled—as well they may.

"Dark Harzard" is, I understand, the adaptation of a Book of the Month. Didn't read the novel but feel sure it MUST have been better than the film.

As for the stage show featuring Milton Berle—it is a filthy stain on the 'scutcheon of entertainment. And Mr. Berle's yowling eulogy of President Roosevelt, following on the heels of the disgusting exhibitions and songs he has ringleadered, seems in the nature of an insult.

See you soon.

Mrs. Roosevelt Visits School Lunch to Learn if Menu Is Adequate

Washington, D. C., April 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today visited the Central school lunch system established in an old school building here after she had made a surprise visit to a school lunchroom and found the menu inadequate.

This time she found milk, orange juice, noodle soup, and whole wheat sandwiches being prepared for 2,900 children in 63 schools. The meal was an experiment to determine if the children cared enough for the school lunch system to attend during Easter vacation.

Mrs. Roosevelt made the trip in her own blue sport roadster and wore a new blue suit, finely dotted, that she bought in New York last week.

She did not like the kitchen's lack of ovens, which meant the children would have all steamed or boiled food.

Wear Initials If You Want to Be in Parade

Some of New Bars Suggest Streamlined Autos.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Lest you think we are shouting too much about initials, we hasten to justify our enthusiasm by telling about the new initial bar, lately installed in a Chicago store that knows much about good things as well as high fashion. This initialing stunt has swept the town. If you want to march with the parade you have initials lurking somewhere among and on your costume accessories.

Anchor them on your spring handbag, either two or three letter formations, with your conscience as your guide concerning height, style and visibility. There are new windblown effects that remind you of some of the newest streamlined motors, some eye filling block designs that can be seen for yards, and for the shopper who doesn't want to be identified so readily, there are some very restrained versions that can be seen but not heard.

This initial bar is doing rushing business with the stick-on initials. Nice black, blocky letters that are expertly glued on to meta' belt buckles with neatness and dispatch, while you wait—to be strictly informative. You select any of the new spring belts [and for your information, belts are in the spotlight this spring]. Take the patent leather, suede or fabric belt with any of the stunning new buckles and clasps, over to the bar, order the style and proper letters, and almost before you know it, the work is done, and you have the smartest thing in belts ready for wear.

Nails Finished in Two Colors at Beauty Show

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Miss Co-ed will find a new use for her college or sorority colors if she follows the lead of the annual Midwest Beauty-Trade show which opened yesterday in the Hotel Sherman under the auspices of the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association.

"She'll wear her colors on her finger nails," said Marc Gartman, president of the association. "She may wear them in dots, dashes, roman stripes, or in diagonals. If, for instance, her colors are blue and silver, she may enamel the nail blue and the tip silver. The colors will be appropriate for evening wear."

Jeweled finger nails for women young and old will be particularly popular for formal occasions, Mr. Gartman added. Until a couple of years ago, he said, few of the better class women tinted their nails the deeper shades, but every one is doing it now. Jewels, such as rhinestones, emeralds, and other sparkling gems, are enameled fast to the nails, giving a glittering effect.

The woman who glories in her perfect widow's peak will find herself in the height of fashion this season, Mr. Gartman said. Those not so fortunate, however, may have one anyway simply by having the hairline tweezed in the new way which has been devised to give the correct line. The widow's peak is shown to advantage in the new streamline fashion of hairdress.

"In the new hairdresses the hair is worn off the ears and the back is short," Mr. Gartman explained. "Make-up is used sparingly this season. As many kinds are used as before but in smaller amounts. For the darker shades of powder, little cheek rouge is used. There is a trend toward more naturalness in make-up, which is evidenced by the effort to allow the eyebrows to have the appearance of growing naturally. They are tweezed only to keep the eyebrow from having too bushy a growth."

Annual Exhibit of Etchers Is Splendid Show

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Chicago Society of Etchers opened its annual exhibit of prints by members in the Roullier galleries, Fine Arts building, yesterday.

For years this exhibition was an annual feature of the spring season at the Art Institute, then last year, or perhaps the year before, it became merged into something called the International Etching, Lithograph, etc., exhibit and completely lost its identity.

To rescue it from oblivion the officers of the society decided to hold a member show at a smaller gallery. The Roullier gallery was chosen and now for the second time we find here a most excellent exhibition of prints representing the Chicago Society of Etchers.

There are 82 works hung and the names in the catalog read like a roll of honor among contemporary artists. John T. Agnus, probably the greatest technician among living etchers, shows a curious and beautiful print in "Stone Tapestry," a slice of Gothic architecture.

Samuel Chamberlin offers a delightful town scene in "Espalion." Elizabeth Colwell has achieved a smooth effect in her "Still Life."

A snapshot from a circus, "Young Harlequin," by Thomas Handforth, complete with trained dog, is most amusing. "Twins" by Charles E. Heil is a sensitive portrait of two young birds.

Morris Henry Hobbs submits one of the most beautiful etchings with his "Near Pont Neuf, Paris," and Y. E. Soderberg plays a familiar tune on the heart strings of boat lovers with "After the Race," sailboats being reefed for the night.

Diana Thorne shows a gayly pathetic group of dogs, "Eight to the Pound," but the dog catcher in charge gives the lie to the intended joke. Geofrey Wedgwood in "Outside the Walls" offers a delightful, clear pattern. A. W. Heintzelman has a piquant portrait of a little girl, "Pigeon," and Elizabeth Telling offers a brilliant likeness of Lucretia Bori.

The three prizes of $50 each were awarded to "The Old Neighborhood," by Ernest Melchert, for a dry point; "Luck with Alcario," by Ralph Fletcher Seymour, for an etching, and "Street of Life and Death, Spain," by Charles B. Keeler, for an aquatint.

The exhibition will continue to April 30.

Big Ben, London's Famous Clock Stops; Crowds Agape

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 2.—London's famous clock, Big Ben, decided to take a half day off today. Many sightseers got a thrill when at about 10 o'clock they noticed the hands pointed to 7:15. The huge hands remained stationary all morning long. Somebody aroused an official. Clock repairers dashed to the scene, turned the hands to the right time, and got the machinery going again. There was a cheer from a watching crowd when the chimes rang out again at 1:15 p. m.

LORD CHICHESTER, the young peer who has been in town several days visiting, with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peters of Ottawa, at the home of Mrs. Charles Irvin on Cedar street, was taken to some Chicago night clubs and cafés the other evening. One of the spots was the College inn. When they departed a girl going up the steps with her escort cast her eyes at the handsome young lord who was wearing a dinner coat and was hatless and made a personal remark.

Inspection—Query—Heidsiecks—Drama.

"Don't be hard on him. He's English," said Mr. Peters.

The girl gave him another long look that would have been one of appraisal had her gaze been steady enough.

"Well, you can hardly tell it from here," she said finally.

THIS story Piatagorsky, the famous cellist, told on himself when he was in Chicago recently is a better story to tell than to print, but we'll try it in type. Piatagorsky said he was on a Spanish tour and when he arrived at his hotel in Barcelona the clerk inquired:

"Casado?"

"No. Piatagorsky," the great cellist answered, not too pleased at being confused with the popular Spanish cellist.

When he arrived at Madrid and went to the hotel the tall gentleman in striped trousers and a tail coat behind the desk inquired politely:

"Casado?"

"No. Piatagorsky," he replied, this time the irritation revealing itself in his voice.

The same thing occurred at two other hotels in Spain, much to Piatagorsky's annoyance. After his Spanish tour was over he met Pablo Casals in Germany and told him how practically every hotel clerk in Spain had asked if he were Casado.

"It got to be annoying, always to be taken for another cellist," he concluded.

"My friend, that is a very funny story," answered Casals. "You see, in Spanish 'casado' means 'Are you married?' The full phrase is 'Esta ud casado?'"

A FAVORITE witticism of Charlie MacArthur, author, raconteur, playwright, and playboy, some years ago was in reply to a query frequently put to him. As there was a Charlie MacArthur of some prominence in Phoenix, Ariz., people occasionally asked if he were the Charlie MacArthur of Phoenix, or of New York and Chicago, and he invariably answered:

"The one in Phoenix is my brother. There are five of us—all named Charlie."

The remark became a classic and, as a matter of fact, recently was incorporated in a radio skit. This is all preamble to the fact that Ernest Byfield, authority on wines, was reading an old book on the subject the other day when he learned that there really are five brothers in a famous French family—all named Charles. They are the Heidsieck brothers of the famous champagne family.

LONG before Walt Disney's latest silly symphony about the ants and the grasshoppers was being shown in the cinemas a second grade teacher in one of the poorer districts of Chicago told her pupils the story of the grasshoppers who played and danced and sang all summer long while their neighbors, the ants, toiled to store up food. She also told the children how to dramatize the narrative. The ants lined up on one side and the grasshoppers, headed by a large boy as leader, on the other. In answer to the plea for food made by this representative of the indigent grasshoppers the leader of the ants, with dramatic intensity and in the parlance of the neighborhood, inquired:

"What wus yuh doin' last summer? You wus a dancin' an' a singin'. That's what yuh wus a doin'. Get de hell out frum here this minute."

Cast of Church Pantomime Guests of Priest at Feast

Eighteen youngsters in their Sunday bests sat up to platters of fried chicken and lots of ice cream last evening at the dinner given them at the Palmer house by the Rev. John E. Burke, pastor of old St. Mary's church, 9th street and Wabash avenue. The dinner, which was followed by a movie and vaudeville show, was given in appreciation of the pantomime, "The Way of the Cross," presented by the boys every Friday during Lent at the church. The Rev. Leo V. Lyden of St. Mary's, who coached the players, was also a guest.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

We've found an elegant aid to hand beauty. It's a new hand cream that's richly nourishing, with bleaching properties in addition. It has an olive oil base, but by some magic it doesn't leave the hands messy. We found it beneficial to the hand skin and it did a world of good for our chronic condition of stubborn cuticle and dry and brittle nails.

It costs only a little bit—and how they do it we don't know. It's a swell cream and thrown in with each jar is a pair of pretty pink rubber gloves, gloves that are made, we're told, with a linen thread that makes them more pliable and comfortable than the usual bulgy rubber ones. They fit so well that you can wear them while you're doing almost every household task. And you can wear them overnight without getting the jitters cotton gloves seem to promote.

The cream should be well worked in [and don't forget finger and nail tips] before the gloves are slipped on. If you've a date you'll accomplish wonders wearing cream and gloves for an hour or so beforehand, but for the most effective beautifying we advise an eight hour treatment while you're getting your beauty sleep.

When the gloves are taken off they should be turned inside out and dusted with talcum. Unless you snag them they'll wear practically forever, especially if you reverse the surface on alternate wearings.

You'll find this jar of hand magic and the gloves in a Chicago department store, and if you take our advice you'll add them quickly to your beauty chest. ELEANOR NANGLE.

SYNOPSIS.

Dorinda, known as Dodo Quarles, is found stabbed to death following a dinner party in her Paris apartment. Dodo, who was unhampered by scruples or breeding, had served a drug to her guests. Helen Roderick, who was a friend of Dodo's deceased mother, was starting with Dodo. She didn't attend the dinner, but awakened early in the morning and discovered the crime and Dodo's guests fast asleep in deep sleep. She is able to arouse her friend, Tommy Rostetter, a journalist. Tommy's dinner partner was Dinah Blake, an American artist, whose engagement to Christopher Loughton, in the American embassy, was, according to rumor, broken on account of Dodo. Dinah is not among the sleeping guests. Tommy senses the others and seeks for the police. Tommy breaks the news to Dodo's stepfather, Basil Jethro, celebrated Oxford scholar, who was her guardian and trustee and who had long since given up trying to curb his charge. Dinah can't be found. Tommy conducts a search for her and for facts to help clear her of suspicion. She paid a call on the Hubert Loughtons shortly past midnight, after leaving Dodo's party. Dinah returns two days later to the apartment which she shares with her cousin, Hallie Pemberton. She had been sleeping in the studio of absent friends. Her memory is a blank. She knows nothing of the crime, and doesn't know whether or not she is guilty. Tommy Rostetter happens to call before the police learn of Dinah's return.

INSTALLMENT XX.

MURDEROUS DESIRES.

Hallie's drab cheeks flushed uncomfortably.

"Dinah never gave me her reason, Mr. Rostetter. She's very reserved in some ways. If I've hard talk—— "

"Talk!" He gave an angry exclamation under his breath. "Talk is what worries me. I can see you know what's being said. With two women in the case the police will immediately scent jealousy and look for the man—and they won't have far to look, I'm afraid. It's a good thing your cousin hasn't noised her affairs abroad, but it won't help her much—by itself, that is. If we're to wangle her out of a desperate situation we must—we absolutely must—find some means of discrediting rumor. How can such a thing be done?"

"I'm sure I can't think of any way. She never quarreled with that girl—of that I'm positive. They were only art school acquaintances, anyhow, but whatever may have happened they were outwardly friendly. Why, the very fact that Dinah went to Miss Quarles' party——" Hallie stopped, realizing her mistake.

"There's a snag there, isn't there? And nothing will prevent the judge from putting a nasty construction on her going. Let me think—let me think!" He closed his eyes again, to open them suddenly. "Miss Pemberton, I can imagine just one expedient calculated to obviate this matter. I'm sure the man in the case would consent with alacrity—but would your cousin agree, could she be persuaded, to pretend the difference between her and Mr. Loughton was made up before this party took place?"

"Dinah agree to that?" Hallie shook her head emphatically. "Never! You don't know her as I do. Besides, would any one believe it? Christopher's not been near this flat for three whole weeks."

"Too bad!" muttered Tommy despairingly. "It would have done the trick. Well, then, what about being engaged to some one else? For the time being, you know. There's an idea," he cried triumphantly. "I wouldn't suggest it if I saw any other way. Any one not too improbable will do—a lay figure, that's what we want. Come to think of it . . . see here, Miss Pemberton, what about me?"

"Oh, what's the good of your plotting to help me?" she cried in an agonized voice. "I killed Dorinda——"

Hallie gasped. "You? But, Mr. Rostetter, Dinah scarcely knows you. Could any one be taken in by such a fabrication?"

"I think they could. I've shown a lot of interest in her, both at the dinner and since. Roused comment, in fact. As an actual fact. I was introduced to her just about the time she sent Loughton about his business. We might even give it out that she chucked him in favor of me. By jove, that's the stuff!" he exclaimed, enraptured with his idea. "If we can get that notion firmly rooted in the judge's mind, he won't give tuppence for any theory about revenge. There'd be nothing to revenge, would there? O, I can see it working. She can leave me to invent the necessary lies. It's part of my job. Can I see her? We must fix this up at once, you know, or it'll be useless."

"Dinah's stubborn, you know," murmured the little woman, moving dazedly away. "I don't suppose for a moment she'll——"

"She won't."

It was Dinah herself who spoke. She had thrown open the salon doors, and with her dark red hair streaming over the white peignoir which swathed her and scarlet spots in her cheeks, stood confronting them with heaving breasts.

"O, what's the good of your plotting to help me?" she cried in an agonized voice. "I killed Dorinda. I stabbed her in the heart with that Algerian knife. So now you know . . ."

Every drop of blood in Tommy's veins froze. He stared fixedly at the girl's abnormally brilliant eyes, and in the few seconds which elapsed before either he or his companion could recover sufficiently to speak his opinions boxed the entire compass to return to their starting point.

It was Hallie who first broke the silence. With a stifled wail she flung protecting arms round her cousin's taut body, whispering, "Hush, hush! O, Mr. Rostetter, Dinah's hysterical, that's all. I tell you, I saw her with Le Soir in her hands! She didn't know till then. I swear it!"

Tommy had regained his self-possession.

"All right," he said briskly, taking Dinah's icy hand and drawing her to a sofa. "Now, just sit down quietly and let me know all about it. You say you stabbed Dorinda with the Algerian knife—the one we used for the grapes. Is that the idea?"

"Yes," answered the girl with a shudder. "You must have noticed how it fascinated me. When I felt its sharp point I kept thinking how easy it would be just to stick it into any one who was sound asleep. Well, when the chance came, I did it."

"Exactly," he pattered, nodding his head. "And the knife itself? Did you take it away with you? Perhaps you've got it now?"

As he said this he drew out his own copy of Le Soir and quickly scanned the front page. No, the weapon was not mentioned.

"I—I can't remember," she faltered, looking a little blank. "I must have thrown it into the river when I crossed the bridge. Yes, I feel sure that's what I did."

"I see." Very casually he took her right hand, and studied the pink, manicured nails. Though not over-clean, they showed no trace of darkening round the cuticle. "By the way," he asked, "have you had a wash since you woke up?"

"I was just going to. Why?" in dull surprise.

"O, nothing. Now about this knife. Would it astonish you to hear that since this paper went to press the police experts have decided the murder was committed with some other, quite different weapon?"

"Not that knife? But I don't understand. I thought——"

"Don't think," ordered Tommy, exultant over the success of his simple bluff. "Only you mustn't expect us to be taken in by this confession of yours. You don't really remember anything, now do you? Ah, I thought not! Well, then, if that's your story, stick to it. Don't go drawing on your imagination, please. Surely," he went on with deliberate brusqueness, "you're not fool enough to confess to a crime you can't remember?"

She turned her aquamarine eyes on him slowly.

"Hallie," she said to her bewildered cousin, "leave us alone for a minute, will you?" She waited till the door closed behind Miss Pemberton, then grasping Tommy's arm spoke with terrifying conviction! "You see, I wanted to kill her. Never mind why. All through that awful meal there was murder in my heart. Now do you understand why I know I did it?"

Tommy laughed light heartedly. "My dear child, what rubbish! Every human being at one time or another feels like that about some one."

She shook her head obstinately. "What about the dreams I've had? They've gone from me now, but they were wonderful—satisfying. Why when I woke up did I feel that everything in life was perfect?"

"Precisely. Would you have felt that if you'd known yourself guilty of murder? What you experienced was the result of that drug. Didn't that Mowbray fellow tell us we'd dream of accomplishing some secret desire?"

"And to think that my cherished desire was—murder! Me, a murderess!" She examined her slender hands with a sort of mitteb horror. "I don't pretend," she said in a more reasonable tone, "that I'd have done it in my right senses. I'd have seen too clearly the consequences—and I can't say I'd really choose to have any one's death on my conscience. But all the same, I must have done it. Who else in that crowd had any reason to?"

"Ah, that's what we'd all like to know!"

Rumpled Air Is Detrimental to Groomed Look

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Are you a rumpled sister, or are you a nonrumpled lady?

This, my beloveds is but another of the beauty tests by which you shall lose or achieve fame.

If you're a rumpled, no fam-ee! But if you are one of the girls who look perfectly groomed, pressed, dressed, poised, and chic, you get your name written in large letters in the hall of beauty fame. Such are the qualifications for beauty distinction in the year 1934.

You know these two types, and their differences, not by their appearance when they set out for somewhere but by how they look when they've been somewhere for a few hours. There are women who set out in the morning, go through a strenuous shopping day and who, at 5 o'clock, when they're stopping for a cup of tea, look as if they'd just come out for the tea appointment. There are others who, before they're a few miles from home, look as if they'd put in a hard day at a bargain counter fight, so rumpled is their appearance.

Maybe it's a gift to look unrumpled every minute of the day. But investigators have been at work trying to track down the possibility of a reason. And the idea has been hit upon that the state of mind and nerves has a good deal to do with the gift, if such it is. The fussy, disconcerted girl, the one who has not much system about herself and her hours, is the rumpled one at her worst, it is charged. And the lady with a sense of certainty, derived from well educated nerves and poise, represents best the lady who never rumples.

That sense of sureness is not a gift, except as you bestow it upon yourself, which is totally within your province, first, by ridding yourself of all those jumpy, unpoised habits which create a rumpled impression whether one looks it or not. Then, there is the very important business of planning one's clothes, and cosmetics, and coiffure care so that, at no time, has one that run down look of needing to interview the tailor, the hairdresser, and the makeup kit. Women and girls should give a certain amount of time to looking over their clothes, to laying out fresh ones for the morning, to the complexion and nail care that counts, and to such helps with hair curlers, and wavers, and wave setting lotions, and clever fingers as will keep the head constantly presentable.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By R. HAL SAYS

REQUIREMENTS FOR THE JUMP RAISE.

The one essential requirement is four of the opener's suit, because this trump support must not require any confirmation at any stage of the bidding. Opener must feel safe in making other informative bids even when his opening suit was only a four-carder. When the responder takes the bidding back to the original suit that is his signoff from slam aspirations. It cannot be used also as a confirmation of a four trump holding, which must, therefore, never be in need of confirmation when the jump raise is used.

The other requirements may vary in kind, but the hand as a whole must fulfill this condition: If the partner had a normal opening bid, game must appear absolutely certain. Try, therefore, to visualize a likely normal hand for your partner, and see how your hand matches up with it. Your partner having bid one heart, attribute to him, for example:

Sp. Q x x	Di. A x x
Hts. A K x x x	Cl. x x

If you hold

Sp. A x x	Di. x x
Hts. J x x x	Cl. K Q J x

you can feel sure of getting a game in hearts. With

Sp. x	Di. K x x
Hts. J x x x	Cl. A x x x x

or

Sp. x x x x	Di. K Q
Hts. J x x x x	Cl. A x

or

Sp. ——	Di. K x x x
Hts. J x x x x	Cl. K Q x x

the game appears equally sure, though the first and third hands face a certain risk of duplication if opener's outside strength is in spades, say,

Sp. A Q x	Di. x x x
Hts. A K x x x	Cl. x x

I do not think your game certainty will be there unless you have one and one-half purely primary tricks, however attractive the distribution. As the latter becomes less favorable you need more primary values to deliver the game; but do not make the mistake of giving the jump raise on a hand which calls for a two or three no trump response, even though you have four of your partner's suit. It may well be that three no trump is the right declaration, but if you make the wrong response you are likely to get the declaration into the wrong hand. This will be bad in a tournament where the loss of an obtainable overtrick is very serious. In rubber play it will not matter much unless it should actually cost you the game, a result which may well occur on a close no trump hand where the opening lead decides your fate. These several responses are especially pointed and graded so as to direct no trump declarations to the right hand, and I want you to make it a habit to consider this factor carefully on every hand in which it occurs, whether it affects game or only overtricks.

Over partner's bid of one heart, the response of two no trump is far preferable with

Sp. K 10 9	Di. A J x
Hts. K x x x	Cl. Q 9 x

whereas the three heart response is suitable for

Sp. A K x	Di. Q J x
Hts. K x x x	Cl. 10 9 x

as, with exactly the same honors, the former must be led up to in no trumps, while the latter may well be led through. If partner's hand cannot stand no trumps, in either case you will end up in four hearts. Always have an opening for the added chance. If you cannot, after all, make use of it this time, be assured that it will win the hand for you on many other almost similar occasions.

Girl in Teens Is Not Suited to Older Beau

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She's in her teens. Her parents object to her present suitor. He is years older, was married, and is the father of several children. When fall comes the man threatens to pay no attention to her father's objections and insists upon an elopement.

A girl in her teens might righteously feel herself entitled to being a first wife. There's a great deal more romance in marriage with a single gentleman than with one not only already married but parent of several children.

It doesn't seem like a very high price the girl is putting on her own head, does it? Stepmothering is no job for the teens. And, although the man was divorced, and has not custody of the children, he still cannot get out so easily from under the shadow of that first marriage. Personally, we feel that father ought to put the run on the man just to save his girl for better romance. If you don't gather the romantic rosebuds when you're young, you may miss them entirely.

Probably many will differ with this opinion. And maybe we're wrong about the romantic feature of it. And, no doubt, the finger could be pointed at disastrous marriages in which youth is attracted to youth, but, somehow, to this sentimental sister, at least, the very young girl who marries one who has been through the mill seems to be dealing herself something a bit shopworn.

However, by fall Caroline may not be confronted with the elopement alternative. We'd recommend a summer vacation apart from the present suitor, and that Caroline go where she would be thrown in with boys more nearly her own age.

BY MARY MEADE.

The weather man doesn't seem to be just sure what it's all about these days, but as far as foods and the folks who eat them are concerned spring's here with bugles!

And lest you doubt it this morning there's here for us the lightest, loveliest breath of spring dessert that ever showed green and white and yellow through the crystal of a sherbet glass. For it we have to thank its author, Mrs. F. M. Summer from Park Ridge, who tried it out on her family and received so many repeat orders that she up and sent it in for our own delectation. We made it, ate it, and we're rooting! Mrs. S. has christened it for us:

JONQUIL FLUFF.

1 tablespoon gelatin
½ cup cold water
3 egg whites
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Essence of peppermint or wintergreen flavoring
CUSTARD SAUCE.
1 egg yolk
¾ cup evaporated milk
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cornstarch
½ teaspoon vanilla

Soak the gelatin in the half cup of cold water for fifteen minutes. Then place the cup in hot water and stir until the gelatin is all melted. Fill up the cup with cold water. Now beat the egg whites until stiff and, beating all the while, add gradually the sugar and the dissolved gelatin. Fold in the vanilla.

When thoroughly blended (use the egg beater) place in the refrigerator until the mixture begins to stiffen very slightly. Have ready six stem sherbet glasses and into each of these put a fluffy spoonful of the mixture, using about one-third of it. Lift out more than half of the remaining mixture and add to it two drops of the essence of whatever mint you choose and just enough food coloring to give a faint, delicate green. Spoon this on top of the portions already in the glasses. Finally top each with the remaining white mixture. This last should let the green show at the edges, looking very much like fluffs of whipped cream on the green.

Over this we spoon the golden yellow of the custard sauce, letting it trickle down over all. For the custard simply combine the salt, sugar, and cornstarch, stirring the evaporated milk carefully into it and lastly adding the water and the beaten egg yolk. Cook in the top of a double boiler until the mixture coats a spoon.

Hutchinses Entertain for Scientist Tonight.

Nineteen friends of President and Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins will meet one of England's most distinguished scientists at dinner this evening at the Hutchinses' Midway home. He is Sir Arthur Eddington, the British mathematical astronomer, who is to be the guest of the university this week by means of a foundation created last year for bringing Midway students into informal contact with interesting minds.

The Hutchinses' guest list includes Mr. and Mrs. William McCormick Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Prof. and Mrs. Arthur H. Compton, Sir William and Lady Craigie, Prof. and Mrs. Henry Gordon Gale, Mrs. Ernest Freund, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mr. and Mrs. Francis S. Neilson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, and Prof. and Mrs. Otto Struve.

After dinner Sir Arthur is to lecture at the large university chapel on "The Expanding Universe." In the last few years he has become widely known outside scientific circles through the publication of two semi-popular books, "The Nature of the Physical World" and "Science and the Unseen World." He is the director of the observatory at Cambridge university.

The senior north side Infant Welfare center is sponsoring three lectures by Dr. Franz Alexander, head of the Institute of Psychoanalysis in Chicago, in the home of Mrs. Wilton B. Martin, 191 East Walton place, next Friday morning, and on April 20 and April 27.

Mrs. Robert W. Hyman, chairman of the north side seniors, is in charge of the lecture course.

Sunbeam League Holds Party Today.

For the sake of nine kindergartens providing sunshine and care for many of the city's underprivileged boys and girls, the Sunbeam league is having its annual card party this afternoon in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Always one of spring's gayest affairs, it promises to be more festive than ever this year with the places at 250 tables spoken for.

Mrs. Frank Hixon, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, Mrs. Francis Neilson, Mrs. J. Sidney Condit, and Mrs. Leroy Goddard are some of those who will be hostesses.

Of interest will be the party programs, for they have signature pages that have been subscribed by many of the city's "prominants," and even President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Mary Isham Prentice Porter is in Chicago for a visit, staying at the Ambassador hotel. She is planning to spend a few days with her son and daughter-in-law, the John P. Porters, in Lake Forest, and it is likely that she will also stay with her other sons and daughters-in-law, the Henry H. Porters and the S. Prentice Porters, before she goes east to join her daughter, Miss Mary Porter, who was here for several weeks before her mother arrived.

The Harold Walker Lowises are being congratulated on the birth of another baby girl. She was born last Wednesday at St. Luke's hospital and is the second grandchild of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Brawley. The Lowises' elder daughter is named Mary Catherine for her mother, the former Catherine Brawley, and her aunt, Miss Betty Brawley, whose real name is Mary Elizabeth.

The Junior Friends of Art will meet for luncheon today in the lantern room of the Drake hotel. A program of one act plays and songs will follow in the Gold Coast room.

The chamber music lovers of society will attend the fourth and last concert of the season of the Chicago Chamber Music committee series tonight. The Mischakoff String quartet will appear in the Orchestra hall foyer at 8:15 o'clock.

Don't Essay to Make Children Too Unselfish

Self-Conscious Virtue Turns Them Into Prigs.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Don't work too hard over making your children unselfish. Too much unselfishness is quite as bad as too little.

Does that sound quite the opposite of what I said the other day—about setting your children an example in unselfishness and consideration so that they would learn to give, not only in material ways, but in other ways, too?

Well, it isn't the opposite. All it is is a reminder that all training of children must be done with a great deal of judgement. It is a warning not to force emotions and not to overdo—especially in this matter of unselfishness.

If a child grows up in a warm, human, intelligent family he's pretty sure to be an all right person.

Don't try deliberately to cultivate virtues. Too much unselfishness can become a vice. If it's a conscious thing it can make a child smug, or priggish or a victim of other people. Besides, too much unselfishness frequently makes other people selfish. So use your discretion in developing this virtue in your children.

And don't expect too much of it in little children—and this is important. They have a lot to do to get their bearings in this world. They have to find their way. For a long time their role in life is to receive—always receive. This is just because of their physical helplessness and mental immaturity. Their whole effort is directed toward development of self—of managing, of learning, of relating themselves to the people and things around them. It is an absorbing task and our chief service is to give them every opportunity for finding and handling themselves. We must not try to impose moral ideas too early. Of course they do begin to give, early and spontaneously, a beaming smile, a cracker, a soft, warm hug, or wet little kiss.

But let us not foist this idea upon them before they are ready for it or can understand it. Even in their play when they need to share or take turns we must use justice and good sense rather than attempt a training based purely on unselfishness. This sharing in babyhood is an adjustment, not an emotional thing.

Yellow for Sports

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—As you have been informed, yellow is the smartest shade in Paris for the simple sports suit, dress, or coat. Schiaparelli and Vionnet, both leaders in color launching, promote this hue for this sort of outfit. The shade of yellow is not restricted.

The suit shown here is in Schiaparelli's new Tokay wine yellow, and in addition it combines the checked jacket with the plain skirt. Further, the jacket of this suit has Schiaparelli's summer version of her "stormy weather" revers of the middseason. They begin, as you see, well below the throat instead of hiding half the head as their forerunners did.

The skirt is straight and narrow and is made of plain yellow tweed. The short-sleeved blouse is made of yellow cotton and fastens on three black clips at the left side from the neckline to the armhole.

'Big Hearted Herbert,' Popular in New York, Coming to Chicago

"Big Hearted Herbert," a comedy now popular in New York, is the latest entry among Chicago's spring playbills. It will begin an engagement at the Cort theater on or about April 22. "The Curtain Rises," now in its thirteenth week at the Cort with Louise Groody as star, will end its run April 21.

Eddie Dowling, the impresario of "Big Hearted Herbert," recently began to form a new cast for a Chicago engagement. Taylor Holmes is a possibility for the role originated by J. C. Nugent, head of the acting family that includes the well-known Elliott Nugent. Other members of the New York cast are Alan Bunce, Marjorie Weed, William Roselle, and Helen Carew.

Katharine Cornell has announced that her first repertory season in New York will begin next December, and that Ibsen's "Rosmersholm" will be added to her list of plays. C. C.

DANDRUFF
Soon Destroys the Hair

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get some plain ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring, using enough to moisten the scalp and rubbing it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store. It won't cost you more than thirty-five cents (35c). No matter how much dandruff you have, this simple remedy never fails.

RULES DRY LAW CONVICTS MUST STAY IN PRISON

U. S. Court Finds Repeal Makes No Difference.

Springfield, Ill., April 2.—[Special.]—Federal Judge J. Earl Major today ruled that repeal of the eighteenth amendment and laws enacted under it have no effect upon persons serving sentences in prison convicted before it was accomplished. The decision resulted from an action seeking the release of Edward M. Behen, jailed Feb. 27 for violating the national dry law.

This was the first case decided in this federal district, following the recent Supreme court decision on pending prohibition cases.

Assistant United States Attorney Marks P. Alexander, who argued the case in the federal court recently, said an adverse decision would prevent the collection of more than $100,000 owed the government in this district from violation of the prohibition law. It is the opinion of Lee W. Ensel, one of the Springfield attorneys responsible for bringing the action, Judge Major's decision probably will be appealed.

In presenting Behen's case before the court, Attorneys A. M. Fitzgerald and George Drach argued that his imprisonment was unlawful because of "the unreasonable length of time which elapsed between the entry of judgment and the order of commitment."

They further said that Behen was not actually committed to prison until after the twenty-first amendment had been adopted. Because the execution of sentence was stayed by the court at different times, Behen's attorneys held that the court retained jurisdiction. On the other hand, Alexander claimed that the court's jurisdiction ended with the pronouncement of sentence and the end of the court term.

Consider Lower Tarif Rates to Increase Liquor Imports

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—Lower liquor tarifs as a measure to bring down liquor prices and at the same time increase the government's revenues are being studied by the treasury department, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. revealed today.

Secretary Morgenthau admitted that he is disappointed both over the government's tarif collections under existing duties and disturbed over the continued high price of liquor in this country. He has his experts investigating the probable effects of a rate cut.

Liquor duties are the one item in the government's budget which is falling far below expectations, the treasury head said. He released figures showing that during the three months of December, January, and February less than 13 million dollars was collected.

Expected 89 Million a Year.

The treasury had estimated that it would collect 89 million dollars from liquor, wine and beer duties in this fiscal year. At the present rate of collections the total will not pass 30 million dollars before the fiscal year closes on June 30.

At the same time Secretary Morgenthau said that he believes liquor prices are too high. Lowering of the tarif on foreign imports would reduce the costs of alien whiskies and wines and exert a similar effect on domestic liquors.

A total tax of $7 a gallon must be paid on imported distilled spirits under existing laws. The tarif is $5 a gallon, plus a $2 internal revenue tax on each gallon. Wine duties vary. Importers have complained that the tarif makes up a disproportionate item in their costs, keeping the prices up. The federal alcohol control administration, investigating the low level of imports, discovered that small importers were unable to finance the payment of tarif duties in many instances.

Imports Kept Low.

Secretary Morgenthau's liquor statistics made public today showed that only 4,678,601 gallons of foreign distilled spirits had been imported between repeal and the end of February. Wine imports amount to 3,650,562 gallons during the same period. The spirits paid a total tarif of $9,630,359 while the wine tarifs were approximately $3,200,000.

By cutting the tarif and encouraging imports, the treasury might actually increase its duty collections on liquors, according to suggestions now being investigated by Secretary Morgenthau.

The treasury head said he was satisfied with the tax yield on domestic liquor. It has brought in more than 50 million dollars, while the beer tax, with which Secretary Morgenthau expressed especial gratification, has produced 93 million dollars since last July 1.

MORAL TRAINING IS SCHOOL'S JOB, ASSERTS KINLEY

Declares Public Expects It of All Colleges.

New York, April 2.—(Special.)—Dr. David Kinley, president emeritus of the University of Illinois, took sharp issue with those university administrators who contend they have no responsibility for training the moral character of their students, in an address here tonight before the New York Illini club.

Because he believes there is an age below which immaturity of judgment and inexperience is certain, Dr. Kinley expressed the conviction that the first two or three years of student life need supervision and guidance both in studies and in conduct.

"The responsibility rests on the authorities of the institutions," he said. "The public expects it and parents demand it. It is our American educational tradition."

Includes Endowed Schools.

His remarks referred to both privately endowed and tax supported institutions because "both are public institutions, amenable in some degree to control by public opinion and policy, and even endowed institutions receive public support in the degree to which their property is exempt from taxation."

"In my opinion a university officer who disclaims responsibility for the setting up of proper standards of life for the guidance of his young protégés, and who says that the university has nothing to say about student organizations, their methods or their purposes is not fit for his position," he charged.

"Since the public has so large an interest in our higher educational institutions it has the right to insist on certain standards of life, conduct, and teaching, as well as on rational, sound, administrative policies on the part of those in charge of the institutions as well as on the part of students who are privileged to enjoy their advantages," he said.

Freedom, but Not License.

"Minorities in various faculties demand the right or privilege to teach what they please, when they please, as they please, without accountability either to the institution or the public. On the student side there has been considerable growth of sentiment that since they are of university age they need no restraint through rules establishing standards of conduct and scholarship. Some of them, like the faculty minorities spoken of, want authority without responsibility, freedom without accountability. The defense for these things usually is freedom of speech, freedom of teaching, liberalism, and the necessity of having the young people acquainted with 'real' life! These are the academic shibboleths.

"We all believe in freedom of speech and freedom of teaching, but freedom is not license.

"What many of these people really want is not the right to express their opinions but the right to compel institutions and individuals to furnish them a platform. If an institution objects to bringing in lecturers on companionate marriage or for the advocacy of communism its officers are called reactionary and their action is called a denial of freedom of speech. Not so. Those who want these lectures can hire halls and talk themselves hoarse, but they have no right to insist that a university shall furnish them a platform and promote their causes."

3 DEFENDANTS FAIL TO APPEAR IN HOLDUP TRIAL

A special squad of state's attorney's police yesterday began a search for three of six youths charged with robbing the St. Columbanus Catholic church rectory, 931 East 71st street, who failed to appear at the opening of their trial before Judge Donald S. McKinley in the Criminal court. Their bonds were ordered forfeited.

Those who failed to appear were Tony Muccrino, Albert Torrari, and Joseph Rocco. Their co-defendants, who were in court, are Peter Frontope, Patrick Whalen, and James Arido. All six are charged with terrorizing the priests and Mrs. Clara N. Noonan Rettke, 7440 South Michigan avenue, a visitor, and the housekeeper in the robbery of the rectory on Oct. 29, 1933. The bandits took $1,000 from the safe and a diamond ring worth $400 and $3 in cash from Mrs. Rettke.

State's Attorney Courtney said that the bond forfeitures—$7,500 in the case of Muccrino; $10,000 for Torrari, and $5,000 for Rocco—would stand, and that he would ask Judge McKinley, who continued the case until April 11, to increase the new bonds if the youths are captured.

E. J. Stevens Files Appeal with State Supreme Court

Ernest J. Stevens, who was convicted of embezzlement of funds of the Illinois Life Insurance company, filed his appeal yesterday in the office of the clerk of the state Supreme court in Springfield. A writ of error, which allows the appeal to be filed, was granted by Justice Frederic R. De Young. Bond of $10,000 was allowed pending the outcome of the appeal, which will be heard by the Supreme court in the June term. Among the 64 assignments of error is the point of the illegality of the selection of the grand jury which returned the indictment.

BLACKHAWKS OPEN CUP SERIES IN DETROIT TONIGHT

CHICAGO MEETS SEASON'S JINX IN TITLE PLAY

Seeks Early Lead in 5 Game Series.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Blackhawks, who played good hocky through the greater part of the National league season, better hocky at its close, and their best hocky in their first two playoff rounds, will attempt to go beyond the superlative tonight at Detroit when they battle the Red Wings in the first game of the final series for the Stanley cup and the world's championship.

The entire Hawk personnel, with the exception of the injured Jack Leswick, who was left home, departed for Detroit shortly after noon yesterday in a jubilant mood, and with reason. They had submitted an amazing demonstration in the final two games of the regular season by defeating the Toronto Maple Leafs. Thus far they have played the best hocky of any of the six teams which entered the Stanley cup playoffs, their scoring achievements being the most convincing proof of their supremacy to date.

There's Added Incentive.

Tonight, however, they will play the one team in the league which appeared to exercise some strange power over them during their regular season. The Wings won four of the six games played between the two, tied one and lost only one.

Aside from any desire to get even with Detroit, the final bracket carries with it not only a world series complexion, but also is in the nature of a city series, since the Wings are the property of James Norris Sr., wealthy Chicagoan. To strengthen that angle there is a personal rivalry among at least three of the players, Donnie McFadyen of the Hawks, and Eddie Wiseman and Walter Buswell of the Wings, having once been colleagues here with the Shamrocks of the American association in the employ of Norris.

Two Games at Detroit.

The game tonight is the first of two which will be played in Detroit within three days, the two meeting again Thursday. They will return here Sunday night at the Stadium, with the fourth game of the series scheduled for Tuesday. If a fifth contest be necessary, it will be played at Detroit. The third game here Sunday night will be the third consecutive sellout of the cup series, judging by the throngs which flocked to the Hawks' ticket offices yesterday. Those who applied there found only what was left of the tickets which were purchased by the Hawk fans immediately after the game Sunday night.

World's championship series are novel to the Wings, this being the first appearance in the cup finale, but the Hawks will feel at home, having gone through the final of the 1930-'31 competition before losing to the Canadiens in the deciding game.

Hawks' Record Better.

The Hawks, incidentally have a far better Stanley cup record than their opponents, since both entered the league in the 1926-'27 season. The Hawks finished in third place in the American division that year, setting a new league scoring record of 115 goals, but were eliminated by Boston, the ultimate world's champion, in their first round. The Wings wound up in last place that year. The Hawks at the time had such well remembered workmen as Dick Irvin, Babe Dye, Mickey McKay and George Hay.

Since that inaugural season the Hawks have progressed steadily, although they did not reach the playoffs the following two years, finishing in the cellar both times. In 1929-'30, they came home second in their division, but the pesky Canadiens knocked them out in the first playoff round. The following season, they whipped the Leafs and the Rangers to reach the final with the Canadiens. They lost the fifth game to the Frenchmen at Montreal by a score of 2 to 0.

Lose Once to Champions.

In 1930-'31 they finished second in the regular standings, but lost to Toronto, which went on to win the cup, in the first round. They were last in the American section last year. As for this year, there is no need to detail their winning fight for second place and their subsequent decisions over the Canadiens and the Maroons in the first two innings of the current series.

Hocky never having been defined as dainty, the Hawks will enter the series with a physical advantage over the Wings, who were forced to go the full route of five games to eliminate the dreaded Maple Leafs. The Hawks, who have gained in confidence and spirit with each game of the series, will be in good condition with the exception of Chuck Gardiner, who

SONJA HENIE TO FIGURE SKATE AT CHICAGO STADIUM

Sonja Henie, pretty perennial world's figure skating champion, will perform at the Chicago Stadium on April 13, 14 or 15. The exact date will be announced within a few days.

A change in her sailing plans for her return home to Oslo, Norway, makes possible a tour of the central states, she notified the Stadium yesterday.

The Norwegian American Athletic association headed the action to bring the greatest of all figure skaters here. Edward A. Mahlke and Frank M. Kalteux, secretary and president, respectively, of the United States skating union were among the Chicagoans behind the movement.

"My tour of the west will include Minneapolis, Detroit, Muskegon, and Chicago," Miss Henie said. "Then I will return to New York where I will make my third showing in Madison Square Garden on April 30 or 31."

On two occasions, 15,500 persons turned out to witness her skating in New York.

A big skating show, which promises to be one of the most spectacular of its kind shown in this city, is being planned. Miss Henie may bring several skaters with her.

With Sonja will come her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. William Henie, who have never missed one of their daughter's skating performances since she began winning world's championships eight years ago. Miss Henie has never been defeated within the last eight winters.

Adolph Wiater Is Awarded Decision Over John Pacek

Adolph Wiater, Green Bay, Wis., heavyweight, scored his twelfth straight victory last night when he pounded out a six round decision over Johnny Pacek at the Marigold Gardens before a capacity crowd of 1,400.

Pacek, making a bid for his sixth triumph since turning pro, rallied in the last two rounds, but was unable to overcome Wiater's big lead piled up in the early rounds. Both boys are former Golden Glove winners.

Gene Salvatore of La Salle, Ill., defeated Harry Booker of Chicago in the six round semi-windup. Mickey O'Shea handed Elmar Hedquist a four round beating. Art Zimmer defeated Sammy Wallace in four rounds and Art Donovan knocked out Jack O'Malley in the first round.

HAGENLACHER, COCHRAN ENTER TIE FOR 18.2 LEAD

Matsuyama Loses to German, 400-282.

Kinrey Matsuyama	2	3	140	12	1,583	79
Ora C. Morningstar	0	6	137	0	1,217	76

Erie Hagenlacher, the German contestant in the world's championship 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at the 131 South Wabash Recreation room, tied with Welker Cochran, San Francisco, for first place when he won from Kinrey Matsuyama, Japanese entry, last night, 400 to 282 in 13 innings.

Cochran beat Ora C. Morningstar in 11 innings, 400 to 209, in the afternoon match.

Hagenlacher terminated the game with unfinished high run of the evening, a 79. Matsuyama had a high run of 95 in the 12th inning. This was preceded by other creditable threats of 68 in the 3d and 77 in the 9th.

Hoppe to Play Tonight.

This afternoon's game will bring together Hagenlacher and Ora C. Morningstar, San Diego, who is in fifth position. In the evening Willie Hoppe, who still shows promise of winning, will meet Matsuyama.

Matsuyama won the lag and got the balls together for a line nurse which netted him 27 points before he missed. Hagenlacher was left fairly safe, but ran 13. Hagenlacher again had the balls rolling to his liking in the second inning and added 57 before missing a hard masse.

Matsuyama Clicks 68.

Matsuyama was left in a nice position and clicked off a cluster of 68 in the third, missing a one cushion draw. Hagenlacher missed a similar shot after running three. Matsuyama made two and then missed a two cushion draw. Hagenlacher added 40 in the fourth. After Matsuyama went scoreless, Hagenlacher came back with another two cushion duck shot and missed. Matsuyama again tried to play safe and Hagenlacher broke through the latter's defense, running 24.

Matsuyama got 3 in his half of the seventh inning and Hagenlacher played a safety. The Japanese scored one point and missed a difficult three cushion shot. Hagenlacher added 61 to his total before missing. Matsuyama got in a run of 77 before being kissed off. Hagenlacher showed some of the finest billiards seen in this meet in scoring 68 points in the ninth.

Needs 79; Makes Them.

The Japanese would not admit defeat and, with the score 320 to 178 against him, ran 95 in the first half of the 12th. Hagenlacher scored one in his half and Matsuyama stroked 9 to open the 13th.

Needing 79 points to win the game, Hagenlacher gathered the balls for a line nurse and did not lose them until he had completed the block.

Cochran's best inning, the second, produced a run of 156, two short of tying his meet record. Morningstar's best cluster was 59 in the sixth inning.

Score by innings:

MATSUYAMA—27 0 68 3 0 0 2 1 77 0 1 95 9—Total, 282.

Akron, O., April 2.—(AP)—Bill Tilden defeated Ellsworth Vines tonight in a professional tennis show, 6-4, 6-3. Keith Gledhill defeated Dr. Alfred Chapin, 6-3, 6-2. Vines teamed with Gledhill to defeat Tilden and Chapin, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6, in the doubles. Only 550 saw the matches.

Doctors Fail to Learn Cause of Cochrane's Illness

Lakeland, Fla., April 2.—(AP)—Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, still was in bed today, suffering from some ailment which his physicians thus far have been unable to diagnose.

The consensus was, however, that he is not suffering from appendicitis, and Dr. G. C. Freeman, who is in charge of the case, said that if no more symptoms develop Cochrane probably will be released after two more days of observation.

Grave fears were felt that Cochrane would have to undergo an operation that would deprive the Tigers of his services for as much as eight weeks. It was a sorry prospect for Frank J. Navin, president of the club, who had spent $100,000 to bring Cochrane to the Tigers as manager.

Then further examination today failed to reveal any symptoms of appendicitis, and Dr. Freeman said that "the bare possibility of appendicitis is discredited," but that "urethral involvement, such as a kink or a small stone, is possible; gall bladder infection or gall stone may be the cause."

CUBS GIVE GALAN THIRD BASE JOB TO OPEN SEASON

Bush or Warneke to Get Pitching Assignment.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

El Paso, Tex., April 2.—Augie Galan, the youngster purchased from the San Francisco club, will be in charge of the third base job when the Cubs start the National league race. Guy Bush or Lon Warneke will pitch the season's opener at Cincinnati on April 17. Manager Charley Grimm expressed himself definitly on these points today as his pennant hopefuls rolled eastward after a month of conditioning and barnstorming in California.

AUGIE GALAN.

The instalation of Galan at third, however, must not be regarded as anything more than an experiment. The Cubs still have Woody English, who is such a capable third baseman that almost any big league team could make good use of his services. But Galan has done remarkably well in the pre-season games and English, because of ailments, hasn't had a chance to get himself into fighting trim.

He'll Have to Learn to Throw.

There still are some things about Galan that must be determined before he can be accepted as a sure fire sensation. There isn't any doubt about his ability to pounce on batted balls. He also is speedy on the bases, and that is something the Cubs need. To offset this he is decidedly erratic in his throwing to first base. He is practicing on an overhand throw to assure greater accuracy, but isn't going to master that trick overnight. Then, too, there is the matter of hitting. He had a fat average of .356 in the Coast league last season, but major league pitchers are far more skilled in the knack of finding a batter's weakness, if he has such.

During the four games with Pittsburgh at Los Angeles Grimm and a lot of others who know baseball were expecting to see the Pirates start bunting on Galan. The youngster showed he was bad on his throws, and bunting was the logical maneuver. The Pirates apparently never thought of doing it, which is pretty convincing proof that their manager is not a very observing fellow. A bunt to a third baseman calls for a hurried throw and Galan still must prove he can do that.

Root, Tinning Worry Grimm.

Grimm apparently isn't feeling any too optimistic over his pitching staf. The chief sources of worry are Charley Root and Bud Tinning. Both were wobbly whenever they appeared in exhibition games. Such unimpressive showings, however, shouldn't mean a thing. Last season there was a similar panic over the same two men, but Root finished the year with 15 victories and Tinning with 13. Their respective records probably would have been even better had they been used regularly.

The Cubs will reach San Antonio tomorrow afternoon and will devote Wednesday and Thursday to games with the Texas league team of that community. Pat Malone will pitch the first. From there the Cubs will go home for Saturday and Sunday affairs with the Washington Senators. Bush will start the opener of this series. After the Washington series the Cubs are scheduled to stay in Chicago and play games among themselves, but if the weather is bad Grimm might move the entire outfit down to some such place as West Baden, Ind.

GALLIVAN STOPS PITTSBURGH IN LAST 4 INNINGS

Bonura Hits Safely in 13th Game.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Bernardino, Cal., April 2.—The White Sox this afternoon started off against the Pittsburgh Pirates as if they meant to do a lot of winning business, but after the first inning, in which they made all their runs, they encountered much discouragement. In the end the Pirates won, 5 to 3.

It was the third time this year that George Earnshaw has started a game and it was the third time that George has been the losing pitcher. The game likewise was the third in three with the Pirates in which the Sox finished second.

There's Still Hope!

The Sox were not especially discouraged with the outcome, for thus far they have lost only five of six games played with major league competition. They still have eleven more games with the Pirates and two with the Cubs before the opening of the American league season and as soon as the first string pitchers get rested they are going to win a lot of ball games. At least that's what they say.

The brightest rays of sunshine this afternoon had to do with Zeke Bonura, the big boy the south side fans are going to like, and Phil Gallivan, a non-member of Fonseca's old rockin' chair squad. Zeke made two of the Sox's eight hits and their only extra baser. It was the 13th game in which he has hit safely, thus far not having failed in any game.

Gallivan took over the pitching after Earnshaw wandered off the scene at the outset of the sixth inning and allowed only one hit in four innings a contrasted with the eight made off Earnshaw in the preceding five innings.

Simmons Flops Again.

The Sox made half their hit total in the first inning before Hal Smith got going. They made two more off Smith in the third. They made one off Harris in the seventh and another off Bill with one out in the ninth.

Al Simmons, who failed to get a hit in either of the two week end games with the Pasadena Merchants, hung up the so-called horse collar again today, failing to get the ball out of the infield.

The same teams will play in Yuma, Ariz, tomorrow, with Ted Lyons trying his hand for the Sox and Swift the probable performer for the enemy.

Everybody in the infield helped Earnshaw retire the Pirates in the first inning. Dykes threw out L. Waner, Appling threw out Lindstrom, and Hayes threw out Jensen.

Sox Do Scoring Early.

The Sox, temporarily very peppy after getting through the first half of the inning so handsomely, lost little time in hopping on Smith in their half of the first inning, in which they scored three runs.

Swanson opened with a single past Lavagetto and stopped at second on Uhalt's single to center. Bonura doubled to left center, Swanson scoring and Uhalt stopping at third. Simmons walked, filling the bases. Appling popped to Lavagetto. Dykes singled past Vaughan, Uhalt and Bonura scoring and Simmons reaching third. Hayes fouled to Suhr and Shea fanned.

Traynor and Vaughan filed to Uhalt in the Pirate second before the Pittsburghers got their first runner on base. Suhr beat out a single to Hayes and Lavagetto walked. Earnshaw deflected Veltman's shot to Hayes who threw to first for the putout.

Pirates Pitch up Two.

The Pirates stepped out for a pair of runs in the first of the third. With one down L. Waner walked and went to third while Lindstrom was reaching first on Appling's throwing error. Jensen singled to left, L. Waner scoring and Lindstrom stopping at second. Traynor lined to Uhalt and Lindstrom took third after the catch. Vaughan singled to left center, scoring Lindstrom, but got a sample of Simmons' throwing genius when he tried to

GOLDEN GLOVES BOXERS COMPETE IN A. A. U. MEET

Represent Central Chapter in National Tourney.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Six amateur boxers from the Chicago district, who will represent the Central association in the National A. A. U. tournament at St. Louis tomorrow, Thursday and Friday, will leave this morning from Union station at 11:30 on the Chicago and Alton. At Springfield the other two members of the squad will board the train. The team will be in charge of Coach John Behr of the Illinois Athletic club.

The Central association team, composed of boys who participated in the 1934 Golden Gloves tournament, follows: William Treest, Batavia, Ill.; Walter Matthys, St. Charles, Ill.; Ario Soldati, Princeton, Ill.; Jesse Robinson, Phil Kenneally and Otis Thomas, Chicago, and Armanda Sicilia and Tommy Barry, Springfield, Ill.

Moved from East.

Heretofore the national tournament has been held in the east. For many years Boston was host to the boxers of the country. Three years ago the Metropolitan association was awarded the tournament and it was held in Madison Square Garden in 1931 and 1932. Last winter the meet again was held in Boston, but the Missouri A. A. U. won the right to hold this year's competition.

Three intercity Golden Gloves champions are on in the Central association squad. More might have been named except that the Central association includes only Illinois and Wisconsin. Boys from Indiana must compete from the Indiana-Kentucky association and the Golden Gloves boys from Michigan are members of the Michigan association.

Kenneally Has Chance.

Phil Kenneally, who punched out a decision over Pat Robinson, a veteran lightweight of the New York Golden Gloves team, in Madison Square Garden last week, has an excellent chance to add a national championship to his growing list of honors. Ario Soldati, of Princeton, Ill., who knocked out Philip Sommese in the first round of his New York bout, is seeking the light heavyweight crown. Tommy Barry, an intercity winner over David Crawford, New York champion, is entered in the 118 pound class.

Otis Thomas, Chicago's newest heavyweight star, although beaten in New York by Bob Pastor, New York university freshman, is rated high in this division. Pastor will not compete at St. Louis and even if he did, the decision between Thomas and Pastor was so close that another fight might reverse the findings.

Treest Seeks Title.

Bill Treest, Chicago's Golden Gloves champion who lost a close decision to Mark Hough, New York Negro star, is another Central association entry who has better than an even chance for victory.

Walter Matthys, who had experience in last year's national meet at Boston and who was a member of the intercity championship team a year ago, will compete in the featherweight division at St. Louis.

RUNYAN'S 270 WINS CAVALIER GOLF TOURNEY

Shoots Four Rounds Under 70; Cooper 2d.

Virginia Beach, Va., April 3.—(AP)—Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., professional, celebrated the end of the winter golfing season today by winning the Cavalier open with 270, one of the lowest 72 hole scores in tournament history.

Runyan, leading money winner of the year, added another $300 to his purse by shooting the four rounds in 69—69—66—67—270 and finished eight shots ahead of Harry Cooper.

Wins by Ten Strokes.

Professionals recalled that Bill Mehlhorn's 271 at El Paso some time ago was perhaps that lowest 72 hole total in a major tournament. The fact that winter rules were observed here and that the course is only 6,000 yards in length detracts little from Runyan's play.

Runyan's total was just 10 strokes under the 280 with which he won here last year. Cooper, who slipped to 75 this morning, came home with a par 68 in the last round to take second and $250 in prize money.

Tied for third place were Bill Mehlhorn and Ky Laffoon. They were together in second place at 209 as the last round started and both turned in 72's.

Smith Shoots 283.

Craig Wood, who finished with 68—69 today was alone at 282, while Horton Smith and Bobby Cruickshank were grouped at 283. Smith had a 70 in the final round and Cruickshank a 68.

Denny Shute, British open champion, and Victor Ghezzi were back at 285. Tommy Armour had 289. Chandler Harper, Portsmouth state champion, led the amateurs with 290.

Baseball Season Will Start Today on Pacific Coast

San Francisco, Cal., April 3.—(AP)—The Pacific Coast baseball league will open its 32d season here tomorrow. Portland will play at Los Angeles, Seattle at San Francisco, Hollywood at Oakland, and Missions at Sacramento.

All the fanfare and ceremony of a few years ago when high prices were paid for recruits and the turnstiles clicked a merry tune, will be in evidence.

In Los Angeles an old custom will be revived, with a morning parade, brass bands and all. Los Angeles won the pennant last season and in some quarters is favored to repeat.

FREY, BROOKLYN SHORTSTOP, HURT BY PITCHED BALL

Orlando, Fla., April 2.—[Special.]—Lonnie Frey, 21-year-old shortstop of the Brooklyn club, was taken to the hospital here shortly after 1 o'clock today after a ball pitched by Leslie Munns in batting practice had rendered him unconscious.

Dr. Frank Gray, the attending physician, pronounced the injury a moderate concussion of the brain after an examination of the X-ray, which was taken at 3 o'clock.

Frey, who was carried to the club house about ten minutes after being hit and taken to the Orange General hospital in an ambulance, was suffering some pain tonight but was entirely conscious. Dr. Gray said he must remain quiet for several days and forbade his teammates seeing him.

Kleko Beats McCarten in Six Rounds

Joey Kleko, west side lightweight, won a six round decision over Jackie McCarten in the main attraction last night at the Midway Arena. Jack Kranz knocked out Biff Bennett in the third round in the semi-windup.

Henry Fuscaldo, making his first start as a pro, went four rounds to a draw with Floyd Embry. Lou Vines and Eddie Smith also drew in four rounds, and George Trapp knocked out Don Buck in the third round.

A 15 round featherweight title bout between Champion Freddy Miller and Paul Dazzo of Chicago will replace the Barney Ross-Dominick Manceni junior welterweight championship contest at Louisville, Ky., Derby eve, May 4.

Promoters Eddie Heverin and Jimmy Dell had been informed by the Kentucky athletic commission that the one who obtained the best attraction would receive the date. When the matches were submitted to the Kentucky commission yesterday it sanctioned Dell's Miller-Dazzo match in preference to that between Ross and Manceni.

Dazzo, who is resting following a hard bout against Leo Rodak recently, is to begin training in two weeks. Miller boxes Winfrid [Moon] Mullins at Vincennes, Ind., tonight. Then he goes to Minneapolis, Minn., to do battle with Jackie Sharkey on April 13.

The Illinois athletic commission yesterday sanctioned a 10 round tussle between Frank Battaglia, Winnipeg, Man., middleweight, and Kid Leonard of East Moline, Ill., at the Chicago Stadium on April 12. Nate Lewis is arranging four supporting matches, two at eight rounds and two at six rounds.

The matchmaker announced that he has the promise of Vince Dundee, middleweight crownholder, to meet the winner in a 15 round title scrap in May.

A meeting is being arranged for April 17 at the Illinois Athletic club between Chairman Joe Triner and Commissioners George Getz and Packey McFarland of the state athletic commission and judges and referees, to discuss rules and regulations.

Frank Sigillo, Cicero lightweight, may fight Eddie Koppy or Tommy Corbett, Omaha, Neb., at Cicero stadium April 13. . . . Lorenzo Lovings, junior lightweight, who was erroneously reported as about to turn pro, is to make his next appearance on an amateur card tomorrow at Waukegan High school. . . . Charles Nelson of Granite City, Ill., is seeking a license to referee. . . . Jack Barry, second, has been indefinitely suspended.

John Duffy, chief inspector of the state athletic commission, is aiding the Chicago Flower Growers' association in the presentation of an amateur program tomorrow at the Lake Shore Athletic club. Eight contests are to be held between Golden Gloves and the C. Y. O. boxers.

Tonight's schedule of bouts follows:

At Davenport, Ia.—Henry Bother vs. Billy Moon [8], Johnny Pearen vs. Young Stanley [8], Harold Dunnington vs. Lou Taylor [6].

Londos Ordered to Sign Before Rule Is Waived

Jim Londos first must sign a contract to wrestle Gino Garibaldi here April 20 before the Illinois state athletic commission will even consider granting him permission to appear here two days after a bout in Montreal.

That was the edict handed down yesterday by Chairman Joe Triner, when the Chicago Stadium sought sanction for the return match between the two wrestlers, and the additional concession to Londos that he be allowed to arrive here the day before the match. The rules call for a wrestler to be here three days in advance of a match, but it has been waived on several occasions.

Commissioner George Getz was for denying the request at once, but before the question could be put to a vote, the Stadium was instructed to sign Londos and then present his request.

40 Maroons Report for Spring Drill

The University of Chicago's 1934 football team took its first workout of the spring practice season yesterday. The day was the first anniversary of Clark Shaughnessy's régime as coach, and he appeared pleased with his players, his assistants and the weather.

Forty players and six coaches were in uniform and another 30 candidates are expected today when registration for the university's spring quarter is completed. Coach Shaughnessy introduced the players to Marchmont Schwartz, former Notre Dame star, who is assistant coach, and Otto Strohmeier, assistant coach, who was ill last autumn but has now recovered sufficiently to resume work with the ends. Other coaches are Nels Norgren, Sam Horwitz, and Julian Lopez.

Two Huskies Report.

Two 200 pound linemen who were not in school last autumn, Bartlett Peterson and Edmund Wolfenson, appeared in suits yesterday. Shaughnessy will take charge of the line, delegating the back field to Schwartz and Lopez.

Several stars who are in other sports will be unable to appear regularly for the five week practice session. These include Jay Berwanger, who is out for track, and Johnny Baker, end, who is pitcher on the baseball team.

Lose Three Regulars.

The entire spring practice will be devoted to fundamentals, Shaughnessy said. The Maroons lose only three of last year's regulars by graduation. They are Pete Zimmer, Vin Sahlin, and Walt Manelkis. The team, however, faces one of the toughest schedules in Chicago's history. The schedules, after the opener with Carroll college, brings the Maroons against Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Purdue, Ohio State, Minnesota, and Illinois.

Pirates Pound Earnshaw to Beat Sox, 5-3

reach second. Arky was out, Simmons to Hayes, before Jensen could get within gunshot of home.

Bonura pushed off in the third with his second hit, a single to center, but Simmons hit into a double play. Appling dropped a single into short center and took second on a passed ball, but Dykes fanned.

Hayes' Error Helps Pirates.

With one down in the fifth Lindstrom bounced a double over Dykes' head. He scored the tying run on Jensen's second hit, a single to center. Traynor singled over second, putting Jensen on third. Hayes fumbled Vaughan's potential double play ball, Jensen scoring, Traynor reaching second, and Vaughan first. Suhr flied to Simmons. Lavagetto lined a single to left, scoring Traynor and putting Vaughan on third. Lavagetto reached second on Simmons' throw to the plate, but the inning ended when Dykes threw out Veltman.

Earnshaw gave up after the fifth and Gallivan inherited the 5 to 3 situation at the outset of the sixth. With one down, L. Waner doubled to right. Roettger, batting for Lindstrom, lined to Hayes and Jensen fanned.

Gallivan Gets a Hit.

The Sox ended a three inning hitless span after Harris had assumed the pitching task in the seventh. With one down Gallivan singled to center. Swanson popped to Lavagetto, but Uhalt walked. Bonura lifted a high fly to Roettger.

Gallivan prolonged his one-two-three effectiveness in the eighth by fanning Lavagetto and making Veltman and Harris supply easy outs.

Simmons concluded three games of hitless batting by opening the eighth with a pop to Thevenow and Appling went out the same way. Chamberlin flied to Jensen.

Gallivan disposed of L. Waner, Roettger, and Jensen in order in the Pirate ninth. With one down in the Sox half, Shea singled to right. Bordagaray batted for Gallivan and fanned. Swanson flied to L. Waner to end the contest.

HORNED TOAD DERBY.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., April 2.—Friend Arch: Well, Arch, it just occurred to me that I never told you about the Horned Toad Derby where I spent 25 cents and did not know whether to charge it on my expense account or not because I was not sure whether I went for my own pleasure or to get story for you.

Now, as a sporting event, Arch, a horned toad derby just isn't. It comes pretty close to a racket, withal a rather harmless, amusing racket. In the first place, the American Legion or some service club must sponsor the event to enlist local support.

With that sponsorship secured, local merchants are canvassed to make entry. Here in this comparatively small city 69 were secured at $6 per toad, only part of which they received back in prize money. Then in local newspapers appear accounts of toad training during the two weeks build-up. For instance, "Pure Milk" would be a dairy entry, "Ham and" from a restaurant, etc.

On the great night the derby is the last event. Meantime, games of chance with Legion members as operators are offered with small stakes, usually nickels and dimes. Odds against the player would put a roulette wheel to shame. There is a mechanical race horse game with 12 starters, prevailing odds against the winner 5 to 1. Bingo, bird cage, various raffles, and also a dance with a fee for each dance are held in conjunction.

Before the Derby, terrapin races on a similar plan take place. Half the money wagered is retained by the "house" and half paid back in prizes. These continue until the crowd becomes restless and clamors for the derby.

Meantime Derby tickets are being sold. Here is your surprise, Arch. Instead of buying a ticket on any particular toad, you buy a ticket representing a space on the rim of the track, about 12 feet in diameter, which has been divided into 69 spaces. Instead of a toad to represent him, each merchant who paid $6 had one of these numbered spaces designated by tiny flags.

To holders of tickets it matters not which toad is first off the board floored track. It is the numbered exit he chooses which determines the winner.

When the tin cover is lifted and the toads are released, only about half of the sluggish mass show animation. In behavior at the post and in "running," these toads put to shame any field of inconsistent thoroughbreds.

A toad may start for your exit at surprising speed with the result in no seeming doubt. Then, without reason, he stops stock still and calmly surveys the scene. Or he may go into reverse and then choose an entirely different direction. The whole thing is so haphazard and uncertain it is amusing, especially with backers shouting advice to the toads, which give no heed, of course.

The affair here netted $230 for the Legion and a like amount for the owners who share the proceeds. The toads, terrapins and paraphernalia are taken from town to town on a trailer attached to an auto. One is surprised how much equipment can be packed thus compactly.

The stunt originated in Phoenix, Ariz., about 4 years ago with the Lions club as sponsor. Other cities asked for it. Finally two young men took it up as a business and have been operating ever since. They are H. I. Chadbourne and J. B. Kemmering, with off season headquarters at Judson, Ind. The event proved so popular that for two years they did not get out of California because they had so many engagements there.

Mortality among the toads, fed with flies and other insect life, is comparatively small. Replacements are secured from Arizona.

And that's your Horned Toad Derby, Arch. Regards,

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

Hawks Open Final Series at Detroit

sustained a cut above his right eye Sunday, requiring five stitches, after Starr of the Maroons had flicked the Chicago goalie's brow with his skate on a solo rush.

Hawks' Defense Best.

During the regular season, the Wings won 24 games, lost 14, and tied 10, scoring 113 goals to their opponents' 98, for a final total of 58 points. The Hawks, who wound up the schedule with 51 points, won 20, lost 17, and tied 11. The Hawks were outnumbered by the Wings, offensively, counting 88 goals, but came up with the prize defensive record of the entire league. Gardiner, who won the Georges Vezina trophy for goalkeeping for the second time in his career, allowed only 83 goals, a new low, to be shot past him. Chuck has credited a large share of his work this year to his defense men—Lionel Conacher, Taffy Abel, Art Coulter, and Roger Jenkins.

The Hawks were able to defeat the Wings only once, winning at the Stadium, 4 to 0, on Dec. 14. They had lost at Detroit on Nov. 30, 2 to 1, and again on Dec. 12, 4 to 1. They tied at 1 to 1 here on Feb. 8 and the Wings took the last two games, here by a count of 3 to 0 on March 8 and at Detroit on March 11, 3 to 2.

The leading marksmen of the two teams for the 48 games of regular play were Paul Thompson of the Hawks, who finished fourth in the American section with 20 goals and 16 assists, one more scoring point than Laurie Aurie of the Wings, who had 35, gleaned from 16 goals and 19 assists.

Haligonian Wins Yacht Race from Florida to Cuba

HAVANA, April 2.—(AP)—Haligonian, a 45 foot schooner owned by Houston Wall of Tampa, Fla., captured class A honors in the fifth annual St. Petersburg-Havana yacht race today.

Trailing the three-masted schooner, Azara, owned and sailed by Hugh Matheson of Miami, and the ketch Vamarie, owned by Vadim Makaroff of Oyster Bay, Long Island, across the finish line, Haligonian, nevertheless, won class A honors by virtue of her handicap of six hours 24 minutes.

Azara, 113 footer, which was not only the largest, but the only class A-1 vessel in the race, was the first to finish the course. She sailed into Havana harbor at 4:09 o'clock this afternoon, 52 hours and nine minutes after the start had been made from St. Petersburg at noon Saturday.

Vamarie crossed the finish line less than a half hour later, at 4:38.25, but her lead of a little more than an hour and a half over Haligonian was insufficient to prevent Wall's schooner from taking the class A title. Vamarie was handicapped at one hour 28 minutes, while Haligonian, finishing at 6:17:10, was given an allowance of six hours 24 minutes.

Frank Battaglia Stops Larry Udell in Fifth

Donnelly Is Named Umpire by Harridge

Will Harridge, president of the American league, announced yesterday that Charles H. Donnelly, former National league umpire, will replace Roy Van Grafian on the American league's staf for 1934. All other umpires were retained.

No reason was given by President Harridge for Van Grafian's dismissal although it was known that several of his decisions brought protests from club owners last year. Van Grafian turned to umpiring in 1921 and achieved such distinctive success in the Pacific Coast league that the late Ban Johnson signed him for the American league eight years ago. He was on the world series umpiring staf in 1929.

Donnelly, a catcher during his playing days, officiated in the National league in 1931 and 1933, after which he was assigned to the International league. He also umpired in the Texas league in 1928 and 1929. Previously he managed ball clubs at Bristol, Tenn., and Orlando, Fla.

Other umpires reappointed by President Harridge were William Dineen, Syracuse, N. Y.; George Hildebrand, San Francisco; George Moriarty, Clarence [Brick] Owens and Emmet Ormsby, all of Chicago; William A. McGowan, Wilmington, Del.; Harry Geisel, Indianapolis; William Summers, Upton, Mass., and Louis C. Kelly, Rock Island, Ill.

Ohio Defeats Illini, 10-9, in Ninth Inning

Athens, O., April 2.—[Special.]—Ohio university defeated the University of Illinois, 10 to 9, in a baseball game today when Schrieber's drive into right center field scored Bartel from first after two were out in the ninth. Each team won two games in the series.

Illinois used four pitchers in an effort to stem Ohio's attack. Then base on balls helped the Ohio cause. The Illini came from behind, 8 to 3, to tie the score, 9 to 9, with rallies in the last three innings.

Illinois' attack included seven extra base hits, six of which were triples. Capt. Fred Frink of Illinois hit three triples and Kasch two. Score by innings:

EXPECT ILLINOIS HORSES TO REACH TOP FORM MAY 1

Prepare for Opening of Aurora Meeting.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Race horses which were wintered on Illinois farms and received their early training there are going to be close to their best racing condition when the season opens at the Aurora track on May 1.

This has been revealed during the last few days when a number of Illinois stables moved into quarters at the Fox Valley course. Four weeks of intensive training will find most of them in condition to put forth their best efforts.

It is quite a surprising situation to the officials of the Aurora track who are beginning to arrive on the job. In New York, Maryland, and at some of the training centers in Kentucky and Virginia the horses are at least six weeks behind in their training. Many of them will not be in condition to do much racing for six weeks or even for a longer period of time.

Illinois Horses Well Trained.

Cold, rainy and sometimes snowy weather during the late days of winter and early days of spring made it impossible in these states to give the horses much exercise. In Illinois the horses have been able to go through their regular training paces with only a few interruptions due to storms. As a result most of them need only some speed edging up to click the very first time they parade to the post.

The railbirds at Aurora are so confident the Illinois trained horses are in shape that they expect to see Supreme Sweet, the speedy mare from William Schmidt's Superior stable, step five furlongs in pretty close to a minute just as soon as Track Superintendent Placido Frigerio can whip the racing strip into its best condition.

Supreme Sweet wintered at Fairbury with others in the Superior stable string and appears to be in fine condition.

Aurora Officials Arrive.

Frigerio, along with Dick Leigh, the Aurora racing secretary, and Clifford Abbo, the chief of the placing judges, arrived at the Aurora course yesterday.

The best evidence that the horses which wintered in the east are far behind in their training was given yesterday during the running of the opening program at the Bowie track in Maryland.

This program marked the official opening of the eastern season. Five of the seven races were won by horses that have been racing at the winter tracks. The other two victories went to a couple of platers that haven't raced since last fall.

Bowie Feature Race to Miney Myerson, 9-2

Bowie, Md., April 2.—[Special.]—The eastern racing season opened today at Bowie with Miney Myerson, a 4 year old son of Amberjack, the winner of the Inaugural Handicap. A crowd of more than 10,000 saw the race. Eight of those named overnight were scratched because of the heavy track.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Curacao was the favorite and finished second, beaten three lengths. A length away Character got the show. The field was completed by Clotho, Crowning Glory, and Eschelon, a first starter.

Many from South.

The competitors included many of those which had been raced in Florida in recent months. Miney Myerson was one of these. He won four in a row during his stay in the south. He has raced for many owners, but today wore the colors of George W. Ogle, who also is his trainer.

The inaugural carried a purse of $2,000 added, with the winner's share being $1,460. Miney Myerson had up 108 pounds and was timed in 1:07 3-5 for the five and one-half furlongs. He returned $11.60 for $2.

Adopt Saliva Test.

One of the innovations the meeting included was the use of the saliva test, inaugurated in Florida at the instigation of Joseph E. Widener, a member of the Jocky club. The saliva test recently was adopted by the Maryland state racing commission.

BAER FELLS TREE AND LEAVES FOR A WARMER CAMP

Lake Tahoe, Cal., April 2.—[Special.]—A bitterly cold wind which swept this mountain lake resort today induced Max Baer to continue his training for a world heavyweight bout with Primo Carnera in the sunshine of the Sacramento valley. After chopping down a pine tree this morning, Max decided he could do a better conditioning job in a warmer climate.

Baer and his training camp retinue, including managers, planned to leave tonight for Fair Oaks, Cal., where Manager Ancil Hoffman has a ranch.

"We'll decide what we are going to do after we get to the ranch," Hoffman said. "We won't come back here—it's too cold. We have offers to place Max on an exhibition tour of the midwest and we may accept them."

KING WATCHES 7-1 SHOT WIN $5,500 SPRING HANDICAP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 2.—King George today watched Negro win the $5,500 Queen's prize spring handicap over the two mile course at Kempton Park. The winner, a bay colt owned by J. D. King, was at 7 to 1 in the betting. He defeated Brunswick, owned by Somerville Tattersall, by a length and a half. Solatium, whose owner is F. Pratt, finished a head back of the second place horse. King George's entrant, Fox Earth, was never a factor. A slight illness prevented Queen Mary from attending the race.

CHICAGO YOUTH BOWLS 705 IN A. B. C. SINGLES

Wells Takes All-Events Lead with 1,958.

Peoria, Ill., April 2.—[Special.]—Some of the best scoring in the history of the American Bowling congress dethroned leaders in the minor events of the national meet today as Chicago and Columbus bowlers rolled into top positions.

Clyde Wells of Columbus, who scored 681 in sending his Held Funeral Directors to second place in the team event, followed with a doubles score of 648 and a 629 in the singles to take the all-events lead, displacing Freddie Weber of Milwaukee by four pins. Wells, rolling a wide sweeping hook ball, had scattered pins in all directions to score 1,958 in his nine games.

Youngster Bowls 705.

Matt Faetz Jr., 19 year old Chicago bowler competing in his first A. B. C. tourney, took second place in the singles with a total of 705. Faetz put together games of 233, 226, and 246. Foetz comes from a family of bowlers. His father won the all-events here in 1915 and his brother Leo is a member of the Blue Ribbons, who now occupy fifth place in the team event with a 2,986 total.

Chicagoans created four other changes among leaders. Roy Tagney and Harry Krebethke climbed to the third place in the doubles with 1,287. Tagney had 622 and Krebethke 666.

Krebethke took fourth place in the all-events with 1,926, while Roy Tagney, a teammate, rolled into eighth place with 1,914. Adolph Carlson, Spark Plug of the Blue Ribbon team, vaulted to ninth in the same class with 1,910.

New Doubles Leaders.

The doubles reign of L. Dumar and L. Foster of Highland Park, Mich., which endured for two weeks, was broken today by George Rudolph and John Ryan of Waukegan, who scored 1,321 to take the lead. Dumar and Foster had held the lead with 1,303.

Rudolph got 692 pins with games of 200, 254, and 238. Ryan, twice winner of the Petersen classic in Chicago, scored 234, 214, and 181 for a 629 total. Ryan scored a strike in the last frame to clinch first place. Rudolph started strong, but weakened. The leaders are members of the Berghoff Distributors team.

Lew Fonseca Jr., 9, Decides to Go East with Sox

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Bernardino, Cal., April 2.—The White Sox tourists had a precipitate addition to their party just as the caravan departed Pasadena for San Francisco today. Lew Fonseca Jr., 9 years old, served notice that he was not inclined to return to the family manse in San Francisco with his mother and little sister, who had been visiting in Pasadena over the week-end.

The youngster is advanced in school and within an hour it was decided that he could eat with his pappy and round out the school year under the direction of a tutor. An hour and fifteen minutes after the big idea hit little Lewis he was on the first leg of the trip which will eventually unfold the wonders of Chicago for the first time in the boy's life.

As the Sox left Pasadena it was said by residents of that city that the Sox had signed for training facilities there in 1936 and 1937. Contracts for 1935 had been signed previously.

FUNERAL RITES FOR POU HELD IN WASHINGTON

Body Lies in State as Colleagues Talk.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 3.—[Special.]—In the house of representatives, congress today paid a final and impressive tribute to the dean of all congressmen—Edward W. Pou of North Carolina, who died yesterday morning.

The body lay in state in a flower-banked casket where countless times during thirty-four years of service he had stood to address his colleagues. From the rostrum, Speaker Henry Rainey and Minority Leader Bertrand Snell joined in a eulogy.

Wife Attends for President.

Listening in the crowded hall and galleries were Mrs. Roosevelt—who attended as the representative of President Roosevelt—the justice of the Supreme court, the senate, the house of representatives, and other high dignitaries of the government.

Not since the death of Chicago's Martin B. Madden, six years ago, had the body of a congressman been brought into the house for funeral services.

Mr. Pou was the last of the Wilson congressional leaders. As chairman of the rules committee in the first year of the Roosevelt administration, under his direction, the committee had brought in some of the most drastic "gag" rules ever devised, to insure speedy and unaltered passage of Roosevelt recovery legislation.

Rainey Praises Work.

"His death," Speaker Rainey said, "removes from this body the last of its members who were here when I came, thirty years ago. During that long period of time I have been closely associated with him in the work of the congress and I have learned to admire and respect in the very highest degree his qualities as a man, a statesman, and a citizen."

Mr. Pou's body will be interred tomorrow at Smithfield, N. C.

The daughter-in-law will be buried in Bronswood cemetery today, following services in the Union church at 2:45. Mrs. Mary Borsom will be buried in the same cemetery tomorrow, following services in the same church at 2:45. Five sons survive her. They are Arthur C., Frank H., Paul, Charles and H. Borsom.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Straight for the Rocks

ILLNESS FATAL TO NEW YORK'S EX-DRY LEADER

Kingston, N. Y., April 2.—[Special.]—Palmer A. Canfield, 59, Republican political chieftain who had a stormy career as federal prohibition administrator of New York, was found dead today in his bedroom here.

Death was caused by a hemorrhage resulting from a stomach ailment, according to Coroner W. H. Conner, who performed an autopsy.

Mr. Canfield went from Kingston to New York in 1921 to become chief of the prohibition division of the United States attorney's office and later administrator. He was indicted for forgery and grand larceny in New York City Sept. 25, 1931, after he had left the prohibition service.

It was charged that he accepted and disposed of $25,000 worth of forged New York Central bonds given to him as his fee to intercede with the treasury department to reinstate the permit of the Strictly Kosher Wine company, padlocked after $50,000 worth of sacramental wines had been confiscated in a raid by dry agents March 16, 1931. Mr. Canfield said he "received the bonds in good faith in a legitimate and proper transaction."

She was taken ashore at Nassau and went by plane to Miami. Brought to Chicago by train, she was taken to the hospital a week ago.

FINAL SERVICES FOR KAHN HELD AT HIS ESTATE

New York, April 2.—(AP)—Final services were conducted at his Long Island estate today for Otto H. Kahn, banker and patron of the arts, who died of heart disease last Thursday in his office.

Before a small group of relatives and friends, including J. P. Morgan, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, and Felix Warburg, the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson intoned the Jewish service over the flower covered coffin.

Then the body was taken to the Jones Memorial cemetery, three miles from the 1,000 acre estate, and buried in the plot the banker bought less than a year ago.

Sixteen automobiles followed the hearse, with Mrs. Kahn and her son, Gilbert Kahn, riding in the first car. Roger Wolfe Kahn, the other son, preceded the cortege to the cemetery with five other automobile loads of guests. Two of the cars contained household servants. Two truckloads of floral tributes, many of them from opera stars whom Kahn had befriended during his association with the Metropolitan Opera house, arrived before the services. The coffin itself was covered by a blanket of lilies of the valley.

GRAINS DECLINE IN TRADE UNDER NATIONAL CODE

Small Orders Result in Sharp Fluctuations.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Effects of the new national grain exchange code on the markets was much more noticeable yesterday. Trade was extremely limited and it took little buying or selling to cause sharp fluctuations. Scattered liquidation developed at times, and while there was further inflation talk from New York it attracted little attention. Closing trades were within a fraction of the bottom, with net losses of ⅝ to ⅞ cent on wheat, May closing at 86 to 86¼ cents and July at 85½ to 85⅝ cents. Corn lost ⅝ to ¾ cent, with May 48⅛ to 48⅝ cents, while oats were off ⅜ to ½ cent, with May 32⅛ cents.

Rye developed independent strength, due to R. O. Cromwell's report showing a condition of 64.6 the lowest on record, and camparing with 72.5 last year. Closing trades were ⅝ to 1 cent higher, with May at 59¾ cents. Barley was unchanged to ¼ cent lower.

Ignore Crop Reports.

Private crop reports suggesting a winter wheat yield around 506,000,000 bushels were somewhat under trade expectations but failed to bring any buying of consequence, although the total was about 125,000,000 bushels below the average of recent years. The prospective crop, however, compared with 351,000,000 bushels harvested in 1933, when the total was the smallest in a number of years.

Weather reports were decidedly mixed. The southwest reported the worst dust storms of the season in some sections and considerable damage to the new wheat crop was indicated in parts of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas also reported a need of rain. The spring wheat section, on the other hand, had a fair supply of moisture, but in the main it was too light to be of material benefit.

Wheat Supplies Smaller.

Private estimates on wheat supplies as of April 1 suggested there has been a rapid disappearance of the grain during the last three months. Stocks on farms, in country mills and elevators and in the commercial visible supply showed a total of 261,000,000 bushels. This compared with 427,000,000 bushels on Jan. 1 and 415,000,000 bushels on April 1 last year. According to the government returns there were only 130,000,000 bushels in positions other than the above on Jan. 1.

Persistent selling developed in corn, some of which was regarded as liquidation by professionals who bought corn and sold wheat as a hedge on Saturday. Cash interests continued to buy May corn and sell the July, the spread yesterday being 2¼ cents to 2¼ cents.

SOUTHEASTERN BUS-RAIL PACT AGREES ON RATES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—An agreement on rates and methods of competition between railroads and motor bus lines in the territory east of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio river, signed last week in New Orleans, was made public today by Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator. The agreement is subject to approval by the interstate commerce commission.

Some officials tonight were inclined to the view that the agreement might be in conflict with plans for pending legislation for federal control of the entire motor transportation industry.

Under the agreement motor bus lines not only bind themselves to the maintenance of minimum rates but to the abolition of party or charter rates and free passes. Within the same territory the railroads will maintain passenger fares of not less than 2 cents a mile for one way tickets or 1.8 cents a mile for round trips—thus abolishing excursion rates.

The agreement will fix motor bus rates for hauls of less than 175 miles at "the comparable or competitive rail fares applicable between the same points."

GEN. ELECTRIC'S "PARADE" IS DUE HERE ON FRIDAY

A. J. Millington, manager of the General Electric Supply corporation, local distributor, announced yesterday that the corporation would be host to General Electric's "prosperity parade" from the merchandise department, Bridgeport, Conn., next Friday. More than 400 electrical dealers from all parts of Illinois and surrounding areas will be present.

The "parade," divided into northern and southern tours, is covering more than half the country and visiting General Electric appliance distributors and dealers in 32 cities. B. C. Bowe heads the northern group, which includes eight sales executives.

Officials of General Electric are convinced that a "tremendous buying surge unprecedented in the last 4 years" will be in full swing by July 1, Mr. Millington said.

U. S. STEEL HEAD VIEWS COUNTRY GOING FORWARD

Says Effect of NRA Is Problematical.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 2.—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, speaking at the annual meeting of the stockholders in Hoboken today, declared that the country has passed through the most difficult period of its adversity.

MYRON C. TAYLOR.

This statement was regarded in financial circles as of great importance, particularly because it was in agreement with the optimistic statement made public today by Alfred Sloan Jr., president of General Motors.

Mr. Taylor said that no one "could give an intelligent answer, backed by logic," as to whether the NRA was responsible for the sharp upswing in business. He said it was impossible to tell definitly whether the economic improvement was not simply the "play of natural forces." In answer to a stockholder's question, Mr. Taylor said that up to the present the NRA had been "a good thing for the company."

Stockholders Criticize Code.

The observation that the treatment of employes had been satisfactory was made after some stockholders had criticized the company's acceptance of the NRA code. Mr. Taylor defended the code, both because he held it was fair to the workers and because of the stabilized conditions that the industry was able to achieve through the code's cooperative relationship. He pointed out that the corporation this week is operating at 40 per cent of its capacity, against 14.8 per cent a year ago.

The chairman then said that long before the NRA was organized the corporation had formed a plan to distribute work among as large a number of men as possible. He said that this plan had been carried out at the lowest point of the depression, when operations were down to 9 per cent of capacity. Today the corporation has 200,000 employes at work on an average of twenty-nine hours a week, he said, although the code permits forty hours weekly. The basic rate of pay, he said, had increased 25 per cent from the level of last July.

"Last year," he said, "we thought we had turned the corner and could see ahead immediate signs of revival. Today we know we can. In contrast with the uncertainties of a year ago, we have every reason to believe we have passed through the most difficult period of our adversities and we now face the future with confidence and assurance."

No Bonuses to Officers.

The chairman also said that no bonuses had been paid to officers since 1930 and that pensions to officers had been steadily reduced in recent years. He made this remark in an answer to a stockholders' question.

The question of compensation paid Mr. Taylor and James A. Farrell, retired president of the company, was brought up by one stockholder, who had provided himself with the list of corporation executive salaries and bonuses recently reported by the federal trade commission. Mr. Taylor said increase in his own remuneration after 1929 had been voted by the board of directors because of the work he had done in readjusting the company's financial structure, including the retirement of funded debt.

The stockholder then said the trade commission's figures showed Mr. Farrell had received about $99,000 as a bonus in 1932, the year of his retirement.

"I can answer that myself," said the former president, jumping to his feet. He then said that in the "twenty-five or thirty years" he worked for United States Steel he had had only four vacations and had not received extra compensation. The directors, he said, had felt he should receive a full year's return when he left the company.

Put Insull in Jail? No! on 'Brain Trust'

BY HOWARD WOOD.

We are in receipt of a letter from Mr. P. Hoolan McSnapberry of Little Big Horn, Wis., who says he has been so taken with the planned economy idea that he wants to suggest an addition to the new dealers' alphabet bureau.

"I am not," says Mr. McSnapberry, by way of explanation, "a member of that group known as 'friends of Insull,' that I have been reading so much about of late. That is, I never saw Mr. Insull and I am not contributing to any fund for keeping him out of the country.

"I am just a small town business man who thinks he has a good idea and would like to toss it up for somebody to shoot at.

"What I cannot understand is this. Now that we've adopted as a national policy the idea of spending, borrowing, and inflating our way back to prosperity, why should we bring Sam Insull back in handcuffs? Why not offer him a big government job? It seems to me that he's just the man we need to head the program. Never was there a financier who believed more firmly in the bootstrap theory of finance and never was there an individual who could spend, borrow, and inflate the way Sam could."

Mr. Insull's companies owe a lot of people a lot of money, Mr. McSnapberry admits, but he says that those unfortunate circumstances exist because Mr. Insull got into financial difficulties before the Reconstruction Finance corporation learned how to hand out money in what he terms "large gobs." He adds that possibly even yet the RFC could come to the rescue by buying preferred stock in some of the Insull concerns, thereby restoring the Insull credit.

"But it is not with the idea of restoring Mr. Insull to the leadership of his old companies that I would have him recalled," Mr. McSnapberry goes on. "I think there's a bigger job for him to do.

"What we really should do is coordinate all the credit inflation program, all the government financing, and all government public work expenditures in one administrative bureau called supply of bonds commission—SOB for short—and then install Mr. Insull as administrator of the SOB.

"No man could be better qualified for the job," Mr. McSnapberry continues. "Take, for example, the sale of bonds. The federal treasury has embarked upon a program of selling ten billions or more of federal bonds to unbalance the budget, increase the public debt, and borrow the country back to prosperity. Mr. Insull, with his vast experience in the sale of bonds, unbalanced budgets, and increasing debt structure, would be just the man."

Mr. Insull, says Mr. McSnapberry, would be an invaluable assistant to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau in an advisory capacity. He points out that Mr. Morgenthau has been maintaining the market for government bonds by having the treasury trade in its own bonds when market quotations on such bonds decline a little.

"This," he goes on, "back in 1928 was known as 'rigging the market.' The practice fell into temporary disrepute for some reason for several years after 1929, but now that the treasury has been given a two billion dollar fund for the express purpose of rigging the market for government bonds, Mr. Insull could be of great assistance in directing this sort of market supervision.

"He could also be of much service to the Reconstruction Finance corporation in some of its complicated inter-corporation financial transactions. For some months the RFC has been buying preferred stock in the nation's banks, giving in exchange for this stock not cash, but its own debentures. Mr. Insull, with his vast experience in inter-company transactions, could take over this work in the proposed supply of bonds bureau, because a debenture is really a form of bond."

As for the Tennessee valley authority, says Mr. McSnapberry, the venture is so like some of Mr. Insull's promotions that he really should at least be available for consultation on it.

"The idea behind this promotion, that of spending millions of other people's money on a project which is to have its books kept in red ink is made to order for the promoter of Corporation Securities and Middle West Utilities," he says simply.

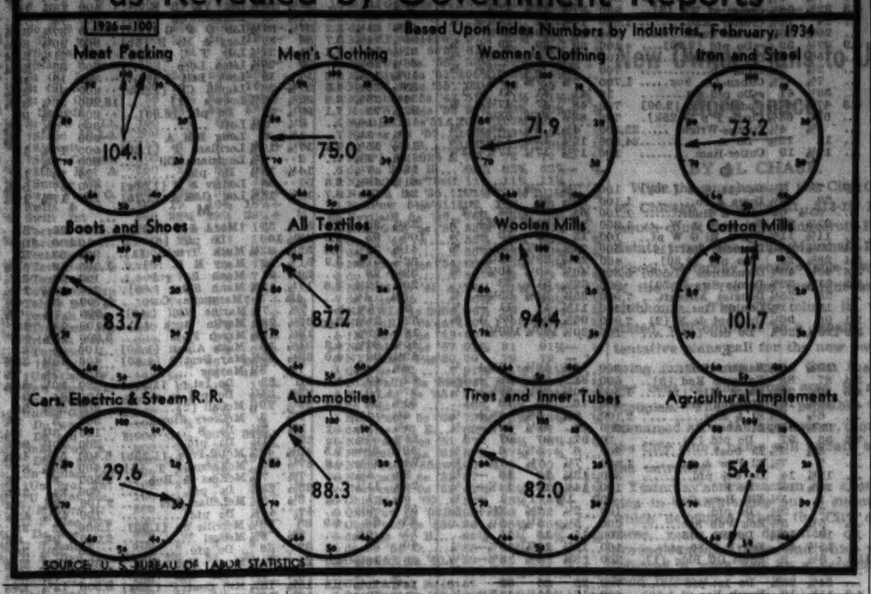
Lest professional jealousy cause some of the present members of the "brain trust" not to welcome Mr. Insull into their midst, Mr. McSnapberry warns, it is possible that their excluding him might cause the former utility magnate to sue various of them for infringement of patents because of the close resemblance between their ideas and those previously developed by him.

"And in justice to Mr. Insull," continues Mr. McSnapberry, "it should be remembered that his inflation program was carried out at a time when the dollar was a fixed quantity. If he had been able to keep above water by reducing the gold content of the dollar each time the quotations on his securities fell below par and use the profit from devaluation to buy and sell his own stocks and bonds, he would never need to have gone to the banks for loans, and if he hadn't gone to the banks for loans he would still be going fine today."

The Employment Status of Leading Industries as Revealed by Government Reports



More Firms Join Move to Boost Wages

The movement for higher wages in industry went forward in a number of cities yesterday. The Crane company, manufacturers of plumbing and heating equipment, announced an increase of 10 per cent in hourly and piece work wages scales. The increase will affect about 5,000 employes in the company's plants in Chicago, Bridgeport, Birmingham, and North Tonawanda, N. Y.

"This important step, seen as a brightening of industrial skies, was interpreted to mean a heightened demand for industrial plant materials and as a reflection of the extensive home remodeling program now under way," the announcement said. "It is in line with President Roosevelt's recent request to industry in behalf of the NRA."

OHIO FIRMS RAISE WAGES.

Cleveland, O., April 2.—(AP)—Continued evidence of the turning of the financial tide for labor in Ohio was seen today in announcement of wage increases in Cleveland and Toledo affecting more than 5,000.

In Toledo 4,500 workmen benefited through wage increases announced by several plants. The Dura company is granting a 10 per cent increase; the Spicer Manufacturing company, 5 per cent; the Electric Auto-Lite company a second 5 per cent advance within a month, and several plants have raised wages of metal polishers 10 to 15 per cent. In Cleveland 700 members of the Typographical union employed in job shops were granted a 10 per cent raise and a reduction in working hours from 40 to 36 a week.

Steel Company Boosts Pay.

Denver, Colo., April 2.—(AP)—A 10 per cent wage increase for the approximate 3,700 workers in its steel department was announced today by Arthur Roeder, receiver for the Colorado Fuel and Iron company. The increase, he said, is effective as of April 1. Most of the steel workers are in the company plants at Pueblo, Colo.

Carpet Concerns Grant Increase.

Amsterdam, N. Y., April 2.—(AP)—The Bigelow-Sanford and Mohawk Carpet companies today increased up to 10 per cent the wages of piece workers and those working on hourly rate. The increase affects 7,000 workers. Both concerns are working day and night shifts.

Three thousand employes of the Thompsonville, Conn., plant of Bigelow-Sanford also are affected.

Plans to Employ More.

Washington, D. C., April 2.—(AP)—New jobs for 1,200 would be created by Johnson and Johnson, surgical dressing manufacturers, under a proposed reduction of daily working hours from eight to six. Ready to ask NRA permission for the cut, the company said wages would remain at their present level.

Alarm Device Companies Meet to Consider Code

Representatives of about 100 companies which manufacture fire and theft alarm devices met at the Morrison hotel yesterday to consider a code for their industry.

BANKERS' ASSOCIATION SAYS BUSINESS IS IN ARTIFICIAL CONDITION

New York, April 2.—(AP)—The American Bankers' association, in its journal, today commented as follows on business and banking conditions:

"On the face of things there has been much improvement. Deposits are increasing. No bank in the federal deposit insurance corporation has failed since the inception of the system and it is unlikely that any bank in the system will be allowed to fail. . . .

"However, it is evident that with 6,000 or so banks more or less supported by government capital on the one hand and over a billion and a third dollars in excess reserves of member banks on the other, with decreasing commercial loans and investments in government bonds increasing at a tremendous rate, banking is in an abnormal, artificial condition. Such also is the situation of business generally.

". . . Business during late February and up in late March has been decidedly spotty and banking has been quite as variegated. The bright spots are in the south, central west, and southwest."

VALUE OF DOLLAR STRONG AGAINST PRINCIPAL UNITS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 2.—The dollar was stronger against principal currencies in the foreign exchange market here today. Calculated on the old par of the French gold franc the dollar closed at 59.54 cents, a rise of 9 points for the day.

The franc eased 1 point, to close at 6.58 cents, and the British pound sagged ½ cent, at $5.14. With the exception of the Canadian dollar, which held unchanged at par, other units eased moderately.

No new imports of gold arrived here today, but the Federal Reserve bank of New York reported as additional for last Saturday the arrival of $4,898,100 from England. Further gold imports are expected later in the week, including $1,420,000 on the steamship Washington on Thursday, consigned to the Banque Belge pour l'Etranger.

TREASURY 90 DAY BILLS SOLD AT OLD LOW MARK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—The secretary of the treasury announced today that subscriptions to the recent offering of $100,000,000 of 90 and 182 day bills totaled $302,846,000, of which $100,247,000 was accepted.

The 90 day bills sold at an average bid of 99.931, equivalent to an average rate of .8 per cent on a discount basis and equaling the low record. The 182 day bills sold at an average of 99.902, equivalent to an average rate of .19 per cent.

Wire, Radio Factions Differ in Code Views

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—The first hearing of a code of fair competition to be imposed by the National Recovery administration opened today when the various factions of the telegraph and wireless communications industry continued their fight which has so far prevented them from submitting a code acceptable to the administration.

Today's arguments centered around the submission of a code of fair practices by the Postal Telegraph corporation, which includes the Postal Telegraph-Cable company, the Commercial Cable company, All-America Cables, Inc., Mackay Radio and Telegraph.

Up to now the recovery administration has been unable to arrive at a fair practices code, the industry having no trade association, and its few components being unable to agree on anything but a code of wages and hours which were in themselves termed unsatisfactory by Hugh S. Johnson.

Fair practice rules submitted today by the Mackay interests would limit leased line service to a single lessee for his sole interest, and limit business transacted over such lines between offices of single customers or between companies under common ownership, government and press messages to be excluded. Furthermore, they provide that no company primarily engaged in the business "of furnishing a general public telegraph service shall furnish telegraph communication of any kind at rates or charges which are discriminatory against the regular telegraph rates or charges."

Bell Telephone is Target.

These provisions, it was explained by Col. A. H. Griswold, executive vice president of the Postal Telegraph, and Howard L. Kern, its vice president and secretary, were aimed at eliminating what they termed the unfair competition of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, or the bell system, in the furnishing of leased teletypewriter service at low rates to a large number of lessees as a "byproduct" of their phone service.

When Deputy Administrator Leighton H. Peebles, who conducted the meeting, asked if any representative of the Bell system wished to be heard, Harvey Hashour, general solicitor for the Bell system, arose and said that the Postal's suggestions were until now new to him, and that he would file a brief in reply after he had time to study them.

Western Union Satisfied.

R. B. White, president of the Western Union Telegraph company, said that, as far as his company was concerned, there was no need, and there would be no application for a code. He said that in his opinion the cable companies and the Radio Corporation of America would not come under a telegraphic code, and that the Western Union had never been accused of unfair competition and had no complaint against its competitors.

Declaring that he had not anticipated any discussion other than one of hours and wages, Col. Manton Davis, representing the Radio Corporation of America, communications division, said that he had not expected that the NRA would consider a code of regulation for an industry already under the federal radio commission.

Commercial Credit Expands Slightly, Bank Reports Show

Banks outside New York and Chicago expanded their outstanding commercial loans in the week ended March 28, in contrast to the further contractions in the two large centers, according to the weekly report on member bank credit released yesterday by the federal reserve board.

The report, which covers the 91 principal clearing house cities in the United States, showed an increase of 4 millions in commercial loans by the member banks despite a drop of 8 millions in New York and a drop of 3 millions in Chicago.

U. S. Withdraws Funds.

Banks outside New York City reduced their holdings of United States government bonds 48 millions, 10 millions of which was accounted for by Chicago member banks. In New York, an earlier report showed, banks had increased their holdings of governments 3 million dollars.

In other respects the credit picture in cities outside New York and Chicago showed little change. From banks in the 91 cities, including New York and Chicago, the government withdrew 89 millions of its deposited funds, 35 millions of which it took from New York member banks and 11 millions of which it withdrew in Chicago. Net demand deposits in the 91 cities increased 71 millions for the week, of which increase 54 millions occurred in New York banks.

MILLERS QUIT PARLEY AS NRA, AAA DISAGREE

Differ on Stop Loss Provisions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—A conflict of policy between the Agricultural Adjustment administration and the National Recovery administration was disclosed today as the reason why spokesmen for the flour milling industry recently walked out on negotiations looking to the formation of a marketing agreement with the agricultural adjustment administration.

In a special bulletin issued by the Millers' National federation, it was stated that "our chief difficulty in Washington grows largely out of the divided responsibility for our code, which is partly under NRA jurisdiction and partly under AAA."

The committee which represented the Millers' National federation in the marketing agreement negotiations, it was said, suspended the conferences with government officials because of an effort to "impose certain requirements upon the code which the committee felt it could not accept."

Balk at Stop Loss Provision.

Involved in the objectional requirements, the bulletin disclosed, was a stop loss provision on flour which the committee declared "would have emasculated safety factors such as the mill feed credit and yield figures."

The AAA, it was recalled, has repeatedly steered clear of stop loss provisions in its marketing agreements on the ground that such sections tend to guarantee cost of production to industry. The NRA, on the other hand, has approved the stop loss plan, at least in principle in several of its major codes, including the code for the lumber industry.

While the walkout of the milling industry was regarded as a new indication that all is not harmonious between the experts of the farm and recovery administrations, it was understood that the New Deal agencies are seeking to reconcile their views. Before them, it was reported, is a revised code representing the attitude of the flour milling industry.

Await Better Conditions.

"The committee's action does not necessarily mean that there will be no milling code," the bulletin declared. "The committee stands ready to resume negotiations whenever it can secure conditions which are reasonably acceptable."

The action of the committee in suspending the code negotiations, it was added, "may also open the way to certain other developments which may have the effect of clearing the air considerably not only on our code, but with respect to many other food codes."

"It should be said," the bulletin continued, "that officials of the AAA are in an exceedingly difficult position with respect to our code. They are under constant pressure from radical farm groups to prescribe a plan which will net the producer cost of production plus for his crops."

Smokeless coal operators of southern West Virginia today reached a new wage agreement for that area with the United Mine Workers of America. When the operators abandoned their insistence on a readjustment on piece rates, which they said were too high in relation to basic daily rates. Under the agreement the basic daily rate for the region will be increased from $4.20 to $4.60.

433 Favorable Dividend Changes Voted in Quarter

New York, April 2.—(AP)—Standard Statistics company reports 433 favorable dividend changes in the first quarter of this year compared with 131 in the first three months of 1933. There were 103 increases, 137 resumptions, 132 extras and 61 initial payments.

'Pennsy' Cuts 1933 Expense, Lifts Profit

Despite a reduction of $8,627,884 in railway operating revenues as compared with 1932, the Pennsylvania Railroad company was able to come through 1933 with an increase of $5,707,633 in its net income largely as a result of increased efficiency of operation, according to the annual report of President W. W. Atterbury to stockholders.

GEN. W. W. ATTERBURY. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Net revenue from railway operations for 1933 totaled $97,947,486, an increase of $3,565,611 over 1932. Taxes amounting to $24,459,589 showed a decline of $3,771,830 from 1932. After other deductions net operating income for the year stood at $61,976,858, an increase of $12,844,320 over 1932. Net income totaled $13,281,169.

Operating expenses totaled $226,768,346, a decrease of $16,243,235 from 1932. Of this saving nearly two-thirds was in expenditures on transportation.

Tells Effects of Depression.

Gen. Atterbury called attention to the sharp decline in business during the four years of the depression, explaining that the 1933 total operating revenues of $324,715,815 showed a decline of $348,422,917 from the 1929 total, or 53.2 per cent. During this period operating expenses were reduced 54.7 per cent.

Freight revenues of the railroad totaled $238,948,928, an increase of $3,620,391 over 1932. All other principal sources of revenue showed declines, including a $6,808,879 recession in passenger income.

The company's balance sheet shows that the road repaid its $27,500,000 Reconstruction Finance corporation loan of 1932. This obligation was met out of the company's cash and through the sale of United States government bonds which were held as temporary investments.

Adds $7,484,212 to Surplus.

Out of the road's net income $4,812,971 was applied to sinking and other reserve funds and a dividend of 1 per cent, amounting to $6,583,845, was paid to stockholders on March 15 of the present year. There was also deducted $420,137 for deficits and advances to certain leased and affiliated lines and the remainder, $7,484,212, was added to profit and loss. The dividend paid was the 200th in the Pennsylvania's history and continued unbroken the record of a return in every year since 1847.

Gen. Atterbury stated that arrangements have been completed with the Public Works administration to obtain $77,000,000 through the sale of the railroad's securities for the completion of the New York-Washington electrification project.

"The whole plan is in harmony with the national recovery program in that all of the funds expended will be for wages and materials, and will be of direct and widespread benefit in increasing capital goods production and creating employment throughout the country," Gen. Atterbury stated. "It will create needed facilities having enduring value and a useful life of many years."

May Take Up Other Lines.

The possibility that the railroads in the future may be permitted to engage in any kind of transportation was suggested by Gen. Atterbury in a discussion of the effects of legislation on the roads.

"Railroad management is confident that due consideration and study of the railroad question along broad and comprehensive lines in cooperation with the coordinator, as contemplated in the emergency railroad transportation act," he said, "will result in a regulatory policy that will insure them equality of opportunity to engage profitably in any kind of transportation service desired by the public."

PRICE BOOSTS ANNOUNCED BY BIG AUTO FIRMS

Increases Laid to Higher Costs.

Detroit, Mich., April 3.—(AP)—Automobile price increases, predicted several weeks ago, began to make their appearance today with announcement by four companies of additions ranging from $25 to $130 on various models. The increases follow closely on announcements of wage increases in the steel and automotive industries.

The companies announcing increases today were Plymouth with an upturn of $35 on its standard model; Dodge, with $45 on all types; Chrysler, with increases ranging from $40 on standard models to $130 on its higher priced types, and Studebaker, with increases of $25 and $50 on two models.

Other Boosts Expected.

While none of the General Motors divisions nor the Ford motor company was included in today's announcements, the belief in trade circles apparently is that several other manufacturers soon will announce upward revisions.

At the offices of the General Motors corporation it was explained that any price revisions that might be decided upon would be announced by the individual divisions — Cadillac, Buick, Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, and Pontiac.

To support the theory that price increases would be more or less general throughout the industry it was pointed out in trade circles today that predictions of such action were made by leading automotive executives long before wage increases had been decided upon.

The predictions of wage increases were based on earlier increases in the cost of raw materials. Most automotive executives are understood to believe the recently announced wage increases in the steel industry forecast further increases in the cost of raw materials.

Try to Settle Strike.

In an effort to settle the strike of between 4,000 and 5,000 employes of the Nash Motors company, the newly created automobile labor board will hold a hearing in Racine, Wis., tomorrow morning.

Arrangements for the removal of the hearings to the Wisconsin city were made after the board had been advised that the strikers were unable to finance a trip for their representatives to Detroit. The board previously had conferred here with C. W. Nash, chairman of the board of his company, and two of his colleagues.

The three members of the labor board, Dr. Leo Wolman, Columbia university economist, chairman, and Nicholas Kelley, New York attorney, and Richard L. Byrd of Pontiac, Mich., representing employes and workers, respectively, leave at midnight for Racine. There they will receive delegates from the Nash plants and affiliated units in Kenosha, Milwaukee, and Racine.

Causes of Disputes.

The issues involved in the Nash strike concern chiefly wages and seniority rights. In Michigan the main problem has to do with complaints of discrimination against workers because of their union affiliation.

Approximately fifty such complaints have been presented to the board but William Collins, American Federation of Labor organizer, has said they represent merely the "opening salvo." Collins and other union officials brought to the mediators today the first instalment of the list of claimed union membership.

The list covered workers in two Fisher body plants in Flint, where the union claims approximately 4,500 members out of a total employment of 5,000.

Dr. Wolman reiterated today that the board wished to act in the capacity of a mediation body and would avoid "arbitrary" or "dictatorial" action if mutually agreeable settlements could be arranged.

STOCKS STRONG; TRADING HOLDS TO SPECIALTIES

Aviations Are Prominent and Higher.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, April 2. — An atmosphere of cheerfulness over the business outlook ushered in the second quarter today, but it was not strongly reflected in the stock market which continued on its plodding, uninteresting way.

In the absence of important news to stir up action, the share market maintained an undertone of strength in moderate volume. A strong beginning soon gave way to dullness and the market drifted to the close with little material change in the general price level.

The bulk of the turnover was recorded in speculative and specialty issues, chiefly low-priced aviation favorites. This trend left established pivotal shares like American Can, United States Steel, American Telephone and Du Pont to shift for themselves.

Low Priced Issues Prominent.

It remained for low priced issues in varied fields of industry to take the trading spotlight. It is said that brokers are counting on such shares to come into increased speculative favor if and when congress passes legislation for market regulation. While that remained to be seen, the greater part of actual trading and inquiries most of the day was had in such issues as Sperrs corporation, Radio, Aviation corporation, Texas Pacific Land trust, Armour B, Servel, Curtiss-Wright and Packard, all of which are quoted at less than $12 a share.

Tape readers interpreted this activity in shares in lower priced brackets as accumulation by bulls in anticipation of better demand for them when uncertainties are removed from pending stock exchange laws, particularly margin requirements.

Steel Issues Easier.

Steel issues took a slightly easier turn on the Steel Institute's estimate of steel output for this week of 43.2 per cent of capacity, a drop of more than 2 points from the rate reported a week ago. United States Steel reported current operations at 40 per cent.

Inflation talk will not be downed and speculation continued on a subdued scale in leading gold and silver shares. Interest in the latter group was fanned as leaders in the final drive for remonetization of the white metal prepared for a test of strength in congress on the Dies bill this week. Among the metals Nickel, Howe Sound, and Dome Mines reached new highs.

Occasional improvement in railroad stocks, notably Santa Fe, was seen, but the group as a whole remained inactive. Western Union and Postal had a spurt for a while, but communications were no more inspiring than other groups.

MEXICO AND CUBA CONSIDERED GOOD U. S. TRADE FIELDS

Opportunities Reported by Export Advertiser.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Both Mexico and Cuba hold trade possibilities for the immediate future, in the opinion of R. C. Lebret, head of the Export Advertising agency, who recently returned to Chicago after a trip through nearby Latin America. Mr. Lebret's views are borne out by the investigations of several Chicago houses doing a foreign business, particularly in Mexico.

Mr. Lebret, who also is consul here for Venesuela and Uruguay, states that American products are constantly growing in favor in Mexico. He asserted that there is little unemployment in the southern republic, and with the silver mines working at top speed as a result of the higher prices of this metal and with other influences at work, the Mexicans are in a better position to buy than they have been for some time.

Improvement in Interior.

One hopeful factor, Mr. Lebret said yesterday, is the improvement in conditions in the interior of Mexico. The capital for years has provided an outlet for American goods, but now business in the interior is advancing.

"Formerly," Mr. Lebret said, "about 50 per cent of our Mexican business was done with firms in Mexico City and 50 per cent with firms at interior points. Now about 65 per cent of our business is done in the interior and 35 per cent in the capital."

Discussing the increased popularity of American goods, Mr. Lebret said that American hardware, which twenty years ago was hardly known in Mexico, now dominates the market. He cited the case of a large German music house in Mexico City which before the war obtained 90 per cent of its requirement from Germany. This house now gets about 75 per cent from the United States, 15 per cent from France, Italy and Czechoslovakia, 5 per cent from Japan, and 5 per cent from Germany.

Says Cuba Needs Goods.

With respect to Cuba, Mr. Lebret said that shelves in retail establishments throughout the country are depleted. Because of the unsettled conditions in the island republic, merchants have hesitated to buy, but now with the outlook somewhat brighter they feel that they can go into the market again.

Mr. Lebret told of the experience of a salesman for a large Chicago company who recently returned from a trip into the interior of Cuba. This man said that he did more business during the four weeks of his trip than he did altogether in 1933.

The exchange problem still remains one of the big stumbling blocks to the carrying on of business in Latin America, Mr. Lebret said, but added that there has been a little improvement in this respect. He told of the difficulty in carrying on his own business, which is the handling of advertising in foreign nations.

Difficulty in Exchange.

"We do business in some 45 nations," he said, "and we have to keep books in which about 25 currencies are involved. Trying to keep our books in order with the constant changes in the exchange rates is almost a task for a magician. Having to do this with an eye to our own American tax requirements complicates our work.

"Looking over the foreign trade situation from a world outlook we are able to see an improvement. A good barometer is advertising, and there has been a noticeable pickup in this field. One of the brightest spots in the world picture now apart from Latin America is Australia."

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Raw sugar was quiet today and spot prices were unchanged at 2.95c for duty frees. It was believed that refiners would pay 2.95c, but nothing was firmly offered below 3.00c, and it was reported that late last week an operator paid the asked price for 5,000 bags of Puerto Rican for April shipment. There was only a small trade in futures, with operators apparently inclined to limit fresh commitments, pending developments on the sugar bill at Washington. A vote is expected by the house on Wednesday. After showing early gains of 2 to 3 points on the steadiness of the spot market prices reached and closed at net unchanged to 1 point advance. Sales were 6,700 tons. Prices follow:

HOGS DROP WHEN NEW U. S. BUYING FAILS TO APPEAR

Average 15 Cents Lower; Cattle Are Firmer.

Failure of federal buying orders for hogs to appear in the market yesterday knocked the props from under prices and contributed to the unsettlement of the trade. After the first break in prices trading drifted slowly downward with nothing in the news to jar it out of the rut.

Warmer weather and a sluggish wholesale market for fresh pork added to the somnolence of trading and made buyers indifferent. Packers representing the federal relief corporation in the hog market completed their buying orders for good to choice grades of hogs weighing 100 to 240 pounds last Friday, and had expected new orders for medium to choice grades weighing 140 to 210 pounds yesterday. Bids for new contracts, which they made to the government recently, were for 20 market days in April, beginning with yesterday.

Government Orders Awaited.

Trading held fire several hours early yesterday with both sides awaiting definite news regarding the intentions of the government concerning the new order. However, up to a late hour in the afternoon there was no news from Washington, and the hog trade was left temporarily to shift for itself. It was late before any one showed any willingness to start it off, and then bids were 10 to 25 cents lower, the general average for the day at $4.05, showing 15 cents loss compared with last Friday, with the top at $4.40, off 10 cents.

Small local packing houses were particularly reluctant buyers again, some remaining out of the market and claiming that only packers entrenched behind large stocks in storage can work normally under existing conditions because of the $2.25 processing tax.

Cattle Prices Firmer.

The cattle market continued to make good progress yesterday, the better grades of steers and yearlings ruling strong to slightly higher, with a bigger share of the choice kinds selling within 25 cents of the top prices, while only a small number sold at the low end of the list, at $5.25 and below. The New York Butchers and the Nagle Packing companies, both of New York, paid the extreme top of $7.65 for almost 100 steers averaging 1,197 to 1,280 pounds. Cattle averaging 1,499 pounds reached $7.25 and 1,593 pounders sold at $7.00.

In the heavier classes there were some 1,637 pound averages up to $6.85, some 1,680 pound steers at $6.25, and 1,812 pounders at $5.75. Most of the common and medium grades of cattle sold at about steady prices.

Lambs were slow and steady to 15 cents lower, with action lacking. Eastern buyers obtained the top grades at $9.25 during the early rounds, while packers bought at $9.00 to $9.15. A few native spring lambs, uneven in weights ranging from 20 to 30 pounds and of mixed quality, cashed at $12.00

LARD LOWER; STOCKS ARE CUT LESS THAN EXPECTED

Lard stocks in Chicago surprised the trade by decreasing only 1,812,103 pounds in March, the total being 113,486,676 pounds, compared with 23,436,526 pounds last year.

Stocks of dry salted clear bellies are 15,450,092 pounds, representing a decrease of 5% 768 pounds for the month. A year ago they were 1,585,975 pounds. Total stocks of all meats at Chicago are 111,047,330 pounds, compared with 137,990,481 pounds a month ago and 107,374,067 pounds last year.

A fair run of buying early gave the lard market a little strength yesterday, but, as all markets eased later, there were scattered sales and a decline. Net losses on lard futures were 15 to 22½ cents, the latter on September.

Cash lard was off 20 cents on regular and loose, it being $5.92½ and $6.90 respectively. Leaf lard declined 12½ cents to a basis of $6.

Bellies received little attention and closed 2½ cents lower on old May and unchanged for other months. Cash bellies were picked up fairly at $8. Liverpool markets were closed. Exports of lard from New York on Saturday were 1,865,500 pounds, and of bacon 816,900 pounds. Prices:

RETAIL FOOD INDEX RISES TO TOP MARK SINCE JANUARY, '32

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—After a brief recession during February, retail food prices, during the two week period ended March 15, again advanced, rising four-tenths of 1 per cent, commissioner Lubin of the bureau of labor statistics of the labor department announced today.

During the period the index number of the bureau rose to 108.8 per cent of the 1913 average of 100, the highest point reached since January, 1932, when the index was 109.8. As compared with March 15, 1933, when the index number registered 105.

"The advance," Mr. Lubin said, "was due largely to an increase in prices of meats, lard, butter, cheese, potatoes, and coffee. Of the forty-two articles entering into the index sixteen registered an increase, fifteen showed no change and eleven registered a decline.
